BRITAIN URGES WORLD PARLEY TO REVIVE TRADE

Tackle Problem at Lausanne, Plea.

Finance and Politics

In England, Prime Minister MacDonald urges converting the Lausanne reparations conference next month into a conference on world trade.

In Berlin, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's resignation looms in dispute with President Paul von Hindenburg over the former's internal policy.

In Rouen, France, former Premier Paul Painleve declares that the best solution of the entire debt and reparations problem would be to wipe the slate clean.

LONDON, May 30.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A plea for converting the Lausanne reparations conference next month into a conference on world trade was made today by Prime Minister MacDonald in an interview with the political specialist of the Daily Mail, who visited him at Lossiemouth, Scotland.

If the suggestion gains support, it may, the newspaper said, completely alter the complexion of the conference and cause the United States to be more than an observer.

"The problem to be faced is not merely the recovery of one nation, but the restarting of world commerce," MacDonald was quoted as saying.

Too Much for One Nation.

"I should like to see the Lausanne conference boldly tackle this much bigger problem in all its important aspects, as well as dealing with debts and reparations. It is an international problem and no nation can settle it for itself.

"The British representatives will strive with might and main to get the conference to face this large issue. The experience of all countries in the past six months particularly ought to induce every nation to take broader views than some of them have done hitherto."

The Mail said it understood the suggestion for broadening the basis of the conference, which is scheduled to meet at Lausanne on June 16, was one of the main topics Prime Minister MacDonald discussed with Secretary of State Stimson in a recent trans-Atlantic telephone conversation.

Expect Mellon to Participate.

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon also is likely to be connected with the new development, the newspaper said, adding that it believed the American ambassador had discussed the proposal with the British government.

MacDonald, the newspaper said, has been greatly benefitted by his stay at his home in Lossiemouth, where he went to rest after an eye operation. The correspondent reported the prime minister was anxious to return to London, was fully determined to go to Lausanne and was immersed in preparations for the conference, to which he attaches the greatest importance.

Bruening May Resign.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 29.—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening is seriously considering the advisability of resigning his post tomorrow noon, it was learned today.

President Paul von Hindenburg has requested the chancellor to alter his drastic economy program and make financial concessions to the Junkers and political concessions to the Hitlerites who attempted to gain the president's favor during his visits to East Prussia. Bruening is reported to be seeking a compromise between his own program and the wishes of the president. If he fails, he is determined to resign tomorrow. The chancellor was closeted with Von Hindenburg five hours today.

Many officials called on Von Hindenburg tonight to try to facilitate a compromise between the republican chancellor and the president. Bruening had a majority of thirty votes in the last reichstag session but his position was weakened through the National Socialist victory today in Oldenburg, where 24 Fascists were elected to the state diet of 46 seats. Adolf Hitler's leaders point to this victory in trying to convince President von Hindenburg that the German people are turning against republican parties and want a Hitlerite government.

GRATEFUL CITY TODAY HONORS ITS HERO DEAD

Plan First Parade in Two Years.

Memorial Day Parade

TIME—Forms at 1:30. Begins marching at 2.

PLACE—Forms in Michigan avenue at Chestnut street.

LINE OF MARCH—South in Michigan from Chestnut street to 11th street, west to Wabash avenue, where units will disband. Official reviewing stand at 9th street and Michigan.

WEATHER—Fair and somewhat warmer with gentle southerly winds.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Chicago today rededicates itself to remembrance of its heroic dead. From dawn till noon, the cemeteries where the fallen lie will glow with the flutter of banners and the glint of rifles and uniforms of three wars will march down those silent aisles, leaving flowers and flags and the incense of prayer as firing squads salute and bugles speak their poignant message.

CAPT. W. P. WRIGHT.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon all these uniformed regiments are scheduled to converge on Michigan boulevard in the first Memorial day parade in two years, rain having prevented last year's processional. Fair weather was forecast last night for today's parade, with somewhat warmer temperature and gentle to moderate winds.

Capt. Wright to Head Parade.

One Chicagoan at least would be disappointed if rain should prevent the parade, as it did last year. Capt. William P. Wright, 87-year-old grand marshal of the event, has waited for more than a year to assume his place at the head of the line of march as the successor to the late Gen. James E. Stuart, whose death occurred in March, 1931.

For the first time in the history of Memorial day parade there will be no column of civil war veterans marching bravely down the boulevard this afternoon. Capt. Wright and his comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic have consented to occupy automobiles and to join the parade at its starting point, Chicago avenue. Their custom was to fall in at Randolph street and march to the reviewing stand at 9th.

As the veterans of '61 fall out a new corps will fall into line today. For the first time the sons of world war veterans will march as a unit in the parade, each with the Stars and Stripes over one shoulder. As "Sons of American Legionnaires" the youngsters will march in units behind their fathers' posts.

Black Horse Troop to Parade.

Far up in the line of march will come the Black Horse Troop under command of Capt. Paul Butler, as escort to the reviewing officers, including Lieut. Gov. Sterling and the governor's staff, United States Senator Lewis, Mayor Cermak and others.

Three detachments of youthful cadets will be among the first units of the parade. Northwestern Military and Naval academy cadets of Lake Geneva will be honorary escort to the reviewing officers. Boys from the Morgan Park Military academy will be honorary escort to the colors.

The third group comprises 350 cadets from St. John's Military academy at Delafield, Wis. This smartly uniformed aggregation arrived in Chicago yesterday and was quartered last night at the Drake hotel. They had not received definite notice of their place in the line, but will probably swing down the avenue in the immediate forefront. Previously they have acted as escort to the colors.

Disabled Vets to Ride.

The Memorial day parade has become the event of the year for 300 disabled veterans of the world war, who will ride today as guests of their fellow members of the American Legion. Volunteer drivers have provided transportation for these men to and from the Edward Hines Jr. and the Great Lakes Veterans' hospitals. A dinner and show at the Steuben club will complete their day.

Following the custom of past years, the first division of the procession will belong to the civil war veterans and

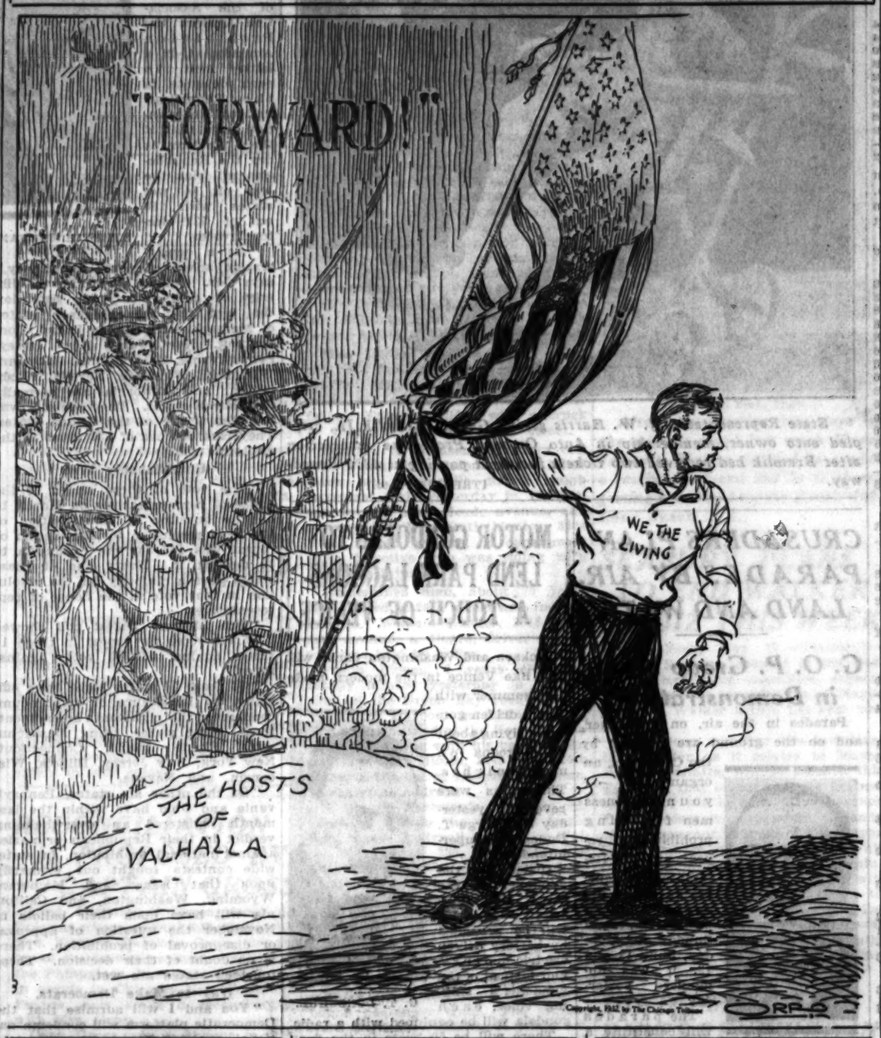
THEIR LAST COMMAND



Vandals Open Campaign on Night Parkers

A campaign of vandalism apparently designed to force owners to store their automobiles in garages, in connection with the all night parking ban, was begun yesterday with the puncturing of the tires of fifteen cars on a lot at Diversey parkway and Cambridge avenue. Between ten and fifteen other automobiles were damaged in a similar manner last Wednesday at 71st street and Bennett avenue.

"This vandalism obviously is an attempt to blackjack owners into putting their autos in garages," declared Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, last night. Ald. William A. Rowan of the 10th ward and Ald. Walter W. Morris of the 18th ward expressed similar views. Mr. Hayes, who is leading the fight against the night parking ban, has submitted a repealer to the city council.

Tacks Spread in Street.

The puncturing of tires was disclosed yesterday as only one of the several alleged coercive measures adopted by hoodlums in connection with the parking ban. In the 900 block on Lawrence avenue tacks were sprinkled along the south curb, causing a dozen flat tires. In other sections minor thefts of accessories have been reported.

Few motorists took the trouble to make formal police complaints but Mrs. Harry Gabel, 7133 Bennett avenue, said that between ten and fifteen machines had been damaged near her home. L. Kahan, 1540 East 65th place, was another complainant last week. Two tires of his auto were punctured in front of his home. Ten days ago unofficial complaints were made that ten or more cars were "made flat" in the 3300 block in Argyle street.

250,000 Autos Affected.

The ban against night parking was put into effect last Monday on orders of Commissioner Allman. It was estimated that 250,000 all-night parkers were affected, and that the enforcement of the ordinance would cost auto owners $30,000,000 a year. The ordinance was passed in 1927.

President Hayes, in demanding police action, declared: "It is the duty of the police to send the terrorists to prison. The 119 policemen used to tag all night parkers could better be used to arrest auto strippers and others who prey on the auto owning public. If this law is enforced I predict it will impair business and increase unemployment by hindering the sale of new cars."

Fear More Alley Holdups.

Mr. Hayes pointed out that the absolute prohibition in the parking ordinance works a hardship on doctors, out on cases all night, it means also, he said, an added peril to owners from bandits in going through dark alleys to store their cars. This same objection was cited by Ald. Rowan, who was held up at his home garage two months ago.

Another parking ban now under attack is that affecting the loop. Property owners are trying to modify the ordinance on the ground its restrictions are causing a loss in their business of $75,000,000 a year. Ald. John A. Coughlin of the First ward has recommended 30 minute parking in the loop. This matter and the all-night parking repealer of Mr. Hayes will be considered Thursday by the city council committee on traffic regulation.

BOREALIS LIGHTS UP NIGHT SKIES; DISRUPTS WIRES

A brilliant aurora borealis illuminated the skies last night, disturbing radio, telegraph and cable services. The interference reached its peak early in the evening and diminished towards midnight.

Prof. Edwin B. Frost of the Yerkes observatory at Lake Geneva, Wis., described the display as unusually brilliant. Its pulsations, or streaks of greenish blue and yellow flame, covered the northern half of the sky from east to west horizons and overhead and at times reached almost to the southern horizon.

"Aurora borealis displays are most numerous when sun spots are most numerous," he said. "The time of the year is no relation. There has been a large spot on the sun and we believe that this display is due to the sun spot."

Firemen Hurt Battling Blaze on Wabash Av.

Two firemen were probably fatally injured early this morning when fire swept the three story vacant building occupied years ago by the Kohlsaat Bakery company at 1701-21 South Wabash avenue. The flames had gained great headway when the first alarm took firemen to the scene, and immediately a 4-11 and several special alarms were sounded, bringing apparatus from all parts of the city to the blaze.

The injured firemen are Edward O'Neill and Raymond Burke of Engine Company 17. They were fighting the fire at the rear of the building when the heat melted an electric wire which fell upon them. They were almost electrocuted. They were rushed to St. Luke's hospital, where they are under the care of Dr. Harold Sullivan, chief surgeon of the fire department.

Visible for Miles.

The flames from the burning structure shot hundreds of feet into the air, and the fire was visible for miles. Sparks flew for blocks and imperiled numerous other buildings. Firemen were stationed on roofs for blocks around to prevent other fires. At 1722 South Michigan avenue, however, the roof ignited and the firemen had a spirited battle there to prevent the entire structure being burned.

At 1639 South Wabash avenue, next door to the burning building, is the McKillop dog and cat hospital. It was supposed by firemen and police that numerous pets were kept there, and it was feared all would perish from the intense heat.

Saturated with Gasoline.

Marshal Corrigan said the fire was incendiary. He declared the building had been thoroughly soaked with gasoline from the basement to the top floor. So intense was the heat that it broke windows a block away and it was necessary for the firemen to cover their apparatus to prevent scorching off the paint.

TAKEN FOR RIDE; BODY TOSSED ON COUNTRY ROAD

An unidentified man was taken for a ride early this morning and thrown dead onto the pavement of Torrence avenue at 139th street, in Burnham. He had been shot at least three times in the back and once in the mouth. No witnesses heard the shots nor saw the body thrown to the pavement.

Homewood county highway police said the victim was about 25 or 27 years old, 5 feet 6 inches tall, and dark. He might have been a Mexican, they said. In his hat was a New York store trademark. His pockets were empty of identifying marks save for a photograph of a woman and a child.

E. B. Shaw Is Killed in Fall on Gold Coast

E Bogardus Shaw, retired broker, brother of Walden W. Shaw, one of the founders of the Yellow Cab company, was killed yesterday afternoon in a fall from the fire escape landing of his thirteenth floor apartment at 1120 Lake Shore drive.

The police were informed that Mr. Shaw, who was 66 years old, had been in ill health and had been having financial troubles. He was in good spirits, however, at noon and ate, as usual, a hearty meal, according to his widow, Mrs. Charlotte Shaw, and the maid, Aileen O'Malley.

The maid told Lieut. Patrick B. O'Connell that Mr. Shaw retired to his bedroom about 2:45 p. m., after finishing his dinner, for his customary Sunday afternoon rest.

Body Found by Janitor.

About fifteen minutes later the janitor of the apartment building, Peter Braun, heard a crash and went out into the narrow areaway south of the building. There he found Mr. Shaw dead. Whether the bed had been used could not be determined from its condition, but Mr. Shaw was clad in his pajamas when he fell.

Mrs. Shaw was prostrated when informed of her husband's death, and remained in her bedroom, where she had been resting. She managed to tell Lieut. O'Connell, however, that Mr. Shaw retired from the brokerage business about two years ago because of his failing health. He was subject to attacks of vertigo, she said, as one result of his illness.

Mrs. Shaw said her husband's stock holdings had greatly depreciated in value and that he had endeavored to dispose of their duplex cooperative apartment. Walden Shaw, who is in Pasadena, Cal., had assisted him with loans, according to the widow.

Habit to Take Air on Landing.

The janitor said it was a habit of Mr. Shaw to walk out onto the fire escape landing for air before retiring and that yesterday morning he had spent some time sitting there.

The police said it was possible that he had been seized with an attack of vertigo and had fallen over the railing of the landing.

In the '90s and the early part of this century Mr. Shaw was known as one of Chicago's social leaders and men about town.

An automobile specially designed and manufactured for Mr. Shaw in Paris in 1903 was one of the marvels of Chicago in that day with its high back seat and high white awning top. Society folk gasped as "Ebey" Shaw and his wife talked of making an 8,000 mile tour in the machine.

Friend Tells of Travels.

William J. Bowe, an attorney, a close friend of Mr. Shaw, who lives in the same apartment building, said the retired broker had done much traveling in Europe and this country in the last two years despite his declining health. His last trip was to Pasadena, whence he returned to Chicago about a month ago.

He retained his membership on the Chicago Stock exchange, although he gave up his brokerage business two yeas ago. Walden Shaw, though one of the founders of the Yellow Cab company, has not been connected with its management for several years.

Besides his widow and brother, Mr. Shaw is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Betty Ann Kroeck, the wife of Joseph Kroeck. They were notified at Diamond lake, Michigan, where they had gone for the holidays.

WOMAN WATCHES FOR BURGLARS; SHOOTS AT TWO

Morris Pritikin, 5017 South Ashland avenue, and his family went out visiting last night. They asked Mrs. Clara Fisher, who lives next door, at 5015, if she would watch the house.

Mrs. Fisher said it would be no trouble. Late in the evening she saw a light in the Pritikin home. Two prowlers were walking around inside. So she got her husband's pistol, stationed herself on the rear porch of her own home, and waited for the thieves to emerge.

When they started to leave she emptied the pistol at them. She remarked afterwards that one of the pair staggered as if he had been struck. Mr. Pritikin lost $110 and a gold watch.

ARREST HARVARD CREW CAPTAIN; DRUNK, CHARGE

Cambridge, Mass., May 29.—[Special.]—Thomas E. Armstrong, captain of the Harvard crew, was arrested on a charge of drunkenness early this morning and it may cost him his place as leader of the Harvard varsity eight which is scheduled to meet Yale at New London June 24.

Armstrong was one of a number of students who engaged in a fight with a Cambridge group of young men known as the Kelly Corner boys early this morning.

HOOVER DROPS HIS HOLIDAY TO CALL LEADERS

Congress Waits for New Appeal.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 29.—[Special.]—With action on the sales tax, the entire billion dollar revenue bill, the 300 million dollar economy program and the two billion dollar relief schemes at hand, President Hoover cut short his holiday on the Rapidan and returned to Washington tonight.

Immediately after dinner the president summoned a number of Republican leaders to the White House to discuss the advisability of Mr. Hoover exerting his influence for the adoption of the sales tax amendment either in a special message to congress or in a public statement.

Men Who Took Park.

The leaders who responded to the call were Vice President Curtis, Senator James E. Watson [Ind.], Republican leader of the senate; Senator Charles L. McNary [Ore.], assistant Republican leader; Senator Reed Smoot [Utah], chairman of the finance committee; Senator George H. Moses, president pro tem of the senate; Senator David A. Reed [Pa.], chief Republican proponent of the sales tax; Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills; Undersecretary of the Treasury Arthur A. Ballantine, and George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

When the conference broke up, shortly after 11 p. m., it was learned that no decision had been reached as to the exact course the President is to pursue. Senators emerging from the White House brushed reporters aside, saying that Secretary Mills had been authorized to make a statement. When Mr. Mills finally came out he denied that he had been authorized to make any statement and all he would vouchsafe was that the "entire situation relating to the tax bill was thoroughly discussed."

Mr. Hoover is known to feel that a moderate sales tax is essential as a temporary measure to the balancing of the budget, and Republican leaders of the senate think that if he were to apply vigorous pressure enough votes could be mustered to insure the adoption of the Walsh amendment providing for a 1.75 per cent tax.

Pressed to Be Aggressive.

The President has been urged by Republican leaders in and out of congress to assume an aggressive leadership, not only to procure adoption of the sales tax but to expedite passage of the tax bill, the delay on which by prolonging uncertainty is having a damaging effect on the business situation. There has been a good deal of under cover criticism of the President among Republicans in congress for his failure up to date to take a strong stand on the sales tax and other controversial features of the revenue measure.

Republicans have been heard to complain that had the President come out for the sales tax in the first place his attitude would have produced enough Republican votes in the house to have kept the provision in the bill. Now that such Republican members have committed themselves, however, it becomes more difficult for even the President to procure a reversal of their attitude.

Consider Sales Tax Today.

Senator David Reed reiterated tonight his assertion that there are enough votes in sight to put the sales tax through the senate. At the same time Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], asserted that fifty senators have now signed the round robin against the sales tax, which would be a sufficient number to prevent adoption of the amendment. The senate will resume consideration of the amendment tomorrow.

Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], author of the pending amendment, pointed out that the 300 millions of excise taxes already voted into the bill are in reality sales taxes.

"In my judgment," he added, "a general excise tax excluding the necessities of life, imposed at a very low rate, is infinitely preferable to a host of special excise taxes at high rates. It is preferable from the standpoint of the treasury, from the standpoint of business and industry and, above all, preferable from the standpoint of the consumer. Indeed, it seems to me to be the only fair method to impose an excise tax.

Thinks House Will Reconsider.

"As for the question of the house acceptance of the bill carrying a general manufacturers' excise tax, I can only say that if the senate will have the courage and capacity to adopt it, then, in view of the awakened public opinion and the better understanding of this question both in and out of congress than was the case two months ago, I am confident that the house will now be willing to accept it. Many house members who voted to reject the recommendation of the house ways and means committee for a general manufacturers' excise tax failed to fully appreciate the alternative; they failed to realize that, so far as excise taxes were concerned, they were jumping from the frying pan into the fire."

The Garner depression relief bill is to be taken up for hearings by the ways and means committee on Tuesday and is slated for submission to the house the latter part of the week. The hearings will be the scene of a battle between the Hoover administration and the Democrats over the provision for the construction of more than 1 billion dollars' worth of federal public buildings, waterways and roads.

Rainey Criticises President.

Comparing Mr. Hoover's advocacy of a 1 billion dollar public works program in his acceptance speech with his condemnation of the similar proposal in the Garner bill, Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, Democratic leader of the house, commented bitingly tonight on what he called the "vacillating leadership" of the President.

"I am unable to understand," said Mr. Rainey, "the processes of reasoning by which the President reaches the conclusion that the programs of public improvements he advocated a short time ago as a relief for unemployment now becomes 'pork barrel' legislation.

"We have tried to coöperate with the President in his supposed plans for a restoration of normal conditions. The country has been accustomed to strong leadership from the White House, not the vacillating leadership we are getting now.

"From now on we propose to insist that the President coöperate with us in our program and if he fails to do it and our program is defeated on account of his opposition to it, we propose to place the responsibility where it belongs, directly on the President of the United States and his vacillating, incompetent leadership.

"Ignores Illinois G. O. P."

"While the President was preparing his press release, completely reversing himself, the Illinois Republican state convention was in session and formulated a platform for all the Republicans in Illinois. The platform announces, according to the press, that the Republican party in Illinois favors the expenditure of five billion dollars by the federal government for public improvements, such as roads, public buildings, rivers and harbors.

"The President's declaration is not at all in harmony with the platform declaration just made by the Republican party in Illinois. What the President regards as 'pork barrel' legislation the Republican party in Illinois regards as necessary measures for relief of unemployment."

Speaker Garner was still smarting today from the President's excoriation of his relief bill.

Garner Hits Back.

"Considering that among the projects to be financed are four or five hundred million dollars worth of improvements and construction of which he has himself approved and which are all to be found in the budget messages he has submitted to congress, it is rather difficult for me to see how, if these are 'pork barrel' projects now, they were anything else when he sent them to congress with a request for appropriations to complete them," Mr. Garner said.

"All of us must recall that early in the depression era the President called together various large employers of labor and heads of great corporations and sought to pledge them to go ahead with all their construction plans formulated during a period of great prosperity. The obvious thought was that if they did this unemployment would decrease and much good would result. Some of these captains of industry went broke in fulfilling this pledge. It would seem that the pledge was equally binding on the United States as represented by its chief executive. The road construction and public program had been formulated in a time when the government's income was large, but what position does it leave the President in to default on exactly the same arrangement to which he committed those with whom he consulted?"

GUEST IN LOOP HOTEL SHOOTS SELF TO DEATH

Charles Balder, 48 years old, of Cleveland, an organ maker, shot and killed himself yesterday in his room on the sixteenth floor of the Fort Dearborn hotel. He had registered Friday as Harold W. Bolder.

A maid found him dead last night. He had shot himself once in the head after missing with two bullets. Identity was established through papers in his pockets and a telephone number in Cleveland which he left on the dresser.

Mrs. Hilda Balder of 2603 Aust avenue, Cleveland, told police that they had not lived together for two years and that she had divorced him a year ago for nonsupport. He had been unemployed for nearly a year, she said. She last heard of him last Monday when she received his trunk from Chicago. No explanation accompanied it.

Woman, 70, Lost on Way to Church; Hunt Relatives

Marquette police were trying last night to find relatives of a 70 year old woman who became lost earlier at Ashland boulevard and Harrison street while on her way to church. She gave her name as Mrs. Shavers, but could not remember her home address. Desk Sergeant Timothy Line sent her to the woman's annex at the North Racine avenue station.

DELEGATE FIGHT IN BOTH PARTIES DRAWS TO CLOSE

Democrats Must Pick 122 More, G. O. P. 42.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—All but 122 Democratic national convention delegates have been chosen. The Republicans have yet to select only forty-two. Each convention will have 1,154 full voting delegates.

With 770 necessary to nominate by the Democrats, the 1,032 chosen thus far are divided as follows:

Roosevelt instructed, pledged and claimed	494

CRUSADERS PLAN PARADES BY AIR, LAND AND WATER

G. O. P. Group to Aid in Demonstrations.

Parades in the air, on the water, and on the ground are planned by the Crusaders, an organization of young business men favoring prohibition repeal, and the Republican citizens' committee against national prohibition, on Sunday and Monday, June 12 and 13, it was announced yesterday.

MAJ. SCHROEDER.

The parades will constitute a demonstration for prohibition repeal on the eve of the Republican national convention, which will open on Tuesday, June 14, at the Chicago Stadium.

300 Planes to Parade.

The organizations expect to have 300 planes in the air parade along Chicago's water front on Sunday afternoon. The parade will be arranged by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, former world's altitude record holder and president of the Sky Harbor Flying club, who was in charge of a similar parade for the charity air show last Nov. 8.

Maj. Schroeder has invited Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, through Ambassador Edge at Paris, to participate in the pageant. Many other famous pilots, including Charles S. [Casey] Jones, Maj. James H. Doolittle, Clarence Chamberlin, Ruth Nichols, and Harold Pitcairn, also have been invited to participate.

Water Craft to Parade.

The planes will pass in review over the Navy pier, Maj. Schroeder said. Following the air parade, there will be a parade of water craft past the pier led by Commander Eugene McDonald's yacht Mispah. During the afternoon there will be a massmeeting in the pier convention hall under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor.

Monday at 6 p. m. the third parade of vehicles, on the ground, will start at Michigan avenue and Wacker drive. The column will proceed to the Coliseum, where the two organizations will hold a massmeeting to hear speakers of national importance on the need for prohibition repeal.

MOTOR GONDOLAS TO LEND PARK LAGOONS A TOUCH OF VENICE

Jackson and Washington parks will look like Venice in the modern mode this summer with motor driven gondolas plying about the lagoons on moonlit nights. The plans were revealed yesterday by George T. Donoghue, superintendent.

G. T. DONOGHUE.

Instead of the gondolier in the stern, the south park gondolas will be propelled by battery driven electric motors, and instead of the gondolier's singing voice, each gondola will be equipped with a radio.

There will be 50 boats in the fleet, each a 15 footer. A canvas canopy will be spread over each craft, which will have a maximum capacity of six passengers.

The maximum speed of the gondola will be four miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 2 to 3 miles an hour, according to Mr. Donoghue. Customers will operate the boats.

The boats will be operated as a concession. "These boats will take the place of rowboats," said Mr. Donoghue. "We have rented rowboats at a loss for some time." Bids for the concession will be received next week.

Every night when the gondolas come in the storage batteries will be recharged. "They should be a success," Mr. Donoghue asserted. "Similar craft are popular in St. Louis, Washington and Long Beach."

14 WET STATES MAY BOLT G. O. P., CURRAN WARNS

Says Dry Plank Would Lose Election.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 29.—[Special.]—Appealing for a platform declaration in favor of the repeal of the 18th amendment, Henry Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, in a letter sent to each delegate to the Republican national convention says that if their platform is dry the Republicans will risk the loss of 14 wet states with 250 out of 531 electoral votes.

"As a consideration solely of party expediency," says Mr. Curran, "I take the liberty of calling to your attention the fact that the fourteen states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Nevada, Washington, and California are normally Republican states. They contain over half the people of the United States. They cast 250 out of 531 votes in the electoral college.

Unmistakably Wet.

"The vote of these states in the house of representatives on March 14 on the question of consideration of the Beck resolution for submission of repeal was 143 for the resolution to 58 against it. Every one of these states gave a majority for the resolution in that vote in the house of representatives.

"The Literary Digest poll showed 2,205,542 votes for repeal in these 14 states against 583,055 votes against repeal.

"Of these 14 states eight have officially, by legislature or referendum, condemned the eighteenth amendment, these eight states being Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Nevada.

"Of the other six states, Pennsylvania and Ohio have within the last month registered an overwhelming verdict in their Republican primaries against national prohibition, in statewide contests fought out primarily upon that issue; and Michigan, Wyoming, Washington, and California will have upon their ballots in November the question of approval or disapproval of prohibition. There is no doubt of their decision. These fourteen states are wet.

Way to Make Democrats.

"You and I will surmise that the Democratic platform will condemn national prohibition in no uncertain terms. If then you affront the deep conviction of millions of loyal Republicans in these 14 presidentially pivotal states by adopting a plank that is evasive, dilatory or anything that falls short of straight submission of straight repeal, do you think it will be strange if the wet Republicans in these states vote for the Democratic candidates, on this issue—and carry the states for the Democrats? It will be passing strange if this very thing does not happen. Good Republicans

WANT CRIMINAL COURT TO PICK ITS OWN CHIEF

Judges Hold Revision of System Is Needed.

The chief justice of the Criminal court will be selected only by the judges assigned to the Criminal court, instead of by all the judges of the Superior and Circuit courts, if a movement recently initiated by some of the present Criminal court judges goes into effect. The plan, it was learned yesterday, is a result of the recent state Supreme court ruling in regard to the special grand jury impaneled by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg.

JUDGE JOHN PRYSTALSKI.

The reviewing court held that only judges duly assigned to the Criminal court had power to act in Criminal court matters.

Parties Seek Justiceship.

For nearly half a century the powerful office of chief justice of the Criminal court has been doled out through a "gentlemen's agreement" of the judges under which it is alternated each year between the Circuit and Superior courts. Usually the honorary position has been given to a judge who is most likely to need publicity in his campaign for reëlection, it is said.

In recent years the chief justiceship of the Criminal court has been a prize much sought by the party leaders. The chief justice has control of the grand jury as well as the assignment of cases.

The power of a regular grand jury or a special grand jury just before or after election time has come to be recognized by party leaders as an important adjunct to carrying on a campaign.

To Select Chief Justice.

After the Criminal court judges are designated they will select one of their number for chief justice, under the new plan. No provision has been suggested, it is said, to alternate the honorary office between the two courts and the members of the two political parties.

A new chief justice for the court is to be selected in June. Judge John Prystalski, now a Criminal court judge, is said to be the favorite among his associates to succeed Chief Justice Harry Fisher, whose term expires on Labor day.

END DANDRUFF— ITCHY SCALP— FALLING HAIR

EIGHTY-FIVE per cent of all cases of hair loss result from two causes—(1) lack of nourishment for the growing hair and (2) local scalp disorders.

Both of these causes of baldness can be eliminated by Thomas treatment. It stimulates the dormant sources of nourishment (increases the blood supply in the scalp) and overcomes abnormal scalp conditions, such as dandruff.

If you have any of these aggravating symptoms of approaching baldness—dry or oily hair, itchy scalp, falling hair, or thin hair—consult a Thomas specialist today. No charge will be made for the consultation or scalp examination. He'll show you how Thomas treatment is ending dandruff, stopping hair fall, and growing hair for thousands of others, and how it can produce the same results for you.

ALL TAXES DUE ON WEDNESDAY; ONLY 42% PAID

Situation Is Serious, Says County Treasurer.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Less than 42 per cent of Cook county's $290,284,505 tax bill for 1930 has been paid, and only three more days remain before the penalty date, Wednesday. The property owners have turned in $121,572,542, and still owe more than 168 million dollars.

J. B. McDONOUGH. [Wallace photo.]

If half of the taxes are paid, by penalty date, $23,549,000 will have to be collected by Wednesday night, June 1, whereas only $19,574,000 has been collected in the last month. County Treasurer McDonough hopes that the collections will reach 135 million dollars, or about 46.5 per cent of the total taxes levied; but he really expects only 130 million dollars, or about 45 per cent. So probably between 155 million and 160 million dollars of taxes will remain unpaid on June 2.

Finds Situation Serious.

"Few appreciate how extremely serious the situation is," said Treasurer McDonough yesterday as he glanced over the statistics prepared by his accountants. "The local governments have made their budgets and spent on the assumption they would obtain as revenue 90 per cent of the 290 million dollars tax bill for 1930. In a word they have spent 260 million dollars of the 1930 taxes, while probably less than 135 million dollars will be paid. It is impossible for that to continue.

"Taxes are too high, especially on the home owners. In my part of the city the taxes on the poor home owners are not only burdensome, but unbearable. Thousands of them haven't the money with which to pay. While I have nothing whatever to do with the assessing of taxes and am in no way responsible for the tax bills, some real constructive effort must be put forth to meet the present situation.

No Means of Collection.

"Surely every one is close enough to the buzz-saw now to see it. Between $155,000,000 and $160,000,000 in taxes will still be unpaid when the penalty date arrives. There is no effective way available at present for the collection of such a sum."

The following table, prepared by the treasurer, who is also county collector, shows the amount of 1930 taxes levied, the amount collected and the percentage of collection for each of the three classes of property:

Property—	Levied.	Paid.	Pct. paid.
Real estate.	$221,452,989	$86,553,511	39.08
Personal ..	55,492,239	26,399,778	47.8
Railroad ..	13,340,177	8,619,452	64.6
Totals ..	$290,284,505	$121,572,541	41.88

In order to accommodate the public, the collector's office will be open today, a legal holiday, as it was on St. Patrick's day, Good Friday and primary election day.

The Facts vs. Theory.

Until comparatively recently relatively few office holders or influential politicians have recognized that there is a limit beyond which the people cannot pay taxes. They assumed that because the property owners of Cook county paid $200,836,000 of taxes in 1928—for 1927—the people could and would pay a tax bill of $260,544,000 last year—for 1929—and a bill of $290,284,000 this year for 1930.

The facts have not borne out this theory. Of the 1928 tax bill, totaling $219,574,000, the property owners paid $181,414,000, which is $19,422,000 less than was paid on the previous year's taxes. On the 1929 tax bill of $260,544,000 the property owners paid $178,433,000—$2,981,000 less than was paid in the previous year. On the 1930 tax bill of $290,284,000, the property owners have paid $121,572,000, which is $56,861,000 less than was paid on the previous year's taxes.

These figures indicate that the ability of the people to pay taxes has been decreased substantially.

View of Judge Jarecki.

County Judge Jarecki emphasized the view of Treasurer McDonough that the situation is serious. The judge was asked his view of Mayor Cermak's request for a moratorium on the taxes of school teachers.

"I thing that the teachers should not be penalized because they have been unable to get salaries with which to pay their taxes," said Judge Jarecki, "but the law does not permit me to remit more than half the penalty and then only when objection has been filed to the taxes in good faith.

"There are many besides the teachers who are unable to pay their taxes because of the lack of income. I think that most of the delinquent taxes are unpaid because the people haven't the money. I suggest that the mayor prevail upon the legislature to aid every one who is in distress over his taxes.

How About the Others?

"I have dozens of letters on my desk from small property owners who have not worked for months, a year or two years, and unable to pay their taxes. Why shouldn't they be given consideration, too?

"Something must be done. As Mr. McDonough says, there is no effective way of collecting $155,000,000 or $160,000,000 in delinquent taxes.

"Suppose it is offered for sale for taxes. Who will put up that much money to pay the delinquent taxes? If property on which there is $155,000,000 due in taxes is forfeited to the state because of no tax buyers, then that property is taken out of taxation for the next year. The situation is full of peril for the local governments."

COUNTY TO DEFAULT ON $907,015 BOND ISSUE ON WEDNESDAY

Cook county will default on half of a $1,814,030 bond issue and accrued interest which falls due next Wednesday, June 1, it was announced yesterday by County Treasurer McDonough, who said the county will have funds to retire only $907,015 worth of the securities.

M. J. O'CONNOR.

Even to pay off this amount of the indebtedness the treasurer has been forced to advance funds which he hopes taxpayers will supply with the final payment of 1930 tax bills before the delinquency date, which falls on June 1.

Meanwhile it was learned that the county's negotiations with loop bankers for the sale of $5,000,000 worth of 1932 tax warrants have fallen through. The negotiations were started several weeks ago. The bankers are reported to have told Assistant Controller M. J. O'Connor, who was the county's representative, that they were not impressed by the county's economy gestures.

In April the county defaulted on $34,800 of bonds and interest and in May another $350,000 in bonds and $67,500 in interest went into default. Wednesday's default will bring the total for the first five months of 1932 to $1,359,565. The bonds on which the county defaulted in April bear 4½ per cent interest and the remainder of the issues 4 per cent.

SEIZE WOMAN AND ROOMER IN POLICE KILLING

Mrs. Adrianna Terfier, 1349 West Van Buren street, and Allanson D. Cook, a roomer in her flat, were arrested yesterday by police of the "Scotland Yard" detail as accessories to the murder of Policeman James Caplis, who was slain last December in the holdup of the Beachview Gardens on Wilson avenue.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said the robbery was planned in Mrs. Terfier's apartment, and that she, Cook and Mrs. Frank Freeman, wife of one of the killers, listened to police radio reports of the holdup and murder before the gang returned there. Freeman and his companions are in prison.

Mrs. Terfier also was charged with receiving stolen property. Police found that parts taken from the stolen automobile used by the gang which killed Caplis had been removed and placed on her automobile.

STRAYER TO GIVE FULL REPORT ON SCHOOLS JUNE 1

Will Appear at Special Meeting of Board.

Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia university and seven members of his staff will appear at a special meeting of the board of education on Wednesday to present a detailed report on Chicago's public school system. In a preliminary report on May 9, Dr. Strayer recommended a reduction of $15,603,505 in the school board budget on a yearly basis.

DR. G. D. STRAYER

President Lewis E. Myers of the school board called the special meeting upon receipt of a telegram from Dr. Strayer that the latter would be ready to submit his detailed findings on Wednesday. These findings will be embodied in ten volumes.

Would Mean Budget Cut.

If Dr. Strayer's report is adopted in full the board's budget for 1932 will be reduced from $90,180,263 [the present figure] to $74,576,758. When he appeared before the board earlier in the month Dr. Strayer classed $3,846,419 of the proposed cut as savings and the remaining $11,757,086 as deferred or postponed expenses.

If the revenue is not sufficient to operate the schools under his plan, Dr. Strayer recommended that the schools be closed.

"This will teach the people what they are getting in their public school system," he said, "and is the only way to bring those groups who refuse to pay their taxes to the point where they will pay."

The following table is a summary of Dr. Strayer's recommended cuts:

Instruction	$ 561,000
Operation of plant	1,778,741
Maintenance of plant	1,650,000
Administration	331,639
Auxiliary agencies	128,039
Capital outlay	11,757,086
Total	$15,603,505

The reductions in the capital outlay item include: Permanent improvements, $250,000; new buildings, $10,607,086; new sites, $500,000, and bureau of architecture, $400,000.

Will Meet in New Room.

Wednesday's meeting will be held in the board's new meeting room in the Builders' building, 228 North La Salle street. The board room is two stories high, with a skylight dome and and space for an audience of 300.

Dr. Strayer will speak at a dinner at the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday night. On the following day he will address the City club forum at noon. Other engagements include: Teachers' massmeeting at the Auditorium theater June 6, Cook County League of Women Voters at 225 North Michigan avenue at 1 p. m., June 7, and the Austin Parent-Teacher association at the Irving Park Presbyterian church at 3 p. m. on the same date.

MEXICO ORDERS 30 PLANES IN MOVE TO DEVELOP AVIATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, May 29.—The Mexican government has ordered thirty airplanes of a light cruising type for the army's aviation department. They are to be of the latest American design and will cost $8,000 each. The planes will be used for training aviators now in the army and new aviation students.

The army intends to train students for military service and also to prepare them for positions with commercial aviation lines now operating in Mexico.

The government proposes to encourage civil aviation as an effective means of communication between the great stretches of mountainous country and other centers of the republic. Airplanes are now carrying mail to hundreds of pueblos that not so long ago had postal communication only weekly or biweekly. Mexican air lines in operation have increased fivefold in extent in four years.

RECONCILIATION IS PROPOSED BY CAPTAIN GROSS

Capt. Christian C. Gross, American diplomat whose marital difficulties with Mrs. Virginia Harrison Gross, daughter of the former governor general of the Philippines, have been fought out in courts in Chicago, New York and France, now seeks a reconciliation with Mrs. Gross.

Capt. Gross won a divorce in Chicago in 1930, and later succeeded in having the decree amended to acknowledge as his child a daughter, Anna, born to Mrs. Gross in 1928. The latter ruling recently was reversed by the Appellate court, however, which ruled that Judge Joseph B. David had no jurisdiction.

Yesterday Capt. Gross telegraphed his attorney, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., proposing a reconciliation with his former wife in order to reunite their children. Capt. Gross has the two older children while Mrs. Gross is in France with Anna.

Attorney Cantwell notified Attorney Thomas Hart Fisher, who agreed to refer the proposal to his client, Mrs. Gross. Attorney Cantwell said that if the reconciliation is not effected he will seek a review of the divorce case as suggested by the Appellate court in order to establish the legitimacy of Anna.

JAPANESE TAKE TOWN; PURSUE CHINESE REBELS

HARBIN, Manchuria, May 30 [Monday].—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Teizo Higara's Japanese brigade occupied Suihua today and opened a new offensive against Chinese insurgents retreating toward Haulin, the correspondent of the Rengo [Japanese] News agency reported.

Another portion of the Japanese 14th division, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Naosuke Matsuki, occupied Chaotung, fifty-five miles west of Harbin, after dispersing 2,000 followers of Gen. Li Hai-tsing, who left 200 dead.

The insurgents driven toward Hailun were described as followers of Gen. Ma Chan-shan, who, like Gen. Li, is opposing the new Japanese supported Manchuria régime of Henry Pu-yi.

CRASH HURLS CAR ONTO SIDEWALK; PEDESTRIAN DIES

Companion Seriously Hurt in West Side Collision.

A pedestrian was killed and his companion injured yesterday at Central avenue and Jackson boulevard when two automobiles collided and one of them was hurled over the curb.

Carl Aarseth, 20 years old, of 5559 West Adams street, received a fracture of the skull which caused his death at the Frances Willard hospital. His companion, Jay Thorer, 5331 West Jackson boulevard, with whom he was talking when the cars collided, was taken to the hospital with cuts and bruises.

Both Drivers Arrested.

The drivers of the two cars, Charles Foranto, 25 years old, 2339 Lexington avenue, and Willard Huran, 22 years old, 3024 Walnut street, each accused the other of having driven through a red traffic light. Both were arrested by Fillmore street police.

Aarseth was an instructor in drum playing to a number of students at Austin High school, from which he was graduated two years ago.

His death and three others raised the 1932 automobile death toll in Cook county to 446. The victims:

Miss Lillian Kitchberger, 23 years old, 2655 South Harding avenue, was fatally injured yesterday morning when the automobile driven by her father, Frank, collided with a truck in Cicero avenue at 126th street.

Bernard A. Madsen, 47 years old, 2435 North Tripp avenue, was killed when his automobile struck rough pavement early yesterday in Wellington avenue near Meade avenue, and overturned. Miss Ruth Manley, 3504 West North avenue, a department store detective who was riding with him, was injured.

Unidentified man, about 70 years old. Killed at 29th street and Indiana avenue. William Lusker, 2818 Calumet avenue, a Negro, driver of the car, was held by police.

Philip Bloom, 7 years old, was fatally injured yesterday in a collision on the Green Bay road west of Winthrop Harbor, in Lake county. The boy, who died at the Kenosha hospital, was riding with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Bloom, 3448 West 13th place, in the car of Leonard Foreman, of the same address.

A tire on Foreman's car blew out, throwing it into the opposite traffic lane, where it struck the car of Walter Markowski, 725 University avenue, Madison, Wis. The four adults received minor injuries.

Stall on Crossing; Two Die.

Two men were killed early last evening when the automobile in which they were riding stalled on the Pennsylvania railroad crossing on state highway No. 66, four miles southeast of Gary. They were struck by an eastbound passenger train. The victims were Garfield Williams, 35 years old, 529 Adams street, Gary, and Joseph Gier, 42 years old, of Hobart.

With Williams and Gier were Louis Zimmerman and Miss Anna Vitka, of Gary, who saved their lives by jumping. The men who were killed delayed a second or two longer in an effort to start the car.

William Haddox, 17 years old, 2017 Wilson avenue, Louisville, Ky., died last night in East Chicago of injuries suffered late Saturday night in an accident on state road No. 6, south of Hammond. The car in which Haddox was riding overturned after a collision. Benjamin Fox and Howard Sullivan, both of Louisville, were seriously injured.

Highway Traffic Light.

Despite the fact that the Memorial day holiday today follows a Sunday, there were not enough week-end parties driving away from Chicago to congest traffic, county highway police reported. They said that the traffic was the lightest they could remember on a Sunday preceding a holiday. The pleasant weather resulted in congested boulevards inside Chicago, however.

One of the few jams on the rural highways occurred on Halsted street near 134th street, in Riverdale, where traffic has to pass over a detour bridge.

RESTING

After the grueling two days on the witness stand last week Mayor James J. Walker decided he needed a restful week-end and he is shown getting it at the Atlantic Beach club, Long Beach, L. I.

SEABURY PLANS TO END WALKER QUIZ THIS WEEK

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—Samuel Seabury, counsel of the Hofstadter legislative committee, expects to complete his investigation of Mayor James J. Walker within the next two days.

Indications are that the investigation, so far as it relates to Mayor Walker's affairs, will be finished this week and that ouster charges against the mayor will be filed with Governor F. D. Roosevelt next week. Friends of the governor, friends of the mayor and members of the committee all regard the filing of charges as certain. They do not believe that there will be sufficient time for the governor to take action on them, either by dismissal of the charges or by removal of the mayor before the Democratic national convention convenes at Chicago on June 27.

INSURANCE AGENT ENDS LIFE.

The body of Joseph J. Palekas, 35 years old, 5044 South Mozart street, an insurance agent, was found in a forest preserve at 91st street and Keane avenue yesterday. He had been shot in the head. A revolver was found near his body. His widow, Barbara, said she knew no reason for suicide.

Polish Reds Accused of Using Cats to Aid Moscow

WARSAW, Poland, May 29.—(AP)—The police of Warsaw accused communists today of using cats and dogs to spread their propaganda by tying handbills to the animals' necks, legs and tails. They said they had found scores of frightened animals which had been treated thus, running through the streets and public gardens.

Five Bandits Line Up Group of Twenty-five; Rob Them

Birmingham, Ala., May 29.—(AP)—Twenty-five persons, two of whom were shot, were lined up against the wall of a rural store near Leeds, Ala., and robbed today by a bandit gang of five, who previously had abducted a Birmingham real estate man and stolen his automobile. West Point, N. Y., May 29.—[Special.]—Ten young men from Chicago and its suburbs are members of the class of 262 cadets who will graduate from the United States Military academy June 10. They will be commissioned second lieutenants in the regular army. They are:

James F. Thompson Jr., son of James F. Thompson, 1363 East 52d street.

Aaron M. Lazar, son of Ellie Lazar, 3709 Lexington street.

Milton Leonard Ogden, son of F. L. Ogden, 4152 Gladys avenue.

Keith Allen Thompson, son of Mrs. J. H. Thompson, 5119 West 23d place.

William Henry Mikkelsen, son of A. C. Mikkelsen, 3526 Le Moyne street.

Dwight B. Johnson, son of Edward Johnson, 5038 North Ashland avenue.

Erskine Clark, son of Lieut. Col. Thomas A. Clark, 5541 Everett avenue.

Howard R. Martindell, son of Mrs. Luella McNamara, 247 South State street, Elgin.

Irving Donald Roth, son of Charles E. Roth, 1313 Grove avenue, Berwyn.

John William Bowen, son of Maj. Burton E. Bowen, 915 Ontario street, Oak Park.

Ask Air Corps Assignments.

James F. Thompson, Clark, Martindell, and Bowen have all requested a detail to the air corps for a year of instruction in aviation. Next fall the war department will order them to the air corps training center, where, after completing the course and winning their wings as pilots, they will be transferred to the aerial branch of the army. Pending completion of this training, Thompson, Clark, and Bowen will be commissioned in the infantry, while Martindell will be commissioned in the coast artillery.

Branches of service selected by other cadets in this group are: Keith A. Thompson, infantry; Mikkelsen, field artillery; Johnson, Roth, Lazar, and Ogden, coast artillery.

James F. Thompson is a graduate of Hyde Park High school. Thompson will graduate as one of the senior lieutenants in the corps, having been promoted to that rank last June, and designated as second in command of Company "A." He also stands high academically and will be among the first 50 in his class.

Came from Ranks.

Roth, who will also graduate a cadet lieutenant, won his appointment to the military academy from the ranks of the regular army. Roth took a competitive examination restricted to "regulars" and won the appointment. He is a qualified rifle shot, and last year did considerable instructing in that arm.

Ogden was a student at Crane Technical High school when appointed. He is a cadet 1st sergeant, and for the last year has been in charge of administration details of his company.

While a freshman at Northwestern Dwight B. Johnson received his appointment. Johnson is a cadet supply sergeant, expert rifle shot, member of the cadet choir, and as manager of the army gym team won a letter. He is also carillonneur in the cadet chapel.

Appointed from National Guard.

Lazar, while a junior at the Chicago Kent College of Law, won his appointment from the ranks of the Illinois National Guard, where he was a private in the 122d field artillery. Lazar is a cadet supply sergeant, and will graduate in the upper half of his class.

William H. Mikkelsen received his appointment on graduating from Lane Technical High school. He is a cadet sergeant.

Keith Thompson is also a cadet sergeant, a rifle sharpshooter, and for a year was on the army pistol squad. He is a member of the Catholic choir and teacher in the Post Sunday school.

Erskine Clark, whose father, Lieut. Col. T. A. Clark, is a regular army officer on duty at the 6th corps area headquarters, Chicago, is a qualified rifle shot.

Martindell, a graduate of the Elgin High school, served in the ranks of the regular army at the air corps technical school, Chanute field, and, like Roth, won his appointment as the result of a competitive examination. Martindell will graduate among the first 50 of his class, and is a cadet sergeant.

John W. Bowen is also the son of a regular army officer, his father, Maj. Burton E. Bowen, being on duty as C. M. T. C. officer at army headquarters in Chicago. Bowen is a cadet sergeant, a rifle sharpshooter, and for a year was on the army football squad.

COL. M'CORMICK HOST TO FIRST DIVISION VETS

Reunion Held on Cantigny Farm.

Former officers and men of the First division, A. E. F., held their annual picnic and reunion yesterday on Cantigny farm near Wheaton, where they were the guests of Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE.

Col. McCormick commanded the Sixth field artillery, one of the regular army units which made up the division. His farm is named for one of the battles in which the regiment fought.

150 Veterans Attend.

There were about 150 veterans of the division present. They were addressed by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area. Gen. Parker was commander of the Eighteenth infantry during the heavy fighting of the summer of 1918. He was later promoted to the command of a brigade and of the First division itself in the final campaign of the war.

He recalled some of his experiences in France during the war, and invited those present to be his guests at the military show to be held next month in Soldiers' Field.

Col. McCormick received his guests, some of whom had traveled from the Pacific coast to attend the reunion. He was presented with a letter signed by all of those present, expressing appreciation of his hospitality.

Hear Own Radio Program.

The guests were taken on an inspection tour of the farm and shown its pure bred cattle and horses. They ate a barbecue luncheon in the picnic grove on the farm. A special program dedicated to the veterans of the division was broadcast by station W-G-N and received in the grove during the luncheon.

Later in the afternoon there was a baseball game, with the artillery arrayed against the infantry. There was some doubt as to the final score, but in the third inning it stood 25 to 24, with each side claiming the one run lead.

'YELLOW KID' WEIL TELLS A JOKE AND MEETS CREDITOR

Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil, veteran confidence man, entertained a crowd of witnesses and met a creditor yesterday at the detective bureau showup. He appeared with his partner, Fred Buckminster, known as "The Deacon," and Mark Fisher. They were arrested Friday in Evanston and released by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker on their promise to appear at the showup.

The "Yellow Kid" was given permission to make a speech after he had been "introduced" to the showup spectators.

"I'm in the position of the maiden lady, of uncertain years, who lived with her mother," he said. "When she prayed she said she didn't want anything for herself but she asked the Lord to send her poor old mother a son-in-law. I don't want anything for myself, but if any of you folks have fat purses with you, you might share them with my good friend, the Deacon."

No one identified Weil or his companions, but as they were leaving, Weil was stopped in the hall by Julius Cohen, owner of a radio shop at 3722 West 26th street.

"Hey," demanded Cohen, "what about my $64.50?"

"What are you doing here," growled Weil. "Here, take $20 on account."

"He bought a radio from me two years ago," explained Cohen. "Every time I see in the papers that he's going to be down here for a showup, I come down and collect an installment."

82 Year Old Woman Ends Her Life in Indiana Home

Mishawaka, Ind., May 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Caroline Johnson, 82, a resident here for 30 years, took her own life by turning on jets from the kitchen stove last night.

Fears Blindness; Attacks Aged Sisters, Kills Self

Los Angeles, Cal., May 29.—(AP)—Neighbors who today entered the home of George Moss Mohr, 59 year old bond salesman, found him dead with a bullet through the head and his two aged sisters unconscious from blows with an ax. Physicians believed the sisters, Bessie, 73, and Phoebe, 76, both unmarried, to be dying. Police said a note indicated that Mohr, fearing approaching blindness would deprive the sisters of his support, attacked them as they slept and then killed himself.

6 DEAD, 29 HURT AS POLICE, REDS CLASH IN SPAIN

Soldiers Called to Squelch Strike in Four Cities.

MADRID, May 29.—(AP)—Six persons, including three bystanders, were killed today in gun fights between extremists and government forces growing out of a syndicalist strike in various Spanish cities.

Soldiers, civil guards and police used firearms to disperse demonstrators in Madrid, Valencia, Barcelona, and Seville. Four policemen and twenty-five civilians were injured. Many arrests were reported.

Stray Shots Kill 2 Women.

Two women were shot and killed on the balconies of their homes at Valencia while watching a fight between police and several hundred persons attempting to enter the silk exchange to hold a meeting.

A bystander was killed in Madrid when police charged a crowd attempting to raise a red flag in a plaza. A man and a woman watching from a balcony were shot and wounded when police broke up a communist meeting in another plaza with their pistols. Two other fatalities occurred in the capital.

A bomb was thrown into a detachment of guards who dispersed a group of extremist agitators at Valencia. One person was wounded in the explosion. General firing between civil guards and demonstrators in streets and on rooftops broke out. Before the battle was over one guard and eight demonstrators were wounded.

Crowd Fires on Barracks.

Other gun battles with casualties were reported at Seville and Bunol, resulting in the killing of a demonstrator at the latter town. In Seville a crowd fired on an infantry barracks at dawn, soldiers returning the heavy fire.

Troops at Seville were reinforced when it was learned that communists had advanced to tomorrow a general strike originally scheduled for June 3. A previous syndicalist strike was squelched May 19.

Found Shot to Death in Basement of His Home

John Schneidereit, 55 years old, was found dead of a gunshot wound in the basement of his home at 4551 North Clark street yesterday. The police said he shot himself in the right temple while despondent. Schneidereit was a newspaper circulator. His widow, Mina, told the police that he had lost $15,000 in savings in the closing of a north side bank a year ago, and had recently lost $10,000 which he had loaned to a friend.

Auditorium Hotel Being Dressed Up for '33 Fair

The Auditorium hotel, at Congress street and Michigan avenue, which was one of the city's leading hostelries at the time of the 1893 World's Fair, is being "dressed up" for the second fair in 1933. Workmen have started cleaning the grime of years from the stone exterior, and the interior of the building is to be remodeled.

Gypsy Love Battle Ends with 6 Killed, 11 Wounded

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, May 29.—(AP)—Five gypsy men and one woman were killed in a family feud over love affairs in the town of Chamelecon today. Eleven persons were wounded in the fight, which lasted three hours. Intervention by the authorities reestablished order.

HENRY FORD ON UNEMPLOYMENT

I HAVE always had to work, whether any one hired me or not. For the first forty years of my life, I was an employe. When not employed by others, I employed myself. I found very early that being out of hire was not necessarily being out of work. The first means that your employer has not found something for you to do; the second means that you are waiting until he does.

We nowadays think of work as something that others find for us to do, call us to do, and pay us to do. No doubt our industrial growth is largely responsible for that. We have accustomed men to think of work that way.

In my own case, I was able to find work for others as well as myself. Outside my family life, nothing has given me more satisfaction than to see jobs increase in number and in profit to the men who handle them. And beyond question, the jobs of the world today are more numerous and profitable in wages than they were even eighteen years ago.

But something entirely outside the workshops of the nation has affected this hired employment very seriously. The word "unemployment" has become one of the most dreadful words in the language. The condition itself has become the concern of every person in the country.

When this condition arrived, there were just three things to be done. The first, of course, was to maintain employment at the maximum by every means known to management. Employment—hire—was what the people were accustomed to; they preferred it; it was the immediate solution of the difficulty. In our plants we used every expedient to spread as much employment over as many employes as was possible. I don't believe in "make work"—the public pays for all unnecessary work—but there are times when the plight of others compels us to do the human thing even though it be but a makeshift; and I am obliged to admit that, like most manufacturers, we avoided layoffs by continuing work that good business judgment would have halted. All of our nonprofit work was continued in full force and much of the shop work. There were always tens of thousands employed—the lowest point at Dearborn was 40,000—but there were always thousands unemployed or so meagerly employed, that the situation was far from desirable.

When all possible devices for providing employment have been used and fall short, there remains no alternative but self-help or charity.

I do not believe in routine charity. I think it a shameful thing that any man should have to stoop to take it, or give it. I do not include human helpfulness under the name of charity. My quarrel with charity is that it is neither helpful nor human. The charity of our cities is the most barbarous thing in our system, with the possible exception of our prisons. What we call charity is a modern substitute for being personally kind, personally concerned and personally involved in the work of helping others in difficulty. True charity is a much more costly effort than money-giving. Our donations too often purchase exemption from giving the only form of help that will drive the need for charity out of the land.

THE unemployed man is every one's concern, Henry Ford says—most of all the man's own concern. Being unemployed does not need to mean being out of work. There may be work even though one may not be hired to do it. Mr. Ford begins today a discussion of Employment, Charity and Self-Help as the three courses open to us in present conditions. He does not believe in routine charity because, he says, it is neither kind nor helpful. It does not get under the load or tackle the cause. He describes today a method he has followed. Wednesday he will discuss Self-Help.

Our own theory of helping people has been in operation for some years. We used to discuss it years ago—when no one could be persuaded to listen. Those who asked public attention to these matters were ridiculed by the very people who now call most loudly for some one to do something.

Our own work involves the usual emergency relief, hospitalization, adjustment of debt, with this addition—we help people to alter their affairs in common-sense accordance with changed conditions, and we have an understanding that all help received should be repaid in reasonable amounts in better times. Many families were not so badly off as they thought; they needed guidance in the management of their rerources and opportunities. Human nature, of course, presented the usual problems. Relying on human sympathy many develop a spirit of professional indigence. But where co-operation is given, honest and self-respecting persons and families can usually be assisted to a condition which is much less distressing than they feared.

One of our responsibilities, voluntarily assumed—not because it was ours, but because there seemed to be no one else to assume it—was the care of a village of several hundred families whose condition was pretty low. Ordinarily a large welfare fund would have been needed to accomplish anything for these people. In this instance, we set the people at work cleaning up their homes and backyards, and then cleaning up the roads of their town, and then plowing up about 500 acres of vacant land around their houses. We abolished everything that savored of "handout" charity, opening instead a modern commissary where personal I O U's were accepted, and a garment-making school, and setting the cobblers and tailors of the community to work for their neighbors. We found the people heavily burdened with debt, and we acted informally as their agents in apportioning their income to straighten their affairs. Many families are now out of debt for the first time in years. There has appeared in this village not only a new spirit of confidence in life, but also a new sense of economic values, and an appreciation of economic independence which we feel will not soon be lost. None of these things could have been accomplished by paying out welfare funds after the orthodox manner. The only true charity for these people was somehow to get under their burdens with them and lend them the value of our experience to show them what can be done by people in their circumstances.

Our visiting staff in city work has personally handled thousands of cases in the manner above described. And while no one institution can shoulder all the burden, we feel that merely to mitigate present distress is not enough—we feel that thousands of families have been prepared for a better way of life when the wheels of activity begin turning again.

But there is still another way, a third way, so much better than the very best charitable endeavor that it simply forbids us to be satisfied with anything less. That is the way of self-help, which I shall discuss Wednesday in this publication.

Prepared and paid for by the Ford Motor Company as a contribution to public welfare.

DRASTIC FISCAL REFORMS MARK RUMANIA'S YEAR

People Take Stock of King Carol's Regime.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 29.—It is just a little more than a year since King Carol kicked out the National Peasant regime which enabled him to return from exile and appointed in its stead a cabinet presided over by his old friend and tutor, Prof. Nicholas Jorga.

A year is a long time, as Balkan governments go, and this week there has been considerable stock taking as to the accomplishments of Carol's first real government.

Finance Minister Dr. Constantine Argetoianu is the "strong man" who actually directs the policy of the "cabinet of technical men" that came into power in April, 1931. The majority of its members are specialists of no political color, except Prof. Jorga. Dr. Argetoianu formerly was identified with conservatives and liberals too, and once was an Averescu supporter.

Adopts Drastic Laws.

The government's activity during its first year of power was characterized by adoption of a set of drastic laws, most important of which were:

1. The agricultural conversion law, reducing the debts of farmers and making them payable in small installments with 4 per cent interest over periods up to 30 years.

2. The judicial liquidation law, abolishing bankruptcy, but permitting insolvent merchants to continue under supervision of creditors, liquidating debts in small installments.

3. The alcohol monopoly law, putting the sale of pure alcohol and beverages containing industrial alcohol under control of the government, but not including fruit alcohol, wine and beer. High taxes on alcohol opened the door to "moonshine" and revenues are not as great as expected.

4. Reorganization of the educational system, providing especially for manual trades instruction in secondary schools.

Besides these measures, military men were put in charge of government public services.

Foreign Creditors Object.

The agricultural and judicial policies are viewed with much concern outside Rumania. Debtors have privileges which are proving hard on creditors, who are at a loss to make their payments outside the country. Just this week France, Great Britain, Holland and Switzerland protested through their ministers at Bucharest that the plan for conversion of agrarian debts endangers the lei, to whose stabilization the four countries have contributed financially.

The French attack asserted that the agrarian conversion and judicial insolvency scheme would mean the liquidation of small banks, would ease trade and industry rather than agriculture, would endanger the position of the national bank and its currency, would "freeze" credits and preclude loans on this year's crops.

Foreign policies of the present government have been marked by the pro-German tendencies of Dr. Argetoianu, playing them against the French political interests in southeastern Europe. In the meantime Rumania has appealed to France for new financial help and French experts now are in the country studying economic and financial conditions. It is their opinion that the root of the present financial troubles lies in bad administration.

Too Many Civil Servants.

The experts have suggested a change in the system of tax collection and sweeping reduction of the oversupply of governmental employés, now numbering nearly 300,000. More than a third of the army's budget for this year was "borrowed" to pay government employés, army pay is in arrears and thousands of soldiers have been sent home or are on leave. Pensions are paid late or not at all. Payment of civil servants is as much as six months late.

Assuming reforms are made, the experts estimate that a loan of one billion francs [$39,500,000] will solve Rumania's internal financial troubles. Foreign debt service is provided for by revenues from the tobacco and match monopolies.

Should the French grant the loan without insisting on a change in the government, it is probable that the present cabinet will remain in power for some time to come. It is believed an election now would show a gain in the number of extremist votes. Fascist Iron Guards and Prof. Cuza's Anti-Semitic league have become more popular recently, the latter spreading propaganda resembling that of the German Nazis. Communism has progressed in Transylvania and Bessarabia. A concentration cabinet under Nicholas Titulescu is considered most likely if King Carol decides on a change.

WORLD COURT TO SIT IN ON WAR OVER POTATO BUG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 29.—The world court at The Hague, created to settle matters of vital import to the world, will soon be called upon to sit in judgment on potato bugs—unless France and Germany agree on their fate in the near future!

The potato war started when Germany prohibited the import of French potatoes on the ground that they brought along French potato bugs which had proved detrimental to German potato crops. Germany suffered heavily from the potato bug in prewar years and in consequence is frightened by the danger of its return. France charges that Germany is using the bug as a pretext to keep out the French rivals of Germany's potatoes.

Then Holland, terrified by the bug, prohibited the importation of French potatoes. France retaliated by forbidding the import into France of Dutch farm products. Thus the little bug has now grown into a big international affair. The Dutch parliament and the German government propose that the knotty problem of the potato bug be threshed out before the world court.

KING AND BEAUTY GET MYSTERIOUS DEATH WARNING

Parable Writer Stirs Up Bucharest.

VIENNA, May 29.—(AP)—A mysterious parable writer who signs himself "" [double quotes] and is believed by many to be Gen. Alexandru Averescu, leader of the Rumanian People's party, caused excitement in Bucharest today with veiled warnings of death for King Carol of Rumania and his friend, Mme. Magda Lupescu.

Months ago he hinted strongly at dethronement of the Rumanian king, but recently his writings have taken a more sober turn. A week ago he alluded to the death of the French king, Henry II., in terms leaving no doubt he was warning King Carol.

The cafés buzzed today over his latest "history parable" in the People's party organ, Indreptarea, which again plays with the death theme in what some readers interpreted as an attack on Mme. Lupescu, beautiful redhaired companion of Carol's Paris exile before he became king.

Theme of Mme. Du Barry.

In this sensational parable, the text of which has appeared in Vienna, "" took as his theme Mme. Du Barry and her influence over Louis XV.

It was out of the corruption of Louis' court that grew the French revolution, the mysterious writer said, "and only slaves and lackeys could glorify kings like Louis XV. today."

Even as a youth his "weakness for women" was a problem, the parable said, and in the hope of overcoming this weakness the French royal family and government decided to marry Louis to the foreign princess, Marie Leszinska, daughter of the dethroned king of Poland.

Won King Easily.

"But although his young wife was beautiful in body and soul, Louis—the ladies' friend—soon abandoned her and resumed his former way of life," the parable continued. "Instead of his queen, there ruled in France she whom history knows as Du Barry.

"Beautiful and blond, spirited, perverse and uncommonly ingratiating, she won the king without difficulty. He bought her a villa and gave her a monthly allowance of £300,000."

Political interpreters of this "history parable" in looking for a parallel recalled that Princess Helen, estranged wife of King Carol, is the daughter of a dethroned king of Greece, as Leszinska was the daughter of a dethroned Polish king.

Café Crowds Gossip.

Reading "he bought her a villa," the café crowds remembered the recent purchase of a villa for Mme. Lupescu in fashionable Filipescu park of Bucharest, where she lately was said to be giving teas and bridge parties.

The death note was particularly pronounced in view of a story persistently circulated in Bucharest to the effect that a soothsayer years ago foretold an attempt would be made to assassinate King Carol "not long after fire destroyed one of his residences." The royal chateau recently burned down at Sinaia.

Many persons believe the story is just another attempt to warn or intimidate King Carol.

CHICAGOAN TO ADMIT SHOOTING GIRL AT RACINE

Charles Rogers, grayhaired Chicago radio engineer, is to be arraigned before a court commissioner in Racine today on a charge of assaulting Laura Tally, 24 year old nurse, with intent to commit murder. He indicated last night in his cell that he would plead guilty.

Miss Tally was shot several times on March 30, following a drinking party in a cottage on Root river, near Racine. A bullet is still imbedded in her brain and physicians are afraid to remove it. She named Rogers as her assailant but he escaped arrest until early yesterday, when he went back to Racine. Rogers, who said his home was at 3000 West Washington boulevard, told police who arrested him that he could not resist an impulse to go and see Miss Tally.

The girl, learning of his capture, declared she never wanted to see or hear of him again.

Lew Waskin Held; Faces Bucket Shop Fraud Quiz

Lew Waskin, 30 years old, 629 Deming place, manager of the Prudential Investment company, an alleged bucket shop in the Steuben building, which was raided May 21, was arrested yesterday and held for questioning today by Assistant State's Attorney Edward C. Duffey. Police records revealed Waskin had been convicted of violating blue sky laws in West Virginia. The Prudential Investment company is believed to have defrauded investors of $500,000.

RUSSIA SPREADS ROYAL CARPET FOR A PRINCE

Soviet Troops Salute Son of Hedjaz King.

MOSCOW, May 29.—(AP)—The troops of soviet Russia drew up to rigid salute to a royal visitor today, the second such personage to pay a state visit to the stronghold of communism since the czar was overthrown 14 years ago.

The visitor was the Emir Feisal, viceroy of Hedjaz and son of the all-powerful Ibn Saud of Arabia.

Two of the highest officials of communism were sent to greet the princely tourist at the railway station, where a royal carpet was spread for him.

Wears Native Costume.

The welcome was the ceremonious kind reserved for personages of high rank, and apparently far outdid the reception accorded then King Amanullah of Afghanistan four years ago.

Wearing a native costume, a flowing gold braided tan robe and a burnoose, but the modern shoes of the west, the prince and his party were greeted by two vice commissars of foreign affairs, L. M. Karakhan and N. N. Krestinsky. Karaghan did the honors for the previous royal visitor.

The handsome, swarthy features of the prince were almost hidden by the hood of his burnoose as he walked from his train, accompanied by the commissars and high army officials. As he passed the saluting troops, nearby bands struck up the Hedjaz national anthen, and played it and the Internationale alternately.

Reviews Soviet Troops.

The interior of the railway station was decorated in the colors of Hedjaz, and the carpet was spread indoors for the viceroy, or foreign minister.

On reaching the station plaza, the prince reviewed a battalion each of soviet infantry and cavalry, which paraded in his honor.

Accompanying the viceroy were four high officials, including the chief of the army staff, who was dressed in a smart military uniform, the only member of the party not attired in Arabian robes.

The Arabian party traveled in a special car attached to the regular train from Warsaw, where the party had last visited in Europe. A soviet foreign office and military detachment met the Arabians at the Polish-Russian border.

The visit of the viceroy officially was one of courtesy and good will for the country which first recognized the kingdom of Hedjaz under Ibn Saud, and will last a week.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In the society section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE yesterday a picture of Mrs. William Harmsen, chairman of the luncheon which the Independent German-American Woman's club will give Wednesday for its officers, was printed as that of Mrs. Rose Austin, vice president of the club. It was also stated, erroneously, that the luncheon will be in the Drake hotel. It will be in the Copeland hotel.

COMMUNISTS ASK FULL EQUALITY FOR THE NEGRO

Following its nomination of James W. Ford, an Alabama Negro, for the vice presidency, the communist party of America intends to fight for full equality for the Negro.

"The party demands full economic, political, and social equality for the Negro masses," was the declaration of William Z. Foster, candidate for the presidency, as the delegates to the national convention were preparing to leave Chicago.

"The party fights against the capitalist way out of the crisis through hunger and war," continued his statement, "and calls upon the workers to take the revolutionary way out and establish a soviet United States."

The platform made no reference to the question of prohibition.

A GRATEFUL CITY TODAY RECALLS ITS HERO DEAD

First Parade in 2 Years Features Program.

their allied organizations. The Spanish-American veterans and their allied groups compriss the second section, while the world war men and their auxiliaries and allied groups make up the third.

One veteran who expects to be in the parade today is Ferdinard L. Cappe, 85 years old, of 5135 Berteau avenue.

"I enlisted in Company H of the 7th Illinois infantry at Atlanta, Ill.," he said yesterday. "I am the last survivor of the Atlanta G. A. R. post. I believe I am the last man of the regiment living."

Others will be William Stack, 85 years old, of 7344 Perry avenue, of Company G, 57th Illinois infantry, and John Probert, 94, of 15 East 101st street.

The holiday week-end precipitated a heavy exodus of Chicagoans, which was well under way by noon Saturday. Yesterday automobiles brought thousands of visitors to the city and excursion trains brought in thousands more to enjoy the parks and beaches and sights while the city dwellers sought the seclusion of woods and streams.

Parks Are Thronged.

In the city throngs strolled in the parks and along the lake front, and a few swimmers ventured into the water despite the chilly air.

Few places of business will remain open today, and there will be no deliveries of mail. One collection will be made from all street letter boxes, Postmaster Lueder announced, and the general delivery window at the main branch will be open from 8 to 10 this morning.

All the north shore suburbs, with the exception of Glencoe, have prepared observances of the holiday. Evanston will have a parade of three sections, under auspices of the American Legion, forming at Mason park at 11 a. m., moving to Fountain square for a brief halt at a reviewing stand, and then to Patriot park on the lake front, where commemorative services will be held.

A wreath will be placed on the park flag staff in honor of the soldier dead, another will be cast on the lake to recall the sailor dead, and aviators will drop flowers from the sky to honor air men who died.

Fire Salute in Winnetka.

In Winnetka the parade will be from the community house, south on Lincoln to Elm and east to the commons at Elm and Maple avenue, where exercises will be held and a salute fired. Graves of the war dead will be decorated.

Oak Park has been ambitious in its preparations to celebrate. Nine members of the G. A. R. will be given places of honor in the parade there, which is expected to be four miles long and to number about 10,000 individuals. It will start from Veterans' boulder in Ridgeland commons, Ridgeland avenue and Lake, and wind up at Scoville park, where the services will take place.

At 9:30 this morning South Park company of the U. S. marine corps will observe the anniversary at services in Old Fort Dearborn, 26th street and Leif Ericson drive. In their blue dress uniforms they will salute the fifteen star and fifteen stripe flag of 1812 and fire a salute to the war dead.

Services at Old Water Tower.

Members of Harold Taylor post of the Legion will gather at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the old Michigan avenue water tower at Chicago avenue, to dedicate a cenotaph as their monument to their comrades.

A parade of former service men from the three towns of Bellwood, Maywood, and Melrose Park will precede the dedication this afternoon of the new Memorial park in Bellwood.

M. Rene Weiller, consul general of France, and T. Buynowski, consul general of Poland, will be among the speakers at services for the Veterans of Foreign Wars to be held in the auditorium at Navy pier at 9:45 a. m., under the auspices of Chicago flagship No. 1100. Gen. P. J. H. Farrell and Lieutenant Commander George M. Weichelt will also speak.

Decorate Gen. Bell's Grave.

Col. Samuel T. Lawton, commanding the 122d field artillery, will speak at services this morning at Rosehill cemetery, where the grave of Maj. Gen. George Bell will be decorated by Thomas Burns, president of the 33d division, War Veterans' association.

Mayor Cermak is scheduled to address the crowd at the Bohemian National Cemetery association program at the cemetery, 5255 North Crawford, at 9:30 o'clock. The observance is more than half a century old.

Memorial services for confederate soldier dead will be held at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Confederate monument in Oakwoods cemetery. The services will be in charge of the United Confederate Veterans and the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

Haymarket Riot Veterans Observe Memorial Day

Eleven old men sat yesterday in the Desplaines street police station and recalled the tragic of May 4 of 1886, when 76 helmeted policemen rushed out from that same building to battle the anarchist forces in Haymarket square. These survivors, all former policemen, members of the Association of Haymarket Riot Veterans, had their own Memorial day observance as they reminisced for two hours on the events of the day. Capt. Frank P. Tyrrell, 86 years old, is president of the association.

Middle West Marine Vets to Hold Reunion Saturday

Veterans of the United States marine corps from all over the middle west will hold their third annual reunion Saturday at the Auditorium hotel. A committee met in the hotel yesterday to perfect arrangements. The veterans will inspect the World's Fair grounds and will be guests of the White Sox management at the game between the Sox and the St. Louis Browns.

'VETERAN BONUS' ARMY ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON

Will Insist Congress Vote Cash Payments.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—With American flags flying before them, sixteen truck loads of war veterans came to the end of a trans-continental hitch hike today with the avowed purpose of remaining in Washington until congress pays their bonus in full.

PELHAM D. GLASSFORD. [Harris & Ewing.]

Weather beaten, travel stained and tired, the former soldiers—330 of them from the Pacific coast—crossed the district line in trucks supplied by Maryland and found a hot stew, bread, milk, and coffee awaiting them.

Their conduct was orderly. They waved and smiled at the crowds congregated on fashionable streets, but there was no shouting, no demonstration. After their meal, they marched to the vacant building which will be their barracks here.

Police Supervise.

Superintendent of Police Glassford personally supervised the arrangements for their care. He estimates that 1,300 veterans now are in the capital. The majority have filtered in in small groups and have not applied for lodgings.

The commander of the west coast contingent, Walter W. Waters—a fruit cannery superintendent, who exercises full military authority on the bonus march—preceded the truck caravan and conferred with Glassford and with Representative Patman [Dem., Tex.], bonus advocate.

The police superintendent told newspaper men "if necessary I will enforce my edict of 48 hours as the limit of their stay here. If congress wants to foot their bills, they can stay as long as they like."

Replies to 48 Hour Ruling.

In reply to the 48 hour ruling, Waters averred his marchers would "camp in Washington until the bonus is paid."

"That's our plan," he said, "and that's what we will do."

Meanwhile, other groups of veterans from the west, south, and north are moving toward the capital or are making ready to start. Glassford said, however, he believed many have become discouraged.

BELGIUM'S KING PAYS TRIBUTE TO MEMORIAL DAY

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—President Hoover has received the following message from King Albert of Belgium:

"Ever faithful to a tradition which is dear to them, my compatriots will on the 30th day of May strew flowers upon the graves of the American soldiers who sleep in Belgian soil. They will thus show how vividly they cherish in their hearts the memory of the brave comrades who fought by their sides.

"On this solemn occasion, animated by a sentiment of sincere gratitude, we address to the American people our most heartfelt wishes for their welfare and prosperity."

President Hoover sent this reply:

"I have received your majesty's gracious message. The tribute which you and the Belgian people are paying on Memorial day to the memory of those American soldiers and sailors who gave their lives for the cause of justice and whose bodies rest in Belgium echoes and resounds in every American heart with gratitude and affection for their Belgian comrades and friends. I and my fellow countrymen, in dedicating this day to our own dead, will be keenly mindful of your own country's great sacrifice and will bend our heads in silent prayer for Belgium and Belgium's heroic dead."

BRITAIN URGES WORLD PARLEY TO REVIVE TRADE

Tackle Problem at Debt Conference, Is Plea.

ment of an "equalization fund" designed to assure all creditor nations equal benefit from the liquidation of frozen credits and to prevent Germany from obtaining too great a handicap over her commercial rivals.

This assurance was given in a speech here today by Paul Painleve, former premier, who is expected to receive the war ministry in the new French government.

How Plan Would Work.

Painleve, famous as a professor of abstract mathematics as well as a politician, said:

"We must give up the idea of the payment of unconditional reparations. The best solution for the general liquidation of all war debts—European and American—is to wipe them out. But to prevent Germany from becoming an overwhelming competitor, thus making creditor nations the victims of their own generosity, we might invent certain financial devices which would work automatically.

"For instance, I would suggest a sort of an equalization fund, in which all countries interested, would be treated on a basis of equality and which would maintain among them economic fair play. Thus the sacrifice of creditor nations would be compensated for by the reestablishment of normal exchanges, relief of frozen credits and the avoidance of shocks due to the transfer of large sums from one nation to another. This would be difficult to establish chiefly because of the isolation of the United States."

Painleve then suggested that Europe first reach an agreement among themselves, then submit it to the United States for approval.

U. S. Policy Is "Hands Off."

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—Although the United States naturally would watch with interest any international discussion of trade, there was no indication here tonight that this government would be drawn into such discussions in connection with the Lausanne reparations conference as proposed by Prime Minister MacDonald.

This country's position has been that it is for Europe itself to consider reparations, as the United States had no reparations, and there has been nothing to indicate that even broadening of the Lausanne meeting as proposed by MacDonald would modify that hands off position.

Publication of the British prime minister's plan reopened speculation over whether it was a subject touched upon in the telephone conversation last week between him and Secretary Stimson. Official sources, however, gave no intimation of previous knowledge of the MacDonald proposal and made no comment.

AMERICA'S WAR DEAD IN EUROPE HONORED IN RITES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 29.—America's Memorial day was observed at Brookwood cemetery, Surrey, today, where 453 Americans are buried. Wreathes were placed about the flagstaff in the American section of the cemetery by Lieut. Col. Cortlandt Parker, military attaché at the American embassy, and also by representatives of the British Legion, the Canadian high commissioner, the Imperial War Graves commission and E. C. Wright, an American Civil war veteran.

GERMAN SPLURGE IN BUSINESS COST STATE MILLIONS

Industries Grab Subsidies but Fail to Pay Back.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 29.—Government pinch hitting as banker for business enterprise of every kind and description has been tried by Germany's national, state and municipal governments, either voluntarily or under pressure of the world crisis. In no single instance has state banking proved an absolute success; in some cases it avoided disasters, but at a price which experts fear will, in the long run, prove nearly as disastrous to the taxpayer as the crash the government avoided by extending a helping hand.

DR. MORITZ J. BONN.

The German government admits it has its fingers in "business pies" through state guarantees and loans to the tune of $362,700,000. This does not include insurance companies, electrical plants, traction companies, public utilities, farm and scores of other enterprises controlled outright by the federal government, states, and municipalities.

Believe Engagements Higher.

Many experts believe the banking engagements of the governments of Germany are still higher. Prof. Moritz J. Bonn, noted German economist and rector of the Institute of Commerce, for instance, points out that the budget of 1931-32 provide a total of $88,430,000 as subsidies for divers industries. Yet at the time this budget was drafted it seemed a lean year for subsidies. The preceding years had seen the government dispensing direct and indirect aid to business on a much more lavish scale.

Many sums loaned or guaranteed by the government as an incentive to industry and trade were written off as losses in the years before financial reorganization started. Most of the subsidizing and the writing off was done secretly, which explains why no accurate totals are available.

Try to Curtail Subsidies.

Since Chancellor Bruening took over the reins of government he has tried to curtail the secret subsidizing. Yet the total of sums guaranteed by the German government at present is more than the total state expenditures for two years.

The biggest item among the government loans and guarantees is the money guaranteed to the banks when they were on the verge of breakdown and in the months following the crisis of last July. Since that time $262,600,000 has been guaranteed by the government for the benefit of the banks, according to Finance Minister Dietrich.

To date $100,000,000 of these millions of the taxpayers' money has been lost. The balance will be refunded by the banks, the government says.

Recalls Subsidy of 1926.

This reminds Germany of the time the government went into the subsidy game in a big way in 1926, when it advanced the Ruhr industry, especially the coal barons, $169,500,000 to make up for the losses they suffered through the French invasion. This finally proved to be an out and out present. None of the money was returned.

German shipping, destroyed through the war and the peace treaties, was reconstructed with the help of government subsidies. According to Richard Lewinsohn, financial expert, the German ship companies received directly and indirectly $250,000,000 from the government. Now it is costing vast sums to keep this fleet floating. This year the big companies, North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American lines, received loans and guarantees totaling $18,403,000 to tide them over the crisis.

Auto Industry Profits.

The automobile industry also profited from the government's and states' idea that they could revive trade. The case of the Horch car factory in Saxony is an example.

The Horch plant builds expensive autos. In 1930 it persuaded state officials that it was their duty to prevent the factory from tying up with automobile interests outside the borders of Saxony. Otherwise, the auto officials said, a shutdown of the plant might follow.

But state help for Horch worked no wonders. The demand for heavy machines still fell off.

Then the state combined Horch with two other Saxon auto plants, also insolvent, making a state trust of the trio. Three times a minus makes a plus? The Saxon diet recently voted a credit of $1,500,000 to finance the combined plants.

Besides financing auto building, Saxon state subsidies are keeping the home fires burning in the kilns of the Villeroy & Bock ceramic factory of Dresden and supporting production of carbonic acid at the Linger works.

Model Yachts in Regatta in Model Yacht Basin

A model yacht regatta was held yesterday afternoon in the model yacht basin at 51st street and the outer drive, under auspices of the Ogden Park Model Yacht club. Contestants came from all parts of the middle west. The regatta will continue today. The models sailed like full sized yachts and the same rules prevailed. A national regatta will be held in the basin on June 29 and 30.

IRISH AT PEACE, BUT FEAR NEW STORM BREWS

Republican Army Men Flout De Valera.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, May 29.—Irish politics are notoriously difficult to understand, chiefly because of the numerous cross currents with which they are interspersed. It often happens that a most obscure and unimportant issue suddenly forces itself to the front and dominates the situation.

Since Eamon de Valera has assumed control of the government one crisis after another has stalked across the political stage. The most important question in the limelight at present is whether the oath of allegiance to the British king is to continue in the constitution. In addition, tariff walls and new schemes for social reform are being strongly agitated, while owners of property and large income tax payers writhe under increased burdens.

While it was thought by most people that under the treaty of 1921 the country was virtually quit of any possible further complications with England—and the ten years under William Cosgrave's leadership tended to confirm this—the advent of De Valera to power has brought back in a large measure the old position with Britain.

The political position has been pulled back to the days of 1921, when by the narrow majority of seven votes the treaty was accepted and De Valera, leader of the opposition, took up an attitude of noncooperation with the majority. Now, by a majority of votes at the recent elections and with the aid of the seven members of the Labor group, he is in control of the country's destinies. In two months the new government has reversed most of the policies of the late government and there are more reversals to come.

Many Forces at Work.

In stating the political situation, it must be recalled that De Valera and his followers were not the only people with whom former President Cosgrave had to reckon. These were within the Dail Eireann. Outside there was and is the remnant of the old Sinn Fein party, from which De Valera had to break before he could take the oath and enter the dail.

Then there was the Irish republican army, which appeared to be a law unto itself, owing allegiance neither to the Free State government, which it was frankly out to destroy, nor to De Valera nor to the Sinn Fein organization. This body in the latter years of the Cosgrave administration became more audacious, drilled openly and recruited extensively.

Linked with Communists.

It appeared to have established a liaison with a communist organization called Saor Eire [Irish Freedom], and in view of the menace of these two combined with certain others the Cosgrave government felt obliged to suppress them all.

More than 100 persons were in prison when the De Valera government came in, and one of its first acts was to open the prisons and release all the prisoners unconditionally. Since then the country has experienced a peacefulness such as has not been known in a score of years. It is not only unusual, but unnatural.

The republican army, it is true, has not ceased its activities. It is drilling openly at crossroads and in the mountains, and is recruiting freely.

But the Irish republican army has a policy of its own, and it is stated and advocated week by week in the newspaper An Phoblecht. It is out for a complete republic and nothing less, and for the whole of Ireland. For this the republican army is urged to prepare. It has no use for the Irish Free State or its government. De Valera's government is as much a British puppet government, in the army's estimation, as was the government of Cosgrave, and the newspaper does not hesitate to tell De Valera's ministers what it thinks of them.

The fact that in these circumstances peace prevails over the country is generally regarded with apprehension rather than gratification. It is felt, rather, to be the calm before another storm; certainly it is not the peace of a strong government ruling with a strong hand.

STATE POLICE QUIT HEADQUARTERS AT LINDBERGH'S HOME

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—Hopewell, N. J., headquarters for the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder investigation, was evacuated by the New Jersey state police today.

In a bulletin issued this afternoon Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf announced that the troopers had moved all their furniture and equipment from the temporary Hopewell station back to Wilburtha, home of their state training school, about five miles from Trenton.

A guard, however, will be maintained for a while longer at the entrance to the Lindbergh estate, it was said, to keep out curiosity seekers.

STOP TARIFF WAR! PLEA OF TRADE GROUPS TO CHILE

Fear Isolation Will Overtake Nation.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VALPARAISO, Chile, May 29.—The diplomatic corps and foreign chambers of commerce are exerting pressure to induce the Chilean government to sacrifice a point or two, if necessary, to end the trade stifling tariff war with Argentina which culminated in the suspension of operation of the trans-Andean railroad.

Chileans and foreign residents alike generally recognize that the "status quo" is detrimental to both countries, and especially so to Chile.

Chile Isolated.

The Trans-Andean railroad has linked this country on the Pacific to the countries of the Atlantic. When this link was cut—because the railroad lost money as a result of skyscraper tariff rates—Chile was, to a great degree, isolated. There is no other Trans-Andean railroad. Chile, it is feared, will return to the old "end of the world" existence which she lived before the opening of the Panama canal.

While the canal brought the United States closer, it was at the same time a blow to Punta Arenas and Valparaiso, former ports of call for shipping carrying the products of eastern and western America. An alternative overland rail route was also opened, which tended still more to take from Valparaiso its character of international caravansarai and to leave Chile on one side of the current of traffic, cut off from the west by the ocean and from the east by the barrier of the Andes.

Many Artificial Obstacles.

Physical influences needing harmonization are as nothing, however, it is felt, compared with the artificial obstacles that have been raised by Chilean politics, excessive nationalism, and private as opposed to national interests.

75,000 TO ATTEND HOLY NAME TECH SERVICES TODAY

The new Holy Name Technical school at Lockport, in which aviation will become the specialty, will be dedicated today by Cardinal Mundelein, assisted by Catholic dignitaries from various sections of the country. It is expected that the ceremonies will attract the largest assemblage of Catholics since the Eucharistic congress in 1926. Approximately 75,000 persons are expected. The Very Rev. Msgr. Daniel Byrnes will deliver the dedicatory sermon.

The dedication ceremony will be followed by the investment of Frederick H. Massman, vice president of the National Tea company and president of the Holy Name society, as a knight of St. Gregory.

The school occupies 150 acres of land.

WHAT'S HAPPENED IN JOBLAND.

The sales tax is again coming to the front in Washington. It was embodied in the original revenue bill presented to the house, but was knocked out when the Democrats revolted from their party leadership in a campaign to soak the rich.

No one can understand this kind of backing and filling who does not understand Washington. Washington is Jobland. The resident population of Washington lives wholly on jobs and government contracts. The city has no independent economic life worth talking about; its primary income is the income received by federal pay-rollers and its shops and stores would fold up in a day if the government pay-rollers couldn't buy. The government pay roll is to Washington what the steel mills are to Birmingham or Youngstown and what the car works are to Pullman.

When the sales tax was first put forward Jobland wasn't particularly interested. The tax was defeated only because the elective officials who must answer to their constituents for their acts feared the effects of a tax would increase the cost of living to every one and might be expected, also, to reduce the market for a good many commodities. Jobland was indifferent at the time because it had no doubt that somehow the money would be forthcoming to pay wages and salaries, and the particular means of extorting the money seemed of little consequence. Sales tax or income tax was a mere matter of detail.

But as time has gone on, the population of Washington has come to realize that the income tax will not suffice. No matter how high the rates are put, the revenue is not going to be forthcoming to keep the pay-rollers in ham and eggs because the incomes which used to pay the taxes are disappearing if they have not already disappeared.

Henry Ford is supposed to be the richest man in the United States because the Ford Motor company is one of the most profitable businesses the world has ever known. But this company, which added 81 million dollars to its surplus in 1929 and 44 million in 1930, saw its surplus decreased by 53 million dollars in 1931, when business generally was far better than it is today. The same thing has been happening all over the country. Jobland, which ordinarily is little interested in the source of government revenues, has had, perforce, to take an interest in the matter in recent weeks.

When the realization dawned in Washington that the income tax would not suffice, two things happened. One of them was an increased demand for a balanced budget. To the pay-rollers a balanced budget means security of income. It means that the treasury will be placed in a position to meet its pay roll and therefore that government employés will not suffer the fate which has befallen school teachers and policemen in Chicago. In Washington, in 1932, a balanced budget never has meant a reduction of federal expenditures to conform with the ability of the taxpayers to pay. It has meant simply that degree of extortion from the taxpayers which will maintain the whole pay roll brigade.

The other thing that has happened has been a renewal of the campaign for the sales tax. All classes of society in Washington, from taxi drivers to prominent hostesses, are now for it. Congressmen living in the midst of several hundred thousand persons dependent on the pay roll cannot entirely escape the contagion. Congressmen fear that if they vote for the sales tax their political opponents will use the fact against them, but there is no doubt that the prevailing sentiment in Washington is a powerful influence and it may prevail.

Congressmen have an alternative, of course. They can reduce government expenditures and that would be popular with their constituents. But a reduction in expenditures is the last thing that Jobland will consider. In the atmosphere of Washington economy is the unpardonable crime.

MR. JACOBS' DILEMMA

Mr. Jacobs, the new assessor, has said several times that he hopes the Supreme court in a forthcoming decision in the Clear tax case will give some ruling which will interpret the personal property tax law and indicate what is expected of the assessors. The act has been relieved of some of its antiquities by recent amendments, but still remains an archaic impossibility. It is generally recognized as such and has been for years, but Illinois has not been able to get its tax situation out of absurdities and injustice.

An attempt at full legal enforcement of the personal property tax would defeat its own purpose because the taxable property would flee from the state. An honest assessor trying to bring about a fair assessment is caught in between the law and equity. He can't serve both. The law itself is offensive to equitable taxation. It is confiscatory. It stands for double taxation, as in the case of mortgages. It undertakes to absorb all or nearly all the earnings of savings and investments. In some instances the tax could be more than the return on the money.

No tax can be levied and collected which tries to do these things. Real estate owners deeply injured by the taxes on their classification of property have urged the strict enforcement of the personal property tax. In many cases their lot has been a hard one. Much of the cure is in the reduction of government costs and not in increasing tax vexations. A person who has no real estate is a renter. If his income is taken away by taxation he becomes a poor renter and real estate used for profit must feel the consequences of tax depredations upon the source of the rents.

The state, by the new income tax law, is trying to reach incomes before they have been converted into subsistence. It then strikes at the earnings of any surplus and at the commodities purchased for more than temporary use. It seeks another approach at the citizen's pocketbook by special taxes and license fees. The way to get tax relief is to retaliate upon the public bodies which have been allowed to waste the funds.

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS DISCARD PROHIBITION.

The Republican state convention at Springfield Friday forcibly illustrated the swing from federal prohibition. No one has been reasonably uncertain as to the status of Illinois. It has indicated too many times that it is opposed to the Volstead act and the eighteenth amendment, but the Republican party has been timid and wary. It submitted to Anti-Saloon league control and its downstate elements were under dry influence to such an extent that Mr. Emmerson vetoed the repeal of state prohibition and then supported a dry candidate to succeed himself.

When the party faced the prohibition issue heretofore its instinct was to trim. The recent primaries taught the dry section that its day was past. The resolutions adopted in Friday's convention discarded prohibition completely, root and branch. The party declared for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and of the state prohibition act, and, pending the repeal of the amendment, a modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of beer and wine.

There was not enough animation in the old stronghold of the Anti-Saloon league to make much of a show of resistance. The delegates to the national convention were instructed to favor in the national platform such a plank as was adopted by the state party. Illinois is definitely lost even to a pretense of prohibition.

The national Republican party will discover in its turn that it cannot be controlled in this issue by states which do not contribute the majorities necessary to the success of its tickets, just as the party in this state has had revealed to it the fact that rural zealots could not deliver majorities to candidates opposed to the principles of the better elements of the state.

ADMONITIONS FROM THE ANTIPODES.

If New Zealanders fear that their social order is disintegrating, along with the Australian state, they can find plenty of justification for their dismay. The government has been reduced to concentrating the unmarried and unemployed males in concentration camps as if they were prisoners of war and, in fact, so far as the conditions of their detention are concerned, they might better be. The number of the unemployed and the limitations of the country's resources make the situation more than temporarily tragic.

Comment upon the disasters to the white race down under is not unsympathetic. The troubles of the whites everywhere are sufficient, but New Zealand and Australia should be exemplary because their government, which springs from the sources of English democracy, went to the greatest extremes to destroy the foundation of such democracy. Democracy and communism do not mix. A people supported by the state and a state controlled by the people cannot be rolled into one. Government is devitalizing the English speaking people who once would have broken out of unendurable conditions at home, but who now have been so indoctrinated with ideas of dependence that they prefer to sit on their doorsteps and wait for help. Their excuse must be that, their government being what they made it, they must be what it in turn has made them.

Editorial of the Day

A NEW PALLIATIVE.

[New York Evening Post.]

It is not a gracious thing to withhold a quick approval for the successive devices by which the President has tried to stop deflation and restore credit. It seems an unjust reflection upon the sincerity of his desire to help his fellow countrymen.

We must therefore say frankly that, while we look upon the new "group of twelve industrialists and bankers under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young" as one more ingenious palliative, we do not at all think it is the kind of upturning realism which the situation required. We can even admire the resourcefulness of the mind that can at this late date, after all previous devices, think up one more attempt such as this.

We don't want the government to keep on turning to palliatives. We want realities.

We want congress to "stop spending our money." We want it to "save first and tax afterwards." We want it to balance the budget.

We want the President, instead of approving further relief boards and committees, instead of fencing with the Democrats on huge projects of relief, to come out and say to congress: "I have ordered the cabinet to submit a 15 per cent cut in all departmental appropriations. I want from congress a bill cutting governmental costs $500,000,000 more. I demand the repeal of the big pension grafts. I want the sales tax. I want legalized beer and a tax on it. I want freedom to extend the moratorium on foreign debts. And I want an honestly balanced budget with a budgeting reserve to make sure that it does balance."

If Mr. Hoover took a stand like this, half the work of all his reconstruction boards would be instantly accomplished. That "confidence" which he berates us all for not having would be restored. And even if he cannot bring himself to this profoundly sensible and urgently needed program, he could still accomplish much by sticking to and hammering away at his once-announced intention of getting from congress decent bills on saving and on taxation. By being led aside to vast plans for relief or new palliatives like that launched today, the President has lost the original effect of his angry demand for fundamental action.

THE UNDER DOG.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By S.S.

OH, GOODY! LET'S MAKE WHOOPEE!

That two billion dollar plan of Speaker Garner's to build expensive postoffices at every crossroads in the U. S. doesn't go far enough. What we need in this country are more free golf links. Let Mr. Garner get the Democratic house to pass a bill providing for a public golf links every five miles on every road to the country. That means, of course, a nice country club with every golf links, and there's no reason why each club shouldn't be equipped with a swimming bath, tennis courts, polo field, polo ponies, marble statuary, bubbling fountains, and an artificial lake. All at the expense of the government. Think of the great number of men who would be employed building these golf clubs! Think of all the farmers whose land would be bought to build the golf links on! Think of all the people employed in the clubhouse as cooks, managers, waiters, telephone girls, messengers, and so on! It's a perfectly grand idea!

And here's another one, Mr. Garner. Lots of us common people have always envied the rich because they had yachts. All right, why not, in order to get a lot of government money into circulation—why not buy a nice big ocean-going yacht for every fifty citizens? The fifty could settle it among themselves as to what days each one could use the yacht. Why, Mr. Garner, when it comes to costing money ocean-going yachts have postoffices beat a mile. And how happy us common people would be to go around bragging about owning a yacht. And another way to get the government's money scattered all over the country right away would be buy everybody a new suit of clothes, give each and every one a gold watch and chain, an airplane, a silk umbrella, a nice canary bird with cage, a diamond ring, six tickets to the movies, a hot dog sandwich, and ask 'em what they want for Christmas.

Understand, Mr. Garner, we're not knocking your plan for the free distribution of postoffices. Oh, far from such. We're just telling you some more ideas. When it comes to spending money, Mr. Garner, even Uncle Sam's, and especially the money that Uncle Sam hasn't got, there are so many, many ways. Oh, you'd be surprised! But, Mr. Garner, we understand that the money for all of these things comes out of the government. Of course, of course, we were just a little nervous that we might finally have to pay for these things ourselves in the form of taxes. But, of course, Mr. Garner, that isn't true, is it?

TWO PRAYERS.

This is the end of wars, you said, and this is the Last Crusade;
Go get you out to the fields of France and carry a righteous blade—
And up to the smoky lines they went, your stalwart, gallant sons,
("St. Barbara, guide the gunners now") and you blessed the scornful guns!

The poppies ripple around their feet and the dust is on their eyes;
The rat-a-tat-tat of the Spandeau dims and the bracketing salvo dies,
And never the lift of a bugle note shall call them from their rest—
"God grant them peace and a quiet place"—your bravest and your best.

THE ARTILLERYMAN.

HOW LIKE a cool, sweet breeze blowing from the Elysian fields will be the newspapers tomorrow morning. Congress didn't meet today, the stock exchange was closed, no state conventions indorsed Mr. Roosevelt, no beauty queens were crowned by the colleges, and if the depression did any more depressing nobody noticed it.

"WHITE HOUSE PROGRAM Very Simple—Balance the Budget."—Headline. Oh, was anything simpler or easier? To balance the budget all that remains to be done is to make the budget balance. That is, you make it figure up the same on the debit side that it does on the credit side. Or, in other words, the budget must be made to add up as much on the credit side as it does on the debit. Now that the White House has worked out this wonderful plan, all that remains to do is to balance the budget. That is, to make the budget balance. Oh, simple is no word for it!

THE DRY SLEUTHS have promised not to disturb a delegate to either convention, no matter how much likker he may have in his trunk or on his hip. Which means that delegates won't have to go to hotels—ah, no, there are thousands of homes here in Chicago where the dear hospitable souls who dwell therein are waiting with outstretched hands to welcome a delegate as a guest, no charge. But only wet delegates.

A QUANDARY.

What did I say or what did I do
Quite accidentally to banish you?
It's been a month since you called me up,
And tea is no fun with an empty cup.
And it breaks my heart when I hear a tune
That you used to hum—or there's a moon.

Do you play golf very much? And how?
Whom do you take to the movies now?
Where do you go when the show is through?
Does she enjoy the jokes you do?
How does she feel about street corner roses,
And fat little boys with freckled noses?

Does she suggest that you wear blue ties
Because you're a blond and they match your eyes?
Is she willing to brave a storm,
Or must she stay where it's bright and warm?
Tell her for me to go sit on a tack,
I love you better and I want you back!

INFORMATION ABOUT MUMPS.

F. P. W. writes for an informative article on mumps, one that will give just the ordinary, everyday facts about the disease—those that parents should know.

The subject has not been covered for several years, since the disease is of secondary importance except when armies are being recruited. Epidemics of mumps in army recruiting camps and even in boarding schools for boys or girls sometimes take on disturbing proportions. The disease attacks children in their own homes, but in those circumstances it is rarely of much significance to the sick child or to the family.

It is due to an unknown virus which appears to locate in the mouth and to travel up one or more salivary ducts to one or more salivary glands. It is most apt to involve the parotid, the large salivary glands which lie just in front of and a trifle lower than the ear.

The time required for the disease to develop after exposure is around three weeks—sometimes less, and frequently a little more.

As a rule, the first symptom noted is a swelling in front of and a little below one ear. The swelling is not painful and sometimes the patient has not noticed it when his attention is called to it. Eating or drinking something sour causes discomfort. If the temperature be taken a little fever, say 101, is generally found to be present. When there has been close observation, as during the presence of an epidemic, it is generally found that a low fever precedes the swelling by a day or more. If the inside of the mouth be examined by a good, natural light the opening of the infected salivary duct is seen to be red and swollen. This symptom is found, when looked for, at least a day before the swelling of the parotid gland. When the first swelling is limited to one ide or one gland, it happens not infrequently that other glands will swell within one week. If there are no complications the disease generally terminates within a week. The usual complication is a swelling of a sex gland.

The disease is contagious and, in most places, it is reportable. The first duty of a parent, therefore, is to report the case to the health department. A quarantine sign may be tacked up, but that is about as far as most health departments go.

The vehicle of spreading is the saliva, but it is not known that it can be conveyed in any way except by close personal contact. A case begins to be contagious at least one day before the swelling of the face appears. Contagiousness is supposed to outlast the swelling. It is reported that cases have been infective as long as six weeks after the onset of the disease.

Injections of serum from children convalescent from mumps is thought to confer immunity. It is regarded as a disease of adolescent boys and girls, but there are exceptions to the rule. Younger children occasionally develop it, and every now and then an adult has mumps.

One other fact: Health departments find that a mumps epidemic does not behave like one due to measles, or to any other disease, in that the cases of the former disease are more apt to be confined to one group, such as the soldiers in one barracks or house, or the boys in one wing of a dormitory.

WEIGHT OF A BOY.

M. S. writes:

I am a boy 19 years of age. I weigh 160 pounds and my height is 5 feet 10 inches.

Are these the correct height and weight for my age?

REPLY.

The average for boys 19 years old is somewhere about 5 feet 9 inches in height, and 152 pounds in weight. Remember, however, that height and weight depend on race, size of bones, and type of build, and that we may, therefore, make mistakes when we apply the same standards of measurement to all people.

OVERLOADING THE HEART.

B. H. B. writes:

1. What harmful effect can be caused by exercising strenuously, such as running up two or three flights of stairs after eating?

2. Are bananas fattening?

REPLY.

1. It throws a very great load on the heart. The digestion of food causes the heart to beat hard. Running up steps is also a strain on that organ.

2. That depends on how many you eat.

GRANULATED EYELIDS.

A. S. writes:

I have granulated eyelids and am losing all my lashes. What causes that?

REPLY.

There are several kinds of granular lids. The most important kind is a communicable disease called trachoma. Certain bacterial infections cause granulated lids. Need of glasses and consequent eyestrain is another cause.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

DEMOCRATIC—1920.

San Francisco, July 6.—Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio was nominated for President by the Democratic national convention at 1:43 o'clock this morning, on the 44th ballot, the roll call on which was not completed. The convention began on June 28 in the Civic auditorium when National Chairman Homer S. Cummings of Connecticut called it to order.

The march of Cox, supported by the wets and anti-administration forces to victory over William G. McAdoo, son-in-law of President Wilson, who was backed by the administration jobholders, began with the withdrawal of Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer after the 38th ballot, giving Cox a lead on the 39th. From that time Cox steadily gained until the 43d ballot, which resulted: McAdoo, 412; Cox, 568; Palmer, 7.

The 44th ballot started with a mad riot of delegations to clamber aboard the bandwagon and line up with the Three Guardsmen, Charles F. Murphy of New York, Tom Taggart of Indiana, and George Brennan of Illinois, who put Cox over. On the roll call when Cox had 702 votes—about 25 short of nomination—Committeeman Amidon of Kansas moved to make Cox's nomination unanimous and the motion carried with a pandemonium of approval. The convention then adjourned until noon, when it nominated Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, assistant secretary of the navy, for Vice President.

The balloting on President began on July 2, the first ballot giving McAdoo 266, Palmer 256, Cox 124, and Gov. Al Smith of New York 109, with the rest of the delegates divided among numerous favorite sons.

The platform hails with patriotic pride President Wilson's achievements during the war, favors the league of nations, and indorses the proposed 19th amendment to give women the right of suffrage.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 30, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—While both Illinois senators were away from Washington today, Senator La Follette of Wisconsin worked an amendment into the river and harbor bill which, if enacted into law, not only may kill the Dunne waterway plan altogether but also restrict the right of the Chicago drainage trustees to take more than 250,000 cubic feet of water a minute from Lake Michigan. The sanitary district now uses approximately twice that amount of water from the lake. To cut the flow to 250,000 cubic feet a minute would be a vital menace to health in Chicago and its suburbs.

LONDON.—The official Paris war statement admits the loss of 300 yards of trenches to the northwest of the village of Cumieres, where the Germans have been attempting to break through along the west bank of the Meuse and encircle Dead Man hill, the "keystone" of the defense northwest of Verdun. The statement says that two terrific attacks on the French positions on Hill 304, to the west of Dead Man hill, were repulsed with heavy losses to the Germans.

ROME.—The Italian war office statement indicates that the desperate efforts of the Austrians to force an advance have been checked by the stubborn resistance of the Italian troops, who have repulsed the enemy forces at all points except one, the battle being still undecided only around the Asiago basin.

ST. PAUL.—James J. Hill, the railroad magnate and "empire builder," died this morning. He was 78 years old. All members of his immediate family were present, except one daughter, Mrs. Anson Beard, who will arrive tonight. Mr. Hill's son, Louis W. Hill, will succeed to the management of Hill's vast railroad and financial interests. The funeral will be held on May 31 from the Summit avenue residence.

Every Man's University

Questions and answers prepared by members of the faculty of the University of Chicago outline what they consider a well educated person ought to know. Today's instructor is Merle C. Coulter, professor of botany.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Is the "flame of life" simply a poetical expression?

SATURDAY'S QUESTION.

What are the sources of material and energy which make up a living body?

THE ANSWER:

Green plants take water from the soil, and carbon dioxide from the air—materials which have no food value, or energy content—and, with the assistance of energy provided by sunlight, put these materials together to form sugar, the fundamental food substance. Thus they lock up in the sugar some of the energy of sunlight. The green plant can then change sugar into other classes of food [fats, proteins] by the addition of certain elements secured from the soil [nitrogen, sulphur, phosphorus]. The independent green plants thus provide the food supply for all of the other [dependent] organisms, i. e., animals and nongreen plants [bacteria, molds, mushrooms].

Coal consists of the transformed bodies of ancient plants. Hundreds of millions of years ago these green plants locked up some of the energy of sunlight in their own bodies, and this same energy is released [in the form of heat] when coal is burned today. Practically all of the energy that man or any other living organism uses today can be traced back to the sun.

PERSONAL INJURY.

Chicago, May 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Last spring I was hit by an automobile. I gave my lawyer $30 to file suit here in Chicago. 1. Where can I check up on him to be sure he has filed suit? 2. I think it is the Appellate court. 3. In case suit is not filed, what is the legal period of time within which suit may be filed? 4. Can such a case be hurried up after it is filed? 5. Can it come up and be dismissed without me being notified? C. E. T.

1. Your first step should be to ask him what he has done. If he says that he has filed suit you can ask him for the name of the court and the number of the suit.

2. It is probably in the Circuit or Superior court, and it might be in the Municipal court.

3. The limitation period is three years.

4. Ordinarily it must wait its turn.

5. This would be possible if the case is not watched, but jury cases require a longer time than has elapsed on your case.

AUTO WRECKS.

Chicago, May 24.—[Friend of the People.]—Is there anything that can be done to clean up the vacant lot behind the stores in our vicinity? In this lot there are two old wrecked cars, an old car body, two truck bodies and numerous other articles. Anything that can be done to clean up this mess will be appreciated. M. A. R.

Report is made that vacant lot and alley referred to have been thoroughly cleaned. However, the old automobile bodies and parts are on a lot in rear of an auto repair shop on Diversey avenue and parts are made use of by the workmen in the repair of automobiles. JOSEPH J. BUTLER, Superintendent of Streets.

NEWTON BAKER AND LABOR.

Chicago, May 23.—The editorial in your issue of May 20 referring to Mr. Newton D. Baker's attitude on the league of nations question draws attention to the fact that it is exceedingly difficult to determine Mr. Baker's real position on most questions.

A statement which appeared in the public press some months ago illustrates this difficulty. This particular statement quoted Mr. Baker as follows: "The advantages and gains which come from machinery have no right to be all velvet to the industry unless they are all velvet to society. . . . I have a notion that industry has no right, as a fundamental proposition, to take all the gains that come from this rapid substitution of machine processes for human labor."

During the last quarter of a century tremendous strides have been made in developing efficient and economical methods of operation of ships on the great lakes, particularly in the handling of bulk freight cargoes. As general counsel for the Lake Carriers' association, an organization of bulk freight shipowners, Mr. Baker, despite his professed belief that "the advantages and gains that come from machinery have no right to be all velvet for industry unless they are all velvet for society," stanchly and earnestly defends his clients' practice of requiring sailors to work twelve hours a day and eighty-four hours a week. Perhaps Mr. Baker entertains the unique notion that sailors are not included in the term "society" and, therefore, are not entitled to share a bit of the "velvet" in the form of a reasonable work day and work week. C. M. GOSHORN, Acting Secretary, Sailors' Union of the Great Lakes.

BAKER AND SMITH.

Cleveland, O., May 25.—Newton D. Baker's overpraise of Alfred E. Smith the other night in Cleveland, something that the man utterly does not need, had the sound of eulogy, a beating of drums over the dead. Is it that Baker thinks Smith's chance for the nomination small, hence can afford to boost him now?

Where was Baker's support of Smith as the party nominee four years ago? An attack of tonsilitis or bronchitis at the time will not explain away a whole campaign of silence and inactivity. Or if in charity long ago acts should be overlooked, why the virtual blacklisting by the Ohio Democracy, of which Baker at present has the unchallenged control, of those who in the recent state primary stood for the Smith candidacy?

It must be that Baker is feeding Smith pap and hoping he'll like it, and in return come through with whole souled support of his [Baker's] candidacy. Al Smith is eminently human, but will he be an easy mark to this extent?

FAIRPLAY.

THE NATIONAL TERROR.

Peoria, Ill., May 24.—If our representatives in congress are really honest minded enough to look for the real reason for present day depression the answer can be found in the cartoon, "The National Terror," in THE TRIBUNE of this date. Men of means and ability to handle large affairs are intimidated by the constant interference of the government in business, consequently are sitting tight to see what happens while willing workers walk the streets seeking employment with curtailed buying power, all of which reflect on the American farmer. Our government agencies are dominated by fanatics and busybodies. There was so much favorable comment on this cartoon in the Peoria Union Stock Yards by farmers and business men that I take the liberty of telling you.

ROSS H. STRAIN, President Peoria Live Stock Exchange.

OUT OF THE TROUGH.

Chicago, May 18.—On returning to the city after an absence of a few days I had my attention called to your editorial of last Sunday in which you answered the questionnaire sent out by Congressman Rainey. I want to express my appreciation for this editoral, and to congratulate you on the courageous and very able way in which you have handled this subject. Certainly we can expect to make no impression anywhere with the preachment of economy so long as we would insist on keeping our own feet in the trough. OTTO C. DOERING.

ABOUT PORTO RICO.

Chicago, May 19.—Permit me to answer your article on Porto Rico and her problems. The granting of complete independence to the beautiful island is the solution of the problem. Racially Porto Rico belongs to the Latin-American nations of the new world—her culture and traditions are Iberian. The only connection between America and Porto Rico is political. The establishment of the republic of Porto Rico by America is the only solution of her problems.

PEDRO MOLINA.

THE RAILWAY POSTAL CLERKS.

Maywood, Ill., May 19.—May I comment on your editorial in today's paper, namely, "The Source of Government Wages"? I am a railway postal clerk stationed in the Chicago Terminal R. P. O. Did you know or ever stop to think how important a mail clerk is to the government? Do you realize it takes up to five years to produce a good clerk? Did you know that we are compelled to work Sundays, holidays, and do night work? Do you realize we are compelled to work as much overtime as the service requires without any different rate of pay? Do you know we are required to memorize whole states and train schedules by heart? We are required to pass examinations on this memory work with a grade of at least 97 per cent. We must purchase our own study equipment and pay for it ourselves. We study these states outside of our working hours and get not one penny for our study time. We are subject to calls at any time, regardless of when, where, or surrounding conditions. Even when we are enjoying our weekly day off or when we are on vacation we are required to tell our headquarters where we expect to be so they may call us.

Would you like to be a postal clerk? A few years ago people laughed at a postal clerk and thought him crazy for working under such conditions for what salary he received. At that time I had an uncle working as a machine man for a railroad. He was drawing $12 and $13 per day. A postal clerk never did get that much salary.

We have the best postal system in the world. We who are in the service are proud of this fact. I sometimes wonder if those outside the service appreciate this distinction. If some of your customers failed to receive their paper as they should, don't you worry, they would soon howl about it and then our service would be appreciated. Why don't you comment a little favorably on your government and mine once in a while?

FLOYD MILBY.

ON BIRTH CONTROL.

Evanston, Ill., May 26.—I have just finished reading an item on page 16 of today's TRIBUNE that is enough to make any intelligent woman's blood boil. Some inane person by the name of Emmett Whealan "speaking yesterday before the state convention of the Knights of Columbus in Aurora" has the audacity to criticize those wonderful women who are giving their time and help to the poor women in the slums, on the subject of birth control.

The great trouble, Mr. Whealan, is that this knowledge was not disseminated among the poor centuries ago. There wouldn't be such slums, such poverty, and such a large percentage of criminals if it had.

I was not fortunate enough to have had this knowledge given to me; but in the name of the women who like myself, ignorant of these important things, and poor, whose health has been broken down after repeated child bearing, who have watched their large family brought up in rags, and insufficiently nourished because there were so many—I say, courage! to you who are doing this great and human thing for womankind. Never mind the pig headed men who fight you in your daily work of relieving the distressed and poor. Intelligence must win out in the end; and that day will surely come when all women will be able to regulate their families, instead of breeding like animals.

MRS. J. C. C.

CONSUMERS FIRST.

Chicago, May 24.—It seems rather odd that a nation famous as a business people should continue so long to labor under the delusion that prosperity can be restored by giving billions to those who have something to sell and nothing to those who would buy. So far congress has provided billions for the railroads, banks, manufacturers, etc., but turns a cold shoulder to the veterans' bonus and such proposals that would place money in the hands of those who need to buy the necessities of life. Can prosperity's return be expected under such circumstances? EX-SOLDIER.

TO FEED THE HUNGRY.

Chicago, May 24.—If grocers would place a basket with a card, "Please help feed the hungry," near the cash register customers would gladly place a loaf of bread, a can of some vegetable, rice, oatmeal, potatoes, canned milk, or 10 cents' worth of something nourishing to help fill the basket. This would bring so much joy to some poor family, and surely 10 cents extra with your own grocery order would not make or break any one. Priests and ministers of the churches in the different communities could choose the neediest families.

U. S.-TOKIO FLYER FORCED BACK BY BROKEN OIL LINE

Near Crash on Takeoff of Overloaded Plane.

Seattle, Wash., May 29.—(AP)—Nathan C. Browne, New York flyer, was forced back on an attempted nonstop flight from Seattle to Tokio today by the rupture of on oil line in his monoplane, the Lone Star.

Narrowly escaping death in the takeoff from a ramp at Boeing field, blinded temporarily by hot oil, and forced to drop some of his precious fuel supply to gain altitude, Browne returned to the field after several hours in the air and immediately made plans for another flight attempt tomorrow.

While half a dozen mechanics tore into his plane to determine what caused the oil line break and to repair a broken stabilizer brace wire Browne sought attention for his oil scalded eyes.

Trees Break Stabilizer Wire.

The brace wire was broken when Browne's plane skimmed through treetops after his breath-taking dash down the runway. Browne expressed the belief the stabilizer would have fallen off before he reached Tokio, but he pushed gamely on until the oil line broke. He was gone about seven hours and a half and had reached the north tip of Vancouver island.

Browne plans to refuel in midair over the field here tomorrow. A parachute jumper, William Brooks, offered to handle the refueling hose and then drop off when Browne has enough gasoline for the Tokio flight.

The detachable landing gear on the plane was intact when Browne returned from his ill-fated hop today, but he plans to drop it tomorrow, before his midair refueling attempt, in order to lighten his plane. An auxiliary landing gear inside the fuselage would be used by Browne for landing in Tokio or en route.

Little Time Remains.

Browne said he would have to be on his way by 6 a. m. (Pacific standard time) tomorrow if he is to have a chance to win the $30,000 prize fund offered by Seattle business men, which returns to its donors if unclaimed before midnight of June 1.

The flyer said he dropped more than twenty gallons of gasoline as he left to enable the plane to clear brush, trees, and wires.

When the oil line broke and sprayed the hot lubricant over him, he said, he almost cracked up, as he was flying low. He said he climbed blindly as he wiped his goggles, but was not able to see very well as some of the oil had sprayed into his eyes. To make speed back to Seattle he emptied the main fuel tank of about 500 gallons of gasoline.

Two Wait in New York.

New York, May 29.—(AP)—Two flyers, their eyes cast toward destinations nearly 7,000 miles removed, tuned up their monoplanes today in preparation for flights which will take one east across the Atlantic and the other west to Los Angeles.

Stanislaus Felix Hausner, 32, dubbed the "mystery flyer" because of his reticence to discuss his plans, placed an order for a new artificial horizon to replace the one which ceased functioning when he was 300 miles on his way toward "London or Paris and Warsaw" last night.

Harold Bromley, also 32, the Dallas, Tex., flyer who once got well on the way from Tokio to Seattle on a nonstop flight attempt only to be similarly forced back, set 4 a. m. tomorrow as the "zero hour" for his contemplated nonstop flight to Los Angeles.

Reported Headed for Tokio.

Bromley again evaded reports that he eventually hoped to reach Tokio in a nonstop flight from Seattle.

"I never made any statement about a trans-Pacific flight," Bromley said. "This flight to Los Angeles is purely a test. I want to see what my fuel consumption is, and also my speed."

Bromley on Friday night landed at Camden, N. J., after a flight from Dallas.

Fellow aviators at the field saw evidence that he intended an over water hop later in the fact that his landing gear was so hooked up it could be dropped to lighten the load.

He ordered three drums of furnace oil for his plane, each containing 52 gallons. Officials said the total of 156 gallons was about three times as much as he should need for the 20 hour flight to the coast.

"LOOKING BACK TO 1932"

(No. 10 of a Series—Conversations in the Future)

"Boy—oh, Boy what glorious opportunities there were in 1932!"

"I remember when the newspapers were full of bargains of all kinds . . . why there was scarcely an item for the family or for the home that couldn't be picked up for the proverbial 'song'.

"Those bargain days developed a peculiar trait in human nature, as I remember. Opportunities to buy were so numerous and so inviting . . . that the sheer force of the great array of those values . . . seemed to lose its effect on the majority of men and women. So many of us failed to realize that those 'buys' could not and would not last forever . . . and because we unthinkingly procrastinated then . . . we are sincerely regretting now. There you have the 'peculiar trait' . . . the knowledge of an opportunity . . . without the urge to capitalize it. Strange, isn't it?

"There were a lot of people, however, who did spend and save in '32. I've had any number of folks show me examples of the shopping shrewdness that they exercised in those days when dollars did double duty. I've seen many a fellow look with envy at the bargains that his alert friend had secured . . . and I've heard many sighs from the women when they see the bargains that inexcusably escaped them. I congratulate those that did their buying then, to avert their sighing now.

"The lucky people today are those who are saying 'I bought' instead of 'I wish I had bought.' Wouldn't it be great if we could turn the old calendar back to 1932 and sally forth into the stores and shops and buy and buy and buy at those good old 1932 bargain prices."

Buy! A word to the wise!

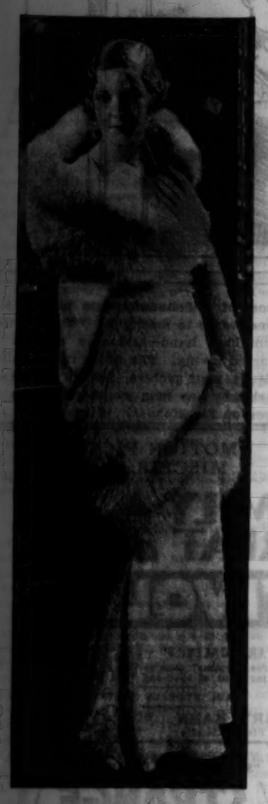
Green Velvet



This gorgeous evening wrap of green velvet and blue fox is worn over a brocaded frock of honey-beige. Modeled by Helen Vinson.

It's a Cotton Summer for Fashionables

New Clothes Offer Many Smart Features.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE fashion-wise summer shopper picks cotton with great gusto . . . cotton frocks for early morning dashes to the shops, crisp cool prints and flowered cottons for luncheons and garden parties . . . sports dresses of cleverly designed wide waled piques . . . and newest and most important of all, lots of the best looking evening gowns that cotton collectors have seen since the war.

Clothes designers must have developed a sudden enthusiasm for stuff that can commune with soapsuds and washtubs, a sudden desire to sponsor summer clothes that can be washed and dried out in the sunshine, neatly pressed with a hot iron, and then worn by the smartest clotheshounds with that spic and span well scrubbed look that reminds you of shiny nosed childhood simplicity.

The best bets for shopping binges are the new pique suits, suits consisting of either a sleeveless dress and matching jacket, or the popular skirt and tailored short coat. Navy blue, black, and a particularly sunny shade of brown are particularly practical for daytime wear . . . tiny dotted organdy, tucked net and sheer handkerchief blouses are just the things to wear with these attractive dark suits.

And there is a grand selection of lovely summer pastels, also made in pique daytime ensembles . . . delectable, soft, sky blues and dusky pinks and sunny shades of yellow, as well as watery greens and lavenders.

Country cottons are frankly rustic in color and pattern, fetching little garden dresses imprinted with garden flowers in plenty of splashing color . . . trig tennis dresses, printed to look just like diagonal wool fabrics, calicoes and ginghams, practically all the old delightful things re-instated for summer coolness.

The oldest and perhaps the oddest revival for cotton conscious clothes makers is blue and white crinkled seersucker material, some of the season's most successful models are made of this rather childish stuff . . . these new things will be greedily grabbed by gad-a-bouts who'd just as soon dabble in soapsuds, but loathe the pressing duties that usually follow.

Duets of huge cotton handkerchiefs are new, faithful pairs for your sports costumes . . . a large and swagger affair to swaddle around your throat and a not-so-large one to stow in your coat pocket . . . brilliant old fashioned red bandanna 'kerchiefs with white dotted center sections have white striped borders, large-as-luncheloth squares in lovely colors are regular India prints.

The muslin gowns right out of the pages of by-gone sentimental novels are trailing and fluttering around the shops . . . lovely, airy, fragile gowns for afternoon and evening, some are printed in luscious apple greens and old rose and delphinium blue tints, others are delicately drawn with ice green stripes, and still others are spattered with colored dots. Picture-perfect wide shirts and slender bodices with deep cape collars and contrasting satin sashes complete this captivating mode.

There are all kinds of correct cotton accessories for every costume, clever cotton handbags in white and color, cotton hats that are stitched for stiffness, cotton gloves, and cotton mesh white and colored footwear, even cotton belts and scarves and knockout cotton top-coats that will be seen everywhere during this cotton-coming-to-town invasion!

Holds Courage Is Chief Item in Foch Story

Captain Hart Writes of French General.

"Foch, the Man of Orléans," by Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart. [Little, Brown & Co.]

CAPT. LIDDELL HART is little exposed to a contagious admiration for the high command in any army, 1914-'18, but if Foch emerges from his study without a legend of miracles, he comes out fairly well for intelligence and tremendously for courage, for an inexhaustible store of a military quality which defeat could not drain and despair could not taint. He retained throughout a belief in the French military dogma of the offensive à outrance. Always to him the enemy was about to break down; his own armies were about to break through.

CAPT. HART.

In such illusions of impending success he could not always escape being pathetic if he did not come within a fine line of being ridiculous. Exhausted subordinates with beaten troops received orders which could only be dropped out of the hands into which they were put, but the inspiration back of them refused to have a vision of anything but the enemy driven from the soil of France.

Foch was a man of religious faith and habit. He made his devotions a relief and a source of strength. A religious conviction makes a stout fighter. Added to talent and courage the conviction may be decisive.

The reader will find himself indebted to Capt. Hart for an explanation, within his preparation for understanding it, of the strategy and tactics of the armies in the first movements, when on all sides the war was a plan, conceived in a vacuum and now to be subjected to its human elements and their frailties.

The Marne brought the war of original staff theory to an end in trenches, fixed in the deadlock which shook and shuddered, but remained until 1918.

In this deadlock Foch the generalissimo was born. "With hard experience," says Capt. Hart, "he had become more of an opportunist and less of a theorist. His growing tendency to opportunism bears a curious resemblance to that of an earlier, if less academic, prophet of the offensive—Ulysses S. Grant in the American civil war."

Foch brought away from the collapse of the French offensive what Moltke lost at the crest of the success of the German—his nerve. He was to need it. Ludendorff lost his, Hart says, in 1918, but Foch and his soldiers displayed the tenacity which legend, conceding them elan and audacity, had attributed to their German enemies and their British allies, but not to them. In that was the French triumph.

A British writer who has gained an American market, as Capt. Hart has, may or may not be suspect of tenderness to American sentiments. There is no evidence of it in this work. The American faults are not ignored; the American contribution is not slighted,

Concordia College for Teachers Marks 75th Anniversary

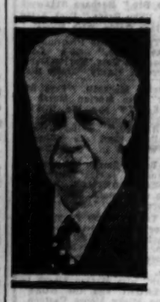
Two massmeetings attended by about 10,000 persons marked the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the Concordia Teachers' college, River Forest, yesterday. The Rev. Dr. Frederick Pfotenhauer, president of the Missouri Synod Evangelical Lutheran church, was the principal speaker at the meeting yesterday morning. Yesterday afternoon the service was held on the campus of the college with Prof. Walter A. Maier, Concordia seminary, St. Louis, the speaker.



DR. PFOTENHAUER.

The musical feature of the afternoon meeting was the singing of massed choirs of nearly 3,000 adults and children from Chicago Lutheran churches, Concordia Teachers' college was first located at Addison, in Du Page county, and was the outgrowth of the combination of Fort Wayne seminary and the synod normal schol at Milwaukee. The plan for combining the two schools was completed in 1857. The teachers' college was removed from Addison to River Forest in 1913 due to the expansion of the parochial school system maintained by the Missouri synod.

The celebration will continue through today with an athletic field day in which various seminaries and colleges maintained by the synod will compete.

President Hoover Praises Work of the Sunday Evening Club

President Hoover, unable to accept an invitation to address the Sunday Evening club, yesterday sent a message commending the work of this organization. The message, read at the final meeting of the season in Orchestra hall by Clifford W. Barnes, was:

"I will be greatly obliged if you will express my cordial greetings to the Chicago Sunday Evening club and my deep sense of their service to the community in upholding the best religious standards, for it is only upon a foundation of spiritual ideals that the structure of the nation can be soundly based."

Mr. Barnes sent a telegram thanking President Hoover for his greetings and praise.

Col. George T. Buckingham and the Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, addressed the final meeting. Preceding their talks there was a memorial service in which Charles O. Brown, commander of the U. S. Grant post, G. A. R., and Grover C. Whimsett, state chaplain of the American Legion, participated.

Brilliant Colors, Lively Tunes, Dances on Ukrainian Program

BY EDWARD MOORE.

A whirling riot of all the brilliant hues yet mixed, a succession of lively tunes, another succession of sonorous song, grave and gay, made the Ukrainian program of dance and song at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon one of the liveliest and most entertaining of the season.

It was the Ukrainian tribute to the Washington bicentennial to reproduce some of their native folk art for American eyes and ears. Vasile Avramenko had charge of a company of 100 or more dancers; Alexander Koshetz of thirty or thirty-five singers.

Eye filling and colorful as they were, it is hard to put into words the effect of the furious swirl of these dances. Solos, group dances for men alone or girls alone, of both together, ensemble dances that filled the stage, none are intended for the exchange of polite nothings of conversation. All the breath of the participants is required for dancing, and this dancing is accompanied by a prodigious amount of leaps, now knee bendings, stampings, and the air of general hilarity, to music played by a pianist, a violinist, a clarinetist, a bass fiddler, and a person who wielded a large tambourine.

Not all the dances were fast. Some were still faster. Little tots were as agile and well instructed as their elders. At the end came a hopak headed by Mr. Avramenko himself, who was just a little more elastic of knee joint and mad in gyration than any of the others.

Memoirs of the Ukraine, a dance scene, was the first, followed by folk songs of the Ukraine, wherein Mr. Koshetz and his singers participated. They were as fine in their way as their predecessors. Their words must forever remain a secret as far as I am concerned, but their melodies haunt the ears for hours after. Finally the dancers took the stage again to make a ballet picture of the young Ukrainians in America. It was a speedy, well planned, and better executed program and one that should have been here for a series instead of a single performance.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

Lake Geneva Summer Colony Holds Official Opening Today

Yacht Club to Hold First Race of Season; Many Chicagoans at Homes There

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Chicago summer colony at Lake Geneva has its more or less official opening on Memorial day and while some of the residents have been out there off and on all during the winter and spring, others have just settled down in their country places and still others will not close their town houses and apartments and really move out to the lake until a bit later.

Henry H. Porter and the Daniel Peterkins have kept their respective houses open all year, and John P. Porter and Ralph Isham (whose family domicile adjoins the Porter estate) have flown up almost every week-end.

Today finds most of the Chicago families who for so long have been an integral part of the summer colony, at the lake, including the Martin A. Ryersons, the Kellogg Fairbanks, the Charles R. Cranes, the Albert F. Madleners, the William N. Pelouzes, the Simeon B. Chapins, the Philip Wrigleys, the A. F. Gartzes, the Augustus K. Maxwells, the Tracy C. Drakes, and Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson.

Mrs. Hutchinson's estate, Wychwood, has been at its loveliest lately with all the spring flowers in bloom throughout its 70 acres and I am told it has been visited almost daily for several weeks by the different garden clubs of northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin.

Miss Jeanette Peterkin and the junior Peterkins are with their parents at Oak Lodge; Mrs. T. J. Lefens and Miss Katherine Lefens and Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Porter are on the Lefens estate; Henry C. Bartholomay and his family of Winnetka are occupying his parents' house while the elder Bartholomays are in the east for ten days or two weeks.

Miss Elinor Durbin is spending the holidays with her fiancé, S. Prentice Porter, and his father in Lake Geneva.

Boat Racing to Start Today.

The Lake Geneva Yacht club will have its official opening today when the first race of the season for class E boats will take place. Boats of the classes A and C are not ready yet, so Commodore Ernest Schmidt tells me, and he even seemed uncertain about there being enough class E boats in commission for a very exciting race. But racing will start in earnest soon and there will be races every Saturday and Sunday all during the summer.

The Inland Lakes regatta is to be held on Lake Geneva this year, the week of Aug. 15, and that will be a gay week at the lake with boats from Minnetonka, Winnebago, Delevan, Pine and White Bear lakes sailing. The Sheridan cup race for A class boats only, at the end of each season, is an outstanding event each year. Last year Henry Porter, skipper of "The Viking," was the only sailor who succeeded in righting his boat without outside aid and in finishing the race in the face of a stiff breeze.

It has been reported that Mrs. Waller Borden has taken a house at Lake Geneva for the summer but Mrs. Borden tells me she has made no plans so far for the summer and that she is to remain in town with occasional visits to her daughters in Lake Forest until July anyway. She spent this week-end in Lake Forest with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, in the new house into which they have just moved.

Mrs. Borden's other son-in-law and daughter, the Robert S. Firies, went up to the Island club in Wisconsin to spend the long week-end with a party of young people, including Miss Betty Frey, Hulburd Johnston, and his brother-in-law and sister, the Conway Olmsteds, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Laflin, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Valentine and Miss Eleanor McCormick.

Holiday Travels and Visitors.

Prince Michael Cantacuzene is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn in Lake Forest over the holiday week-end. Princess Cantacuzene and the children have gone east to spend the summer on Cape Cod with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pelham Curtis.

Miss Sophia Harrington and her fiancé, Jacob Bischof, are in Cleveland for the week-end to be members of a house party the junior Warren Bicknells are giving to celebrate having been married six months. Mr. Bischoff was a member of their wedding party when the former Kate Hanna and young Mr. Bicknell, who lived in Chicago for two years and made many friends here, were married last November.

Clayton Mark's house was a gay gathering place over the holiday week-end with friends dropping in to welcome Mrs. Avery Rockefeller [Anna Mark] of Greenwich, Conn., who arrived on Friday for a visit with her father and her sisters here. Mrs. Alvin Ehret Jr. [Scytha Mark] of Philadelphia has been visiting her father for about three weeks, so the presence of the two sisters from the east provides an opportunity for family reunions. Mrs. Ehret and Mrs. Rockefeller will remain in Lake Forest until the coming week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell were week-end guests of Dr. and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson at their estate near Dundee.

Chauncey McCormicks at Wheaton Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and their sons, Charles and Brooks, are spending the week-end at their Wheaton estate. They will close their town apartment on Lake View avenue about June 10 and move out to Wheaton for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Welch of Lake Forest and their children are spending a quiet week-end at their farm near Antioch.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Porter Goss who have been visiting Mr. Goss' parents in Waterbury, Conn., have returned and are with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Sheppard Stone of 1260 Astor street for a few weeks before they take an apartment of their own.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Mitchell and their two children will arrive on June 6 for a visit with their relatives and to join Mr. Mitchell's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Payne Kellogg of Lake Forest, and their two children for the start on an European holiday. The party will sail from Quebec on the Empress of Britain on June 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty and their family moved on Saturday from their apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive to Halcyon Hall, their Highland Park estate for the summer. Miss Veronese Beatty, who has been working so diligently at her sculpture that she passed up her annual winter holiday in Florida last winter so as not to interrupt her studies here, plans to commute during the summer and continue her lessons at the Chicago School of Sculpture. She had planned to go to Europe to study this summer, but the trip has been postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn returned on Friday from the Association of Commerce convention in San Francisco. They lingered for a few days at the Ahwahnee in Yosemite and now, Mrs. Strawn says, they're "home for good" or at least for the summer. They do not plan to go to Lake Forest this year, but will stay in town during most of the warm weather, and they'll probably enjoy their stay here after their almost continuous travels of the last eight months.

Fraternity Supper Dance.

Psi Omega fraternity will hold a supper dance next Saturday evening at the Belmont hotel.

American Art Academy Gives Student Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The annual exhibition of work by the students and members of the faculty of the American Academy of Art has just opened in the school quarters in Kimball hall, 25 East Jackson boulevard. It is an interesting show, with various lines of art illustrated in a worth while manner.

The interior decorating sketches are of particular importance. The oils and drawings run, perhaps, more or less true to student type, but in some of the whimsical interpretations of incidents to be used as book illustrations or advertisements the commonplace gives way to delicious originality.

Members of the faculty include Oskar Gross, Sudduth Goff, R. Fayerweather Babcock, Fred Gray, Marie O'Mara, Charles Wilimovsky, and Frank H. Young, who is also director of the school. Their exhibit is small but characteristic. Oskar Gross' "Self-Portrait" is excellent and Marie O'Mara has a number of delightful sketches. The exhibit will continue to June 5.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts is sponsoring the one-man show of paintings by Torey Ross in the Florentine room, Congress hotel. That room is not kind to pictures, being exceptionally badly lighted. Mr. Ross does the best he can with the space at his disposal and the scattered canvases make something of an impression. His work is not big in any sense of the word, but is possessed of a dignified charm. Among his portraits the girl "Virginia" stands out as exceptionally vivacious and natural. The exhibit continues to June 30.

An exhibit of advertising and sales photographs appearing in newspapers and magazines throughout the country opened yesterday in the New Bismarck hotel, to continue through June 4. The exhibit is sponsored by Printed Salesmanship, an advertising publication, and includes about 150 of the best photographs to have appeared in local and national advertising. The exhibit undoubtedly will prove of value to the many persons interested in amateur and professional photography.

Good morning!

"Radio Patrol" is exciting gang fare of a slightly "different" sort.

It stresses the activities of the police as against those of a desperate gang of human rats who have swarmed in from other parts of the country to infest the former's city. While doing so it presents interesting glimpses into the lives lived by our guardians of the law from their days in rookie school to those when, full fledged and equipped with experience and knowledge of one sort and another, they match wits and gunfire with law breakers.

Woven through the blue, black and red of this tapestry is a silvery thread of romance. Two radio car cops love the same girl, one of whom she marries. The other—and please note the work and extraordinarily appealing personality of Russell Hopton whom you've seen but probably never particularly noticed before—stands by the two through thick and thin. And at the last the thin is p-r-e-t-t-y thick——!

Robert Armstrong is excellent in the not particularly sympathetic rôle of a cop with his hand out. Lila Lee plays the feminine lead with her usual quiet charm. June Clyde and Andy Devine are effective in minor bits, while Sidney Toler qualifies as a hard bitten kind hearted sergeant who has raised the rookies from pups and is in charge of them after they receive their badges.

The story has considerable believable incident and also many of those little human touches that endear a photoplay to an observer. Dialogue is intelligent and direction was able.

All in all, you see, you're having "Radio Patrol" recommended to you.

See you tomorrow!

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her restless young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Cynthia, the eldest, has been deserted by her husband. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Consadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns her she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets in a jam. Esmee promises to get him money. She's afraid to ask Jimmy. She meets Arthur Twining at the home of a former woman employer. He is attentive to Esmee, impressed by her beauty and guilelessness. In her anguish she tells him her troubles and he offers to help. Arthur's roommate is Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright, imbued with the futility of life. When Esmee meets him it's love at first sight and she feels his need of her is real. Esmee is late keeping a dinner engagement with Michael, because of Jimmy, who threatens trouble. When she gets to Michael's apartment she is met by Twining and Michael's sister, Mrs. Cowley, but no Michael. Returning home she finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. When she calls the hotel next morning she learns that Michael has checked out.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

PAYING FOR ONE MISTAKE.

Esmee wanted no lunch now; she drank a cup of coffee and went back to the office.

"If I took more interest in my work," she thought.

That would be so great a comfort. If she could be efficient and successful, like Miss Bartram; if she could come to her work with zest, find it absorbing. But she saw no least hope of ever being like Miss Bartram, or ever being successful. She was simply Esmee Sully, whose fragile fingers made too many mistakes in typing—the girl who didn't know what these other girls knew, who was never quite sure, always a little dazed by this world she had entered.

"Telephone, Miss Sully!"

"I knew it!" she cried to herself. "I knew he'd ring up."

But it was Lew's voice that spoke to her.

"Esmee . . . look here . . . I've got to speak to you; I'm downstairs here, in the arcade. Can you come down?"

"I don't . . . Yes . . . I will . . ."

"I'll be waiting by the cigarstand. Don't be long!"

It seemed to her a singularly inauspicious time to ask permission to leave the office, so she went without, slipped out when she hoped no one was noticing.

Lew was wearing his best dark blue suit, a blue shirt and a black tie; he was shabby, but he had his own odd air of fastidiousness. He came toward her, drew her aside into a corner.

"Look here!" he said. "I've been . . . I'm sorry, Esmee."

"O, Lew, dear . . . "

"I feel—I mean—when I said those things to you, I got thinking about them when you didn't come home; I stayed up all night."

"O, Lew! Poor Lew!"

"I wanted to tell you last night. I—I felt—Es, I know you're all right."

She could not cry here in the lobby. She could only take his hand and squeeze it violently.

"I couldn't stand seeing you with that drunken——"

"Don't talk about him, please, Lew. If you knew him better——"

"I don't want to know him. Es, I've been thinking; I'm in bad."

"How, Lew?"

"I mean, Consadine got me out of this jam, but now he thinks he owns me. And he's got a lot of influence. Esmee, d'you know what that fellow is?"

"He's got blood on his hands, Esmee."

"He's a lawyer, Lew," she said dubiously.

"And how! He's a crook lawyer. He's—God! If you knew what that fellow was. It makes me sick to think of you; you don't know. He's—Es——" He stopped a moment. "He's got blood on his hands, Esmee."

She was silent, looking at him, strangely and dreadfully impressed by that expression. She did not doubt the truth of it. Hadn't she known in her heart, from the very beginning, that Jimmy was like that? Because he was handsome, because he had spoken of love to her when she was so lonely, so lost, she had thought she loved him. She had wanted to love him. She had wanted security and reassurance. She had tried not to admit her own doubts and suspicions.

"Now he thinks he owns me," Lew went on. "I don't want to worry you, Es, but if I tried to cut loose from the crowd now he'd stop me, all right. Some of his friends would take me for a nice little ride——"

"Lew," she said in a whisper, "O, what can we do?"

"I'm going to clear out," he said. "I'm going up to Canada tonight. You see, Consadine told me he didn't trust me. He said I was the kind to make trouble. He wants to get me in so deep that I can't squeal. Well, I don't want to squeal. I just want to get out. And make a fresh start."

"Lew, you don't mean that Jimmy's a—gunman?"

"Not much! He doesn't take any of the risks. He's got plenty of saps to do his dirty work. But, you don't know how his crowd sort of—of edges into the lives of other people. I mean you read about the underworld and all that and you think it's just a bunch of crooks. But it isn't. I mean, a bird like Consadine's got police protection. No one can touch him. He's respectable. Anyhow, lots of people think he is. He plays safe. He's damned smart. Es, he wants you and he thinks he can get you if he's got me fixed. I've got to blow. I've got to get out, and get out quick. I'd take you with me only I think you're safer where you are. And when I'm gone you've got to drop him. You'll have trouble with him but he won't hurt you."

"Lew——"

"I've got to go now, Es—Es, dear, good-by!"

She still held his hand tight.

"You'll tell me where to write, Lew?"

"You bet! And you'll drop Consadine—quick? Never mind what he says. He won't hurt you. Swear you'll drop him?"

"I was going to, anyhow. O, Lew, how did we come to this? How did we come down so far?"

His head was averted, his glance fixed on the ground. She looked and looked at the fine clear young profile of his thin face.

"You haven't come down," he said. "I've been thinking about what that fellow said last night. He was drunk, but what he said was true, that you're—lovely and good."

"Lew!" she cried, unbearably touched.

"I got sort of infatuated with that girl," he said. "That's finished now. I'm going to start over again. Start straight." His young voice broke. "You'll see, Es. One of the days you'll see."

"I see now, Lew, darling! You just made one mistake. But, Lew! Lew, think all the time how I'm loving you and having faith in you, darling Lew. And how I'll miss you."

"Well," he said, "keep an eye on mother. She—I guess she's tried. Only she doesn't understand anything. So long, Es!"

She saw that he could not endure to say any more. She stood by the cigarstand, watching him as he walked away toward the door.

A man standing near the revolving doors came up to him, touched him on the shoulder, said something to him. Lew turned, and she had a glimpse of his face. She never forgot that look.

Lew wasn't going to get away to Canada that night. He hadn't finished paying up for his "one mistake." He went off, without another glance at her, with the swarthy, overdressed young fellow who had accosted him.

How had they come to this? How had they come down so far, she and Lew?

They were defenseless, both of them. They had no friends—no place in the world.

"I was a fool about Michael," she thought, going home on the subway. "I was a damned fool. How could there ever be anything in that? Even if he loved me it couldn't be anything. Why didn't I see that before? I'd better stop loving him, quick. I couldn't do him anything but harm."

There was a look on her face it had never worn before—a somber, bitter resolution.

"I belong with my people," she thought. "I wouldn't just desert them, even for Michael. And he can't get mixed up with us. I wouldn't let him even if he cared; I don't suppose he cares much. Like Jimmy, perhaps, I suppose I'm pretty. Men like me—that way. Well, all right! I don't like them; I'm not going any farther down . . . " her lips trembled. "I'm going to be like Miss Bartram. I'm not going to care if I have a good time. I'm going to work and get ahead. I'll make money so that we can live in a nice, clean little place. I'll fool Jimmy. I'll tell him lies so that I can get Lew away from him."

She tried to picture herself like Miss Bartram—going home to a little house in the suburbs, Lew with a good job, her mother in a nice black dress.

"And an Irish terrier," she thought.

But she wanted Michael, longed for him, and nothing else.

"Well, you can forget that!" she said to herself. "If he ever wants to see you again, all right, you can see him. But you've got to realize it can't ever be anything . . . and probably he won't want to see you. He could have telephoned if he'd wanted to. Only he probably thinks I am horrible to go to that hotel with him."

Mrs. Sully opened the door for her with the same warm and tender smile.

Portrait Girl Paints of Self Is Unsavory One

Stands Out in True Colors as Selfish, Cruel.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I come to ask you what to do. I am 25 and have had a good education. I am a stenographer earning $125 a month. I am living at home with my parents. They are not well to do. They cannot dress as well as they would like to nor could I dress as well if I lived away from home.

"It costs them quite a lot to feed me and keep my room up as I want it. I do not pay one cent for board or room as I feel this is my home. My parents owe on the house still, as they spent money for my education and gave me every chance in the world to meet people and be something. I have all the money I earn to spend on myself and naturally have a nice fur coat, own a nice car, and have everything in life one could wish for."

The above is a photograph of the girl, self-submitted. To abbreviate the rest of her letter, she is engaged to a man, 30, temporarily out of work. She gives him spending money and lets him use her car to take her places. She pays the gas bills, pays for the shows, etc.

They've been keeping company for eight years. She cannot see that he makes much headway toward marriage.

She asks: "Do you think it fair to have my parents give until it hurts to me when I am old enough to want a home of my own?" She tells that there are three sisters to be educated yet, whom she will not help as she feels she works for her money and should enjoy it.

Her mother's health is poor. She needs a rest, but father cannot afford a maid as there are six in the family.

"As I say," she concludes, "I do not offer to pay room or board, for they may as well help me by letting me live at home so I can dress nicely, save some money for myself and still run a car for my boy friend and myself."

Thus is completed the picture of what we feel perfectly privileged to call a selfish little beast. Money for a car for herself and boy friend, money for a fur coat, for good clothes—but not a cent for the ill and tired mother who gave her very chance.

Queer, though, the way life has of meting out its own punishments. The cost of selfishness comes high. No one wants to marry it. Withhold the unselfish hand—and fate decrees a forced giving. The order rarely fails. Study your picture, Selfish Girl. And ask why any man would rush to take you on for life!

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Freddie refused to eat his dinner, and his father said, "When I was a little boy we ate whatever we were given and were satisfied."

Freddie said, "Well, Dad, aren't you glad you live with us now?" L. A.

We were riding through the country and passed an orchard where the cherry trees were in full bloom. My little brother, age 4, looked out and cried excitedly, "O look at all the popcorn on the trees." E. D.

Old Documents Tell of 31 Cent Writs of Error

One Dollar Top Fee for a Lawsuit.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A LAWYER today may collect one bill out of every ten and still maintain his skyscraper suite, but the barrister of a century ago did well to keep a rolltop desk, a swivel chair, and a shingle on returns totaling 100 per cent. Gone are the days of 88 cent lawsuits and 31 cent writs of error!

Charles E. Strohm gave proof of these old time fees the other day when he produced a moth eaten legal bill along with three other letters that shed interesting sidelights on professional and commercial activities a dozen decades back. Each paper is the product of Galena, that Illinois town where Gen. Grant lived in his obscurity and his renown, and belonged to the family of Hempsteads, related to that distinguished Galena settler, Elihu B. Washburn, one time secretary of state and ambassador to France. Down through the generations they have been carefully preserved, only recently coming into the possession of Mr. Strohm.

The legal bill—130 years old—is rendered by a certain Thomas Peckham to the retail dry goods firm of Robbins & Hempstead for services covering a period of six months. Nineteen law suits and more than 50 writs of error are listed—all in long hand. The total is $35.17. And of this amount $1.60 has been deducted, as Mr. Peckham states at the end, for "mischarge." One dollar is the top price for any one of the law suits and this fee the pioneer practitioner only dared to charge in three of the nineteen cases.

Payment was prompt in 1802, at least as indicated by the bill, for the last service was rendered on April 21 and the statement is receipted "in full" seven days later. What a pleasant custom!

But not everything was "cash and carry" in Galena in the first decade of the 19th century for a wholesale grocery bill, one of Mr. Strohm's documents, shows that credit was extended and that there was such a thing as an installment plan. This statement addressed by the firm of Smith & Ferguson, a wholesale dry goods company in St. Louis, to Mr. Hempstead's Galena store, explains that the total of $2,989.98 is to be paid in four installments over a period of one year.

The wholesale prices listed are, strangely enough, quite in contrast to the ridiculously cheap legal fees—43 cents for a yard of calico, $1.95 for a piece of blue cloth, and $2.25 for an Indian knife. The carriage fee for transporting the order [weighing 1,959 pounds] from St. Louis to Galena is listed as $137.13. Of course, shipment had to be made by stage, the same way mail was carried.

Each one of Mr. Strohm's letters antedates the postage stamp which, you may remember, came into use in 1847 when the United States government followed the lead of Great Britain. The paper sheets [minus envelopes] are folded, sealed with wax, and the carrier's charge marked in the upper right hand corner. There is a cancellation mark on each letter, indicating that this preceded the use of the postage stamp.

One of the letters cost 12 cents to carry, another 8 cents, for postage in those days depended chiefly on the distance the stage had to travel. Not until the advent of steam and electricity were domestic rates, based on the weight and character of mailable matter, established.

Brown rice—wild rice—Indian rice—you may have heard it called by any or all of these names, but it's all one and the same food—and a most delicious and interesting food, to boot.

Until quite recently wild rice was so rare in the city that it was practically impossible to secure, and then only at prohibitive prices. Today this pleasantly flavored brown cereal is becoming considerably more abundant and therefore within the reach of all of us for occasional treats, if not for common use.

But if wild rice is a new delicacy for us, it's an old, old story, and a very important one, in the lives of the northern Indian tribes. It is a native of northern Minnesota, where the Chippewa Indians have for generations used it as one of their principal foods. And, interestingly enough—and the reason why we pay so dearly for it—wild rice is still harvested in the same way that it was hundreds of years ago. Due to the fact that it grows in shallow lakes and swamps, it must be gathered in boats or canoes which can make headway through the tangled grain. And since no bright soul has yet discovered a wild rice harvester, the Indian still sits in the bottom of the boat with a large canvas in front of him. With one short, stout stick he pulls swaths of the grain over the canoe edge and with the other gives the rice heads a smart blow, knocking the grain off into the canvas.

The rice is then paddled back to the shore and bruised with poles to remove the chaff, which is winnowed from it in the wind. No wonder, with all this patient labor and the miles between the rice swamps and the market, that prices soar.

But when we can indulge our families in wild rice it is well worth the whistle. In the hunting season game enthusiasts grow simply inarticulate over descriptions of duck, pheasant, and quail stuffed or served with Indian rice. There's no doubt about it. There is a sweetness—a "gaminess" of flavor, if you will—which cultivated and civilized rice does not give.

The cooking method for wild rice is simple—and a wide variety of uses suggest themselves as the pot bubbles and the brown kernels grow tender and fluffy. To prepare it, wash well, and place in a kettle half full of cold water. Salt lightly, bring to a boil, and boil for twenty-five minutes, or until tender. Drain and let the rice steam dry. Serve hot with butter or with sugar and cream.

Since we save the most food value by cooking in a small amount of water, I have found that by cooking wild rice in the top of a double boiler, with one cup of rice to one and one-half cups of water, one teaspoon of salt, and a tablespoon of butter, all of the water may be absorbed during the cooking. A little more water may be added if necessary.

WILD RICE STUFFING FOR GAME OR FISH.

1 cup wild rice.
1 cup stale bread crumbs.
1½ teaspoons salt.
2 tablespoons butter.
3 tablespoons chopped nuts or peanut butter.
1 2-3 cups chopped celery.
1 tablespoon minced onion.
1 egg, well beaten.

Cook the rice as directed above and combine with the other ingredients. Add hot water, if necessary, to make the dressing of packing consistency. Use as a stuffing for any type of wild game or fish.

Wild rice may be used in almost any recipe which calls for ordinary rice. Pilaus of egg and wild rice, or of vegetables and meats combined with the brown grain make excellent eating. Another tasy luncheon dish is a wild rice and tomato special.

WILD RICE-TOMATOR PILAU.

1 cup tomatoes, scalded.
1 cup wild rice.
2 tablespoons minced bacon.
3 cups boiling meat stock.
2 tablespoons minced onion.
1 teaspoon salt.
Pepper and cayenne to taste.
1 teaspoon sugar, if desired.

Wash the rice well. Fry the bacon and onions together, and add the stock and tomato, both hot. Add seasoning. Sift in the rice and boil ten minutes. Turn into a double boiler, add one-fourth cup of chopped green pepper, and cook about forty minutes, or until the rice is tender. Turn out on a hot platter and surround with bacon curls.

Paraffin Bath Sometimes Has Valued Effect

Psychological Reaction Is Important.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

In answer to "Mrs. J.'s" request to be told about paraffin baths and of what the treatment consists: In these baths you are coated with a hot wax compound and wrapped in sheets of wax paper. You are greased with a cream supposed to induce perspiration and which, no doubt, does induce it.

I feel about these sweating methods of weight loss that if they have the psychological effect of putting you in the mood for earnest disposal of excess weight they serve an excellent purpose. Ordinarily, however, what happens is that the water that is sweated out of the system is not conducive to permanent weight loss.

Once you take water again into the system—and you do this in the ordinary consumption of food, consisting as it does of large percentage of water, and in addition you drink water and other liquids—the loss in weight is recovered quickly. But, as I say, I believe in the psychological value of certain things relative to beauty because they inspire women with hope and set them in the way of doing things of permanent value.

The hot steam baths and epsom salts baths and other types of baths come under a like category. Psychologically their value is often better than the actual physical accomplishment. This is only in case they are not overdone, however! I know of one case, at least, of a woman who made a wreck of herself overdoing the hot daily bath in which was immersed some so-called reducing ingredient. A very hot bath is weakening and should be taken not more than once a week. A rest period should follow and a shower should be taken to offset cold and restimulate blood and muscle.

If one has the money to spend on the luxury of a paraffin bath or any of those named, who is to stay the individual's wish? The urge to those who can afford such treatment is good for employment and, as I say, it has a certain valuable psychological effect on the woman herself.

Women with extra weight get down in the dumps about themselves since friends and relatives are not sparing with their criticism, and a good treatment may buoy them up, since it is the business of salon proprietors to encourage patients to help themselves.

Bright Colors Harness Paris Evening Frock

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Madeliene Vionnet, that super-woman of the French fashion makers, has put the smartest Parisiennes into harness for summer. Her harnessed evening frocks are the last word in chic for formal wear. She makes most of her dresses in pale shades like a baby blue, pink, and such tones, and around the bodices she twists and drapes bright harnesses of silk or velvet.

The Vionnet evening frock continues, also, to be a garment of semi-sheer material worn over nothing but silk shorts in one-piece bathing suit cut, but as she has been doing this for some time, and women have kept on insisting on genuine slips instead when they bought copies, this part of the Vionnet mode remains only a promise. They take to the harness, however, without one single little quibble.

The way in which Vionnet applies the harness is varied a lot, but the evening frock, sketched today, will show you the idea. This dress is made of a pale blue soft, semi-transparent silk crêpe cut on the bias, and the harness is bright red velvet. It is spread from a knot at the front, in spokes or rays that give the bertha a striped effect and that pass under the arms and twist across each other at the back.

Persia Will Assist Youths Attending American Colleges

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Persia, May 29.—With the approval of the majiess, the Persian parliament, governmental agencies are going to the support of Persian youths who are students in American universities.

The fall in the price of silver makes it impossible for parents of these students to support them in a country still on the gold standard. They are forced to pay about three times as much for the dollar as they did when these young men left for the United States.

The government has decided to pay each boy $100 a month for his living and college charges. The parents must provide his clothing and pay for other small expenses.

Nervous Parent Has Trouble in Training Child

Youngster Is Sure to Feel the Effect.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Here are three similar questions:

"Both my children are disobedient and I have a hard time to control them. I am a very nervous woman. The girl is high strung and has a wild temper. What can I do?"

"I am a nervous mother and I am afraid my son has been born with nerves. We get on each other's nerves so when he disobeys me I could almost shake him. Do give me some advice!"

"My nerves are at the snapping point and my entire life is being spoiled. Can you help me?"

These are just three extracts from the many letters I receive saying the same thing: "I am a nervous wreck"; "I am a bundle of nerves"; "My nerves are ragged"; "My child has inherited my nerves."

I wonder if mothers realize the deeply disastrous effects that nerves can have on their children, and how it unfits them for handling and managing them. The effect of nerves is much more insidious—much less obvious—than the effects of bad management and lack of understanding. And nerves are one of the most communicable—shall we say contagious—things there are. Tension in the air, "edginess," unevenness of temper—all due to nerves—can raise ructions with children and incapacitate a person from handling this whole matter of parenthood.

And do you think we can hide it? A friend of mine told me one day of an episode in her family. She was nervous for some reason and realizing that she must try to control it before the children she was congratulating herself on her success when she heard them tiptoeing down the stairs, and the eldest saying to the others, "Now we must all try to be as good as possible today because mother is so nervous."

As one consulting psychologist said recently, "If parents could understand themselves and straighten out their own lives they would automatically clear up most of the trouble they have with their children."

Canal Employes Donate $250 for Illinois Jobless

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., May 29.—Canal employés are contributing a second $250 to send to Marion, Ill., home town of former Congressman Edward E. The Federal Employé's union, No. 6, is handling the matter as a tribute of esteem for the work Dennison has done in behalf of retirement pay for government employés on the canal.

Movie Group Goes North to Film 'Eskimo'

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., May 29.—[Special.]—Headed by W. S. Van Dyke, movie director, producer and adventurer, seventeen technicians, cameramen and studio mechanics today were en route to Seattle on the first lap of a 13,000 mile trip to the farthest north inhabitable point under the American flag. They expect to film a motion picture called "Eskimo," based on Freuchen's story of 35 years with the Arctic tribesmen, and are going away in full expectation of being frozen in all next winter. A few actors will join the company at sea or at home.

Van Dyke's main party is taking the steamer Victoria at Seattle and transferring to the whaling schooner Nanook at Nome, with fifty tons of food supplies, medical equipment, camping supplies and essential technical movie equipment.

Van Dyke, head of the enterprise, made similar field expeditions to record "Trader Horn" in Africa, "White Shadows in the South Seas" in Tahiti, and "Cuban Love Song" in Cuba. John Miljan was to have gone north with the Eskimo company, and so were several Chinese, American and Japanese—American girls who were to enact the main feminine rôles. Miljan was kept in Hollywood because he had already been cast in prominent parts for a succession of films at the studio.

Writers and members of the Hollywood film colony joined this afternoon in funeral services for Joseph Jackson, screen writer, who lost his life while battling a rip tide at the beach last Thursday. The services were conducted by the Rev. Neal Dodd, Episcopal chaplain of the movies.

The condition of Mrs. Jackson, the former Ethel Shannon, screen beauty, was still serious as the result of shock over her husband's death. Jackson was mourned by hundreds who knew him as one of the most popular young men to climb from the ranks—meaning a press agent's job—to a position of consequence.

Something new under the sun discovery—a motion picture business agent who worked hard representing a client without pay from May, 1931, until October, of the same year. The agent is George Frank. The client was Jimmy Cagney who was having contract troubles with Warner Brothers and not drawing much money part of the time, while being compelled to split the salary he did draw with an opposition agent the rest of the time. Frank and Cagney were boyhood friends.

Douglas Churchill, former managing editor for the Vanderbilt Los Angeles tabloid paper, and now a writer on movies, calls Hollywood "the psychopathic ward of art."

THE STAGE

The Playhouse announces a comedy called "Love on Approval" for a première next Sunday night. This is a new play, of no background except a few trial performances in the east. George L. Spaulding is the author and Ray Payton, who staged "The Rap" at the Studebaker theater in the summer of 1930, is the producer. The cast will include Miss Cecil Spooner, Victor Sutherland, Sonia Karlov, Jean Cleveland, Kathryn Meskyl, and Rex Carlton. The story of "Love on Approval" deals with some unconventional young people testing their luck and their freedom in Greenwich Village, and their worried parents.

Miss Spooner's last apearance in Chicago was in "The House of Fear," at the Playhouse in the fall of 1930. Miss Karlov was prominent in the cast of "Sisters of the Chorus" during its long run at the Apollo theater in the summer of 1930.

"Rhapsody in Black" disappeared from the Apollo theater over the week-end, on short notice. George White's "Scandals," at the Civic Opera house, and "The Devil Passes," at the Selwyn theater, will end their Chicago engagements and their seasons next Saturday night. The "Scandals" will drop the usual Wednesday matinee from its schedule of performances this week. C. C.

140,000 GATHER TODAY FOR 500 MILE AUTO RACE

Forty Cars to Whirl Around Saucer.

Auto Race Facts

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 29. — [Special.] — Salient facts about tomorrow's automobile race here follow:

Event—Twentieth annual Memorial day race.

Place—Indianapolis motor speedway.

Distance—500 miles, 200 laps on a 2½ mile track.

Starters—Forty, awarded post positions on basis of speed in qualifying trials.

Starting time—11 a. m. Chicago time.

Track record—101.13 miles per hour set by Peter De Paolo in 1925.

Weather forecast — Fair and warm.

Probable attendance—140,000.

No radio broadcast.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., May 29.—A crowd of 140,000, probably the largest that will see a sporting event this year, is expected here tomorrow when 40 drivers start in the annual Memorial day 500 mile automobile race at the Indianapolis Speedway—a race, which, because of the speed attained in the qualifying trials, gives promise of providing more thrills than any of the 19 that have preceded it.

So great was the speed in the qualifying trials that officials look for the fastest time in the history of the automobile classic, beating Peter De Paolo's record of 101.13 set in 1925, with a corresponding increase in the number of spills. Already a driver and a mechanic have been killed and another mechanic was sent to the hospital seriously injured. At least a half dozen drivers escaped injury only by seeming miracles in the numerous crackups that marked the preliminary trials.

The high speed registered in the qualifying trips around the two and a half mile brick oval and which is expected to be duplicated, if not exceeded tomorrow, calls upon the drivers to exercise unusual skill and sportsmanship to avert accidents. To reduce the hazard of a jam for the pole position after the starter's bomb has exploded, the contest board has abolished the lap prizes for the first three whirls around the brick saucer, hoping that the cars will be thinned out when the sprinting for prizes begins on the fourth lap.

Moore in Pole Position.

The race starts at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, central standard time [11 o'clock Chicago time] with Lou Moore of Hollywood, Cal., in the pole position by virtue of his best record in the qualifying trials, when he averaged 117 miles an hour for four laps, a distance of 10 miles. Beside him in the front row Billy Arnold of Chicago, who was recently married, and Bryan Saulpaugh of Rock Island, Ill., will line their cars. Arnold, who won the race in 1930, is returning to the track which robbed him of victory and sent him to the hospital for six months. Arnold was in the lead, whirling along at a steady pace that seemed destined to carry him to his second successive victory, when his car threw a wheel and crashed through the wall of the track.

Arnold won his position in the front row by spinning his car over the ten mile qualifying distance at a rate of 116.290 miles per hour, while Saulpaugh averaged 114.369.

Behind these three leaders will be R. Snowberger, Ira Hall, and Howard Wilcox in the second row, and Louis Meyer, the winner in 1928, Paul Bost and Billy Winn in the third row. For thirteen rows the roaring speed machines will line up three abreast, while Kelly Petillow, whose speed of 104.645 miles per hour was the slowest of the fortunate 40 who qualified, will bring up the rear, alone in the fourteenth row. Louis Schneider, last year's winner, is in the tenth row. In reserve will be George Howe and Jim Patterson, the two fastest of the many who failed to qualify, hoping for a chance to make the start. They will get into the lineup if any of the others fail to start, the American Automobile association contest board having limited the number of starters to 40.

Powered with Stock Motors.

Fourteen of the 40 cars are part stock, powered with the regular stock motors used in passenger automobiles, altered slightly to meet the requirements of the race. Ernie Triplette will be driving one of the newest creations, a floating power model, with the motor cradled in rubber. Gus Schrader of Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Bob McDonough of Detroit will be piloting cars with four wheel drives. Most of the motors are eight cylindered, with several fours entered. Five of the cars have front wheel drives.

At sundown at the main gate to the Speedway there were 300 cars parked in the ditch waiting for the entrance to open at 6 a. m. to get choice position in the infield. By midnight there will be 1,500 cars in line judging from the experience of former years. At the head of the line are two young fellows from Texas who have been camped there for two weeks to as-

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., May 29.—Pitiable weakness in the pinches, which permitted 11 runners to die on the bases, was the main reason that the White Sox this afternoon lost the final of the five game series with the Detroit Tigers, 4 to 3. This made it four out of five defeats for the Chicagoans in the visit just terminated.

Combined with the Sox's inability to deliver in the jams was the superhuman second base activity of Charley Gehringer, who figured in three crushing double plays, two of which he started with back handed stops followed by throws with his gloved hand. In another instance he also executed the all-gloved stunt for a force out which could have been the start of a double play but for the fact there were two out when he did it.

Rogell Is a Busy Gent.

Rogell, while somewhat less sensational than Gehringer, was said to have set a season's record when he accepted 16 of 17 chances offered him. Between them Bill and Charley had 22 chances, the only miss being when Blue succeeded in kicking the ball out of Rogell's hand when he sought to steal second.

The winning run was scored in the seventh after Luke Appling had attempted some ball flipping similar to the Gehringer trick, but instead of starting a double play, Luke found two runners safe. One of them scored the victory counter on a single through short, with two out, after Kress had been jockeyed out of position by the base runners.

The Tigers took a 2 to 0 lead in the first inning on a double by Rogell, a single by White, and a double by Gehringer. The Sox cut the lead in two in the second when Appling singled with two out and ran home on Hodapp's double.

Rah! Sox Go Into Lead.

In the first of the fourth the Sox grabbed a 3 to 2 lead. Blue got the first of nine passes issued by the Tigers and got to third on Kress' single to left center. Fothergill beat out a slow roller towards third, Blue scoring and Kress stopping at second. Appling fouled to Hayworth, but Hodapp walked, filling the bases. Kress scored and the other runners moved up while Rogell was throwing out Berry, after which Faber drew the first of his two walks. The bases were full again, but Funk was permitted to bat for himself and tapped to Gehringer.

Walker got a cheap run to tie the score in the last of the fourth. After leading off with a single Gerald stole second while Johnson was striking out. He went to third on a wild pitch and came home on Richardson's fly.

In the fifth the Sox had Blue on second and Fothergill on first with two out when Gehringer ended the BOSS GOES TO WORK—A HIT TO LEFT!

Rogers Hornsby swings at one of Ervin Brame's pitches in the eighth inning of the first game of the double header with the Pirates and the ball skims over the third baseman's head for a single. Yesterday marked the Cub manager's first appearance in a game this season. He placed himself in right field in an effort to add more punch. His appearance had the desired effect, for the Cubs whipped Pittsburgh, 7 to 3. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

OLYMPIC VILLAGE HAS A POSTOFFICE BUT NO RESIDENTS

Los Angeles, Cal., May 29.—(AP)—The Olympic village, so far as the United States postal service is concerned, is on the map, although it has as yet, no residents.

The first piece of mail directed to the international settlement, a roll of newspapers mailed from Calcutta for the Indian Olympic team, was received today. India's team is expected to land at San Francisco June 6 and move into the now deserted village three days later.

BRAVES, DODGERS END ALL SQUARE IN DOUBLE HEADER

Boston Wins, 10-6; Caldwell Retaliates, 3-2.

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 29.—(AP)—The Dodgers and the Boston Braves waged a pair of exciting battles today, but wound up just where they started, each winning one game. Boston landed on Babe Phelps for eight runs in the second inning and took the opener, 10 to 6. Brooklyn came back with a ninth inning rally behind the three-hit pitching of Dazzy Vance to capture the second game, 3 to 2.

A barrage of hits, capped by a homer by Art Shires and aided by errors by Phelps and Finn, made Boston's big rally in the first game. Despite his great pitching, Vance was trailing 2-1 going into the last half of the ninth in the second battle, but Bruce Caldwell stepped into the breach and won the game. Caldwell, pinch hitting for Vance, drove in the tying run and scored the winning tally on O'Doul's hit.

ZABALA BREAKS AMERICAN 10,000 METER RECORD

New York, May 29.—(AP)—Juan Carlos Zabala of Argentina shattered the American record for 10,000 meters today in the Metropolitan A. A. U. junior track and field championships.

The lithe, bronzed 20 year old distance star, one of South America's chief hopes in the forthcoming Olympic games, was clocked in 31 minutes 26 3-5 seconds. The listed American record of 31 minutes 28 2-5 seconds was set by Joie Ray at Cambridge, Mass., July 7, 1928.

Starting from scratch Zabala gave away handicaps of from 100 to 250 yards to eight rivals. John Connelly, unattached, finished second, almost two laps behind the winner. He was given a 200 yard handicap. Harry Werhin of the Millrose A. A., with a 100 yard handicap, was third.

Brother of Hans Lobert Dies After Operation

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—Frank J. Lobert, 43 years old, former baseball player at Bay City, Mich., Hartford, Conn., and Baltimore, died today of peritonitis following an operation. He was a brother of John B. [Hans] Lobert, of Philadelphia, former National league third baseman. Hans arrived at his brother's bedside two hours before the end. Lobert is survived by his wife, two brothers and three sisters.

POUND BALL FOR MALONE; FOLD UP BEHIND SMITH

Hornsby Makes His Debut in Field.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The debut of Manager Rogers Hornsby as a right fielder yesterday was at least a partial success. His active presence inspired the Cubs to tear loose with their bats and walk off with the front half of a double header, 7 to 3, before 36,000 attendants. But in the second game the presence of Pitcher Glen Spencer proved more potent than that of Hornsby, so the league leaders had no choice other than the acceptance of a 2 to 0 trimming from the Pirates.

It was Bob Smith's misfortune not to be picked for the opening ceremonies in which the Cubs by bunched hitting against Bill Swift and Leon Chagnon, made life comfortable for Pat Malone. Smith, pitching in about the best style he has displayed this season, surrendered only four hits in eight innings of labor. But it so happened that three of the four, featuring the Waner boys, came together in the fourth inning and the only runs of the battle blossomed therefrom. That was one of the two innings in which Pirate runners were on the bases.

Jam on Bases Hurts.

Spencer's whitewash achievement wasn't accomplished without some assistance from the men who were trying to trim him. Into the fourth inning the Chicagoans tossed a double, a pass and a single, but in the confusion Rollie Hemsley inadvertently precipitated a jam which prevented having the bags filled with one out. Hornsby, whose double started the threat, also was involved, but only because he took a chance on getting something out of Hemsley's mistake. Except for the first inning when Moore and English singled with one out, that was the only time Spencer was in real trouble.

Hornsby's hitting, which was the reason for his noble experiment, didn't amount to much, but he was a menace nevertheless and his defensive efforts were flawless. In the first battle he singled once without result, but in the fourth when the Cubs were hammering Chagnon for four decisive runs he was considered good enough to deserve an intentional pass. And in the second argument he produced the aforementioned two bagger which might have broken down Spencer's courage if Hemsley hadn't gone to a base already occupied by a runner who realized he belonged there.

FIRST GAME

The Pirates did pretty well by themselves by scoring two runs on a limited amount of hitting in the second inning. This affair started with Hornsby getting his baptism in right field by catching Traynor's fly. The manager then was given another workout chasing Barbee's double into the right field corner. Suhr walked, and this proved costly. Piet singled to right to score Barbee and put Suhr on third. Grace grounded to Jurges for a force of Piet at second, and Suhr ran home on the play.

The Cubs evening it in their half of the inning, but a fair return on the hitting they did would have been about four instead of two runs. Grimm touched off this explosion by drilling a homer into the hands of a bleacher customer in right. Hartnet singled over second. A fly to center completed Jurges' effort. Malone then set something of a record for lengthy singles. He bounced it off the left field bricks, Hartnett going to third. Moore slapped an innocent looking grounder toward Piet, who reached for the ball, only to have it take an unexpected hop over his head for a double, Hartnett scoring. Swift finished the inning by fanning Herman and then was told he was through work for the day.

Jar Chagnon in Fourth.

The Cubs shook four runs out of Chagnon in the fourth. The jarring began with Jurges getting a double on a pop fly under which Piet did a sun dance. After Malone's demise Moore doubled against the right field fence and Jurges scored. Traynor gave the Cubs a lift by pegging wild to first on Herman's grounder. English slashed a single into right, Moore scoring, Herman going to third, and English moving to second on the throw in. Hornsby was treated to an intentional pass, filling the bases. Herman scored on Stephenson's single, but English was nailed at the plate. Hornsby hiked home on a hit by Grimm. Hartnett let the rally die by fanning.

Chagnon came dangerously close to being lathered for some more runs in the fifth. He escaped only because he was able to conquer Hornsby with the bases loaded. With one out Malone and Moore singled and Herman beat out a scratch to Traynor. Suhr smothered a torrid grounder by English and tossed to the plate to force Malone. This brought Hornsby into the picture. Chagnon's first three pitches were wide, but the next three were over and the manager slapped the third one high to Baby Waner in center.

Moore Picks Off Liner.

Malone fanned two in the seventh, but just the same needed Moore's great catch to keep the Pirates from doing a bit of scoring. Piet struck out and Padden doubled. Dugas, bat-

UNLESS IT RAINS GRIFFITH BOXES ROPER TONIGHT

Open Outdoor Season at White City.

Tonight's Card

Tuffy Griffith vs. Jack Roper, heavyweights, [10].

Paul Pantaleo vs. Charlie Young, heavyweights, [6].

Buck Everett vs. Pat McLaughlin, heavyweights, [6].

Solly Dukelsky vs. Herb Peterson, 150 pounds, [4].

Jimmy Lundy vs. Johnny Panek, 140 pounds, [4].

Bob Groshek vs. Fred Langford, 163 pounds, [4].

Virgil Bemi vs. Art Donovan, 138 pounds, [4].

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tuffy Griffith, weather permitting, will box ten rounds tonight with Jack Roper at the White City outdoor arena. Nothing less than a rain storm will halt the program, but Mique Malloy, the ever hopeful promoter, would like clear skies and warm breezes. Since the indoor bout between Jack Kilbourne and Dave Shade, which grossed better than $4,000, none of Mique's productions has passed the $1,000 mark.

TUFFY GRIFFITH.

Ever Hopeful Malloy has started his outdoor campaign earlier than last year, but he still is depending on Griffith, one of the reliables, to draw the receipts. Griffith fought twice at White City last summer, defeating Paul Pantaleo and Con O'Kelly. This O'Kelly was a good attraction with the south side Irish. He couldn't hit, but no matter how often and how hard the boys hit him it didn't seem to bother him. The judges so admired this ability to absorb punishment that they voted him into a draw with King Levinsky.

From Nothing Up.

Tonight's prices range from nothing to $3.30. Women accompanied by escorts will be admitted without charge. A thousand grand stand seats are fifty cents each, while the others will bring the customary one, two and three dollars. Of course, there'll be the usual host of friends and alumni of the Malloy Presentations, Inc., crowded into the press seats.

Griffith has picked an earnest opponent tonight, but one whom he should whip barring the unexpected. Tuffy has been training since the last of April when he definitely abandoned a life of leisure for the gymnasium. The odds are Tuffy is in condition, which is most important. Tuffy once neglected his conditioning during a road engagement and the six round beating he took from Jack Gagnon taught him how important training is. That knockout by Gagnon, however, provided a financial stroke, for the return battle produced $50,000, out of which Gagnon secured his record purse and Tuffy didn't fare so badly, either.

Plenty of Support.

Supporting Griffith and Roper are six bouts featuring local talent, all boys agreeing to accept a percentage of the net receipts and all equally anxious that tonight offer pleasant circumstances for an outdoor show. Paul Pantaleo, who continues to be known as the schoolboy boxer, despite long absence from the classroom, who once was recipient of considerable public enthusiasm, so much that he fought Griffith a year ago, will meet Charlie Young tonight. The six rounds are expected to prove Young's superiority.

Another heavyweight match brings together Buck Everett and Pat McLaughlin. The younger generation of boxers hold the spot in the four round bouts, ranging from Bob Groshek of Gary, Ind., who turned professional two months ago, to the better known Johnny Panek.

Fox Seen Near Barrington by Crow Hunter

BY BOB BECKER.

Cross country hikers, bird students and others who get into the fields and forests of Chicagoland may see an occasional fox if they are lucky and if they keep a sharp lookout.

Paul H. Harper, an Evanston sportsman, has relayed to us an amusing experience he had with a fox while in a patch of woods west of Barrington, Ill., some 40 or 45 miles from the loop.

Harper was in an oak woods with his shotgun, as he picks off a number of crows each year in the course of casual hunts for these birds. While in the woods he caught sight of a crow within range and quickly fired at it. The bird received part of the shot charge and finally came down in the middle of a patch of thick brush.

Then occurred the surprise. The falling crow must have landed almost on the back of a fox because out of that patch of brush bounced old Reynard, very much startled by the fall of the crow.

Another interesting wild life inhabitant of Chicago was reported to us the other day. This was a woodcock, a nesting female that had chosen a moist tract of oak timber near Northbrook as the place in which to raise a family. A group of Prairie club hikers located this "timber doodle" as the woodcock sometimes is called.

The mother didn't leave her nest even when almost surrounded by curious and admiring hikers. But when one of her youngsters crawled out from beneath her feathers and left the nest she sprang into action. To draw attention from the little fellow who foolishly bolted from his home and mamma the mother woodcock put on the old army game of fluttering around as if she had one wing broken. The chick was caught, put into the nest and the hikers went on.

Helen Moody Steals Show in French Tennis

AUTEUIL, France, May 29.—(AP)—France won the only title decided in the French hard court tennis championships today, but Helen Wills Moody stole the show as she made her first appearance in singles play and gained the quarter final round in impressive fashion.

Ahe American champion, drawing a first round bye, allowed Marcelle Beauge of France to win only one game in winning her inaugural match, 6-0, 6-1, and then defeated the Dutch fräulein, Rolande Couquerque, 6-4, 6-2, in a third round test.

Cochet, Brugnon Win Doubles.

The men's doubles championship went to the Davis cup combination of Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, who defeated the young French team of Christian Boussus and Marcel Bernard, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3. Boussus and Bernard started out impressively, but the veterans outclassed them after the middle of the third set had been reached.

Helen Jacobs, Gregory S. Mangin, and Sidney B. Wood also checked in with American victories today, but Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke of Stamford, Conn., and Elizabeth Ryan, the veteran Californian who makes her home in England, met defeat.

Mrs. Burke was eliminated in the second round of women's singles by Mlle. Ida Adamoff, 6-3, 6-4, and Miss Ryan and her French partner, Brugnon, were eliminated in the quarter finals of mixed doubles by Betty Nuthall and Fred Perry of England, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

Helen Jacobs Wins in 3 Sets.

Miss Jacobs played unimpressively in a second round match with Fräulein Anna Peitz of Germany, but won in three sets, 4-6, 6-0, 7-5.

Wood was carried to four sets by Marcel Journu of France, 6-3, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, but his next opponent, Rene La Coste, French master, who is attempting a comeback, had to go five to down the Russian, Serge Rodzianko, 6-1, 6-3, 4-6, 3-6, 6-1. Mangin won in straight sets from Jacques Glasser, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

In other third round singles matches, H. G. N. Lee of England defeated Pierre Landry of France, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, and Jiro Satoh of Japan eliminated Andre Piel, 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4. Franz Matejka of Austria and Roderich Menzel of Czechoslovakia were a step ahead of the rest, Matejka defeated Rene de Buzelet of France in the third round, 6-1, 6-8, 6-4, 6-0, and Menzel put out Jean Bonte, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-0.

Borotra, Sigart Reach Semi-Finals.

Eileen Bennett Whittingstall of England played her first round match in singles and defeated Mme. Emery Goronitchenko, 6-3, 6-2.

In mixed doubles, Jean Borotra and Josane Sigart gained the semi-finals along with Miss Nuthall and Perry, by defeating Mme. Rene Mathieu and Martin Legeay, 6-1, 6-2. The other semi-finalists in this division are Mrs. Moody and Wood and Cochet and Mrs. Whittingstall.

TURF GALS HAVE $5,000 PARTY AT HOMEWOOD TODAY

Hilena Gets No. 19 Position, So Loses Backers.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Girls of the turf—twenty of the sweetest that are racing in the west—will run it out in the renewal of the $5,000 Debutante stakes before a big holiday crowd at Washington Park this afternoon.

If the fleet Hilena, from the Audley farm stable, had not drawn a post position on the extreme outside she could be regarded as a very dangerous contender. But if they all start Hilena will break from the No. 19 post position, which isn't any picnic at a girls' party of this kind, which is at 5½ furlongs.

So Hilena may not be the favorite, and that post of honor most likely will go to Nituma, the fleet daughter of Cherokee-Ancestress, which races for the Kentucky firm of Gallaher & Combs. The Three D's stable entry of Good Scout, Black Squaw, and Two Slipper also will have a following.

Voltina Has Backers, Too.

There were whisperings about Voltina, a California filly, and about Girl Graduate, which races for Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Greentree stable, so it appears as if this filly Hilena, about which so much is heard, will be quite an outsider. Should she win it will shock a lot of folks in the holiday throng.

The Washington Park officials are ready to entertain one of the largest crowds of the season. Usually the Memorial day attendance hits somewhere between 25,000 and 30,000, and it is expected to be that large when the young ladies parade to the post for their hair pulling contest in the Debutante.

Happy Gal, a daughter of Sir Gallahad III., already has established herself as just about the best 2 year old filly in the east. The Debutante at Washington Park today will bring her most formidable western rival to the front. There will be other hair pulling affairs between the western and eastern leaders a little later on in the season, for these young, beautiful and swift girls of the turf have their work cut out for them.

Sprinters in $1,500 Handicap.

There will be other lively goings on during the running of the holiday program. The $1,500 Memorial day handicap brings together some flyers at 6 furlongs. The field includes Don Leon, Burning Up, Ervast, Paul Bunyan, Flag Bearer, Supreme Sweet, War Saint and others.

Burning Up probably will be the favorite. He's a Chicagoan and Chicagoans like to back their friends and neighbors.

The first week of racing at Washington Park has left everything in a great turmoil. The longshots are coming home on the chin strap and the favorites are not doing so well.

Gold Step showed his heels to all the sprint stars in the Washington handicap. Sidney Grant did the same thing to the route runners in the Sweitzer handicap.

Track conditions cannot be blamed. The racing strip was at its best when these two stake fixtures were decided. It may be different when the real stars go into action later on in the season.

Most of the folks in the big holiday crowd will have an ear turned toward New York this afternoon where the Suburban handicap, in which Gallant Knight will be shuffling around trying to do his best, will be run. This is one of the most famous fixtures run anywhere in America. Chicagoans are backing the Knight to win.

Who's Who in Women's Golf

By Betty Eckersall

[This is the eighteenth of a series of articles on prominent women golfers in the Chicago district.]

MRS. LILLIAN ZECH.

Mrs. Lillian Zech has been playing golf for 15 years. Prior to becoming a member of the Tam O'Shanter club, Mrs. Zech played at Lincoln park. She won the Chicago women's public parks golf championship in 1930 by defeating Mrs. Rose Marshall, defending title holder, 7 and 5, in the 36 hole final at Marquette park. She was also a member of the foursome which won the Chicago Women's Golf association tournament at the Hinsdale Country club in 1931.

MRS. LILLIAN ZECH

She has just returned from the south where she competed in various golf tournaments.

Mrs. Zech, like many other women golfers, is endeavoring to overcome her fear of the gallery. Her short game has never been as excellent as her long game, and the fans crowding around the green bother her when putting.

Last year Mrs. Zech withdrew from public park competition and has been devoting her time to Western and Chicago district tournaments.]

"I feel as though my years of experience will be a great aid in larger tournaments," she said. "I like the new ball. It certainly has helped my putting, and hold a true course on tee shots."

CLINKSTOCK GETS PLACE ON LONDOS CARD JUNE 9TH

Jim Clinkstock, giant Indian wrestler, has been added to the outdoor card of June 9 at Wrigley field. No opponent has been secured for Clinkstock, formerly a football player at Haskell institute.

Jim Londos will headline the show, meeting Gino Garibaldi. Londos will put up his $7,500 diamond and gold belt. Hans Steinke meets Rudy Dusek in the semi-windup. Another match brings together Pat O'Shocker and George Zaharias.

Thrills of 500 Mile Race Lure 140,000 Fans

sure themselves of first place and the publicity that goes with first place.

Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone Sr., pioneers in the automobile industry, came to the Speedway this morning and spent the day looking over the cars which will start in the race.

Mechanics Tune Machines.

With their sons, who are following them in business, Mr. Ford and Mr. Firestone were guided through the rows of greasy sheds where mechanics were squirting and wiping oil in the final grooming of their sleek little runners. Ford asked a thousand technical questions and almost crawled on his knees to see mechanical parts.

Three or four of the drivers were on the track most of the morning in final practice spins around the two and a half mile brick oval.

"If you want a kick out of this driving, come on down to the turn," suggested their guide, Steve Hannagan.

Ford, in a gray striped business suit, black shoes and a sailor straw hat, led the way with short quick steps, talking with an automotive engineer about the pair of four wheel drives which are making their first appearance on the race track. Firestone, with dust on his blue serge suit, followed, using a cane.

Arnold Whirls Around.

Billy Arnold, 1930 champion, in his Miller-Hartz front wheel drive, bumped around the bend doing better than 100 miles an hour.

"Look at that driver fight the wheel to balance with the rear skid," said Ford, squinting his grey eyes and wrinkling his keen face. "Here comes another."

It was Lou Schneider, last year's winner. Others roared by.

A reporter asked the manufacturer if the day reminded him of his own racing career a quarter of a century ago.

"I only raced once in my life," he replied. "That was against Alexander Winton in 1901. We made a mile a minute with two cylinder engines. If you're going to write anything about that race, don't forget that Mr. Winton's car also finished and that the reason he didn't win is that his motor overheated."

Greater Variety of Cars.

The visitors sat through a meeting of drivers that lasted far through the lunch hour.

Firestone Jr., in a brief talk, said tomorrow's race was bringing together a greater variety of machines than ever before entered in the contest and that this year perhaps marks the re-entry of manufacturers into the annual speed classic. He referred to the Studebakers, Hudsons, Hupp, Chrysler, Buick and Graham motors which will compete with the hand built special jobs.

Edsel Ford, who will pace the racers on their starting lap, also spoke.

Gar Wood, boat racer, with flowing silver hair over a lean and tanned face, stood before the gathering and was introduced as the official starter.

Barney Oldfield, of speed fame for a couple of decades, was also on the speakers' stand. He'll be in the pits as manager or back seat driver tomorrow for the four wheel drive, piloted by Bob McDonough.

BABE HITS NO. 14 AS YANKS WHIP SENATORS, 11-8

Boost Lead to Three Full Games Again.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—(AP)—Lefty Gomes outlasted three Washington pitchers today to give New York an 11 to 8 victory and extend the Yankees first place lead to three full games again.

Apparently developing into a semi-brilliant pitching duel between two young portsiders, Gomez and Bob Burke, after the Senators scored twice in the first, the game dwindled away into a slugfest. Babe Ruth hit his 14th home run of the season over the right field fence, his third in three games.

Buddy Myer, Washington second baseman, was summarily benched by Manager Johnson after a flareup against the boss, and Kerr took his place. Score:

BOSTON, MACKS, SPLIT.

Boston, Mass., May 29.—(AP)—The Athletics and Red Sox split a double header today, Boston winning the opener, 6 to 4, behind Bob Weiland's five hit pitching and Walberg hurling shut out ball as Philadelphia took the nightcap, 3 to 0.

One of Philadelphia's five hits off Weiland was Jimmy Foxx sixteenth homer. Walhberg limited the Sox to four hits in the second game. The A's bunched four of their seven hits in the sixth inning to win.

ting for Chagnon, was also disposed of on strikes. Then Baby Waner, who was getting desperate about making a hit of some kind, beat out a bunt to English. Brother Paul drove a low liner to center and Moore, tearing in at full speed, reached down to his shoe tops to make the catch.

As a proper way of celebrating his feat, Moore singled with two out in the home seventh, stole second, and scored when Herman singled over third on a ball from which he was trying to get away. The only excitement after this was caused by the Cubs' big heartedness in the ninth. Suhr led off with a hit and survived at second when Herman failed to touch the base on a force play. Suhr then stole third and scored unnoticed on an infield out.

SECOND GAME

Smith was such a gallant performer for the first three innings of the second game that the Pirates simply walked up, turned around and walked back again. But the Waner poison got into Smith in the fourth and a pair of runs broke the monotony. Baby Waner looped a two bagger close to the line in left and sauntered home on Brother Paul's double to right center. Vaughan singled and went to second on Hornsby's return throw, which induced P. Waner to stop at third. Smith nailed the next three men, but the first of them hit a long fly on which P. Waner counted.

Here's what happened in the fourth when the Cubs tangled up on the bases in costly fashion. Hornsby's drive into the left field corner bounced over the fence for a double and Stephenson walked. Grimmed flied to center. Hemsley single to left and Hornsby, taking a cue from Coach Corriden, halted at third. Hemsley didn't look up to see what was happening, but tore toward second and was quite surprised to find Stephenson there. Hornsby then tore for the plate, but was nailed and Hemsley hustled back to first. Jurges hoisted to left for the third out.

Pirates Threaten In Eighth.

After the fourth the Pirates didn't see base again until the eighth. Grace singled to right with one out and Spencer survived on a fumble by Herman. Baby Waner was well handled on a grounder to Grimm. Brother Paul was granted an intentional pass and Smith escaped from the mixup on Vaughan's tall fly to Jurges.

The Cubs also used the eighth to get a man to base for the first time since the fourth. Richbourg, performing in the rôle of pinch batter for Smith, singled over short, but Moore tapped into a double play and Herman hoisted to Barbee. Then English revived the hopes of the multitude by opening the ninth with a single past third, but Hornsby flied to center, Stephenson bounced to Suhr, and Grimm with a 3 and 2 count looked at a third strike.

MISS TURNBULL 2D; BROTHER HAS NARROW ESCAPE

GARDONE, Italy, May 29.—(AP)—Two members of the Turnbull family, Loretta and Rupert Jr., finished well up in concluding races of the international motorboat regatta on Lake Garda today, but a third member, Raymond, had a narrow escape from serious injury in the four kilometer maneuvering race for the Montelera cup.

Loretta got her customary good start and finished second in the class B division, but lost a possible chance to win in the excitement of seeing someone cut across the bow of Raymond's boat.

"He might have been killed," she said, "but Raymond acted quickly and averted a crash only to have his motor stall."

Ruppert, in class A competition, finished fourth.

The Californians plan to go to Turin for the Grand Concourse starting June 5 and thence to Poole, England, for a special 100 mile race.

Upstate Golfers Start Play in Aurora Tourney Today

Aurora, Ill., May 29.—[Special.]—Golf stars from Chicago, Rockford, Elgin and other upstate cities will compete in the first annual Northern Illinois tournament at the new Waubensie course tomorrow. More than a hundred have entered. Among them are Gus Novotny, La Grange; Don Amrstrong, Aurora; Bill Whipple, Elgin, and Prosper Albee and Winfred Johnson, Rockford.

Cards to Look at Pitching of Bush, Grimes

The St. Louis Cardinals, who still are world champions although they don't look it, will be the guests at Wrigley field today in a double header starting at 1:30 p. m. The Cards will have to hit against Guy Bush and their old pal Burleigh Grimes, who whitewashed them last Wednesday.

The umpires were treated to a large boo in the fourth inning of the second game because they stopped Hornsby at second on his drive which bounded over the wall in left. The umps were merely carrying out the rule covering such happenings.

Jurges made quite a play in the fourth inning of the first battle when he ran back of second and picked up a bounder to throw out Piet. Another bit of sparkling defensive play came in the fifth session of the same game when Grimm, after leaving the bag to get his hands on a wide throw from Herman, wheeled around and tagged Chagnon.

In the sixth inning of the nightcap Grimm came up with another play such as only Grimm can complete. Baby Waner bounced to Jurges, who made a low throw to Grimm's right. Der Kaptink waved his right arm with the perfect swing of a bowler and the glove met the ball just as it hopped off the ground.

Bud Tinning, who is gradually being groomed for his first start as a Major leaguer, pitched the ninth of the second battle and three batters—Barbee, Suhr, and Piet—couldn't hit the ball past an infielder.

Moore, who contributed the prize play of the day when he stooped down for Paul Waner's low liner in the seventh inning of the first battle, had a big afternoon at bat. His attack netted him two doubles, two singles, and a pass in the first game. He opened the second game with a single. After that he did nothing.

11 Marooned on Bases, So Sox Lose, 4-3

Curses! Foiled Again.

The sixth saw another Sox threat suffer a cruel collapse. Hodapp walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Grube fanned, but Faber got another pass, which was enough of a tipoff on Wyatt's lack of control. After Wyatt had pitched two balls to Funk he was yanked and Hogsett went in. With this move Fonseca decided to bat for Funk. Hogsett threw a ball, which made the count on Fonseca 3 balls and no strikes. He fouled one, then grounded into a double play.

It seemed certain the Sox would break the tie in the seventh. Blue singled with one down and went to third on Kress' double. Fothergill was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Then Appling grounded to Gehringer, who launched the Tigers' third brutal double play.

In the last of the seventh Hayworth beat out a slow roller toward third and Wyatt sent a double play ball to Appling, who fumbled, both runners landing safe. Davis popped to Kress, but Rogell singled through short, scoring Hayworth with the winning run.

THOMAS, JONES TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., May 29.—The Sox rushed from Navin field to a waiting train which was to carry them to Cleveland, where tomorrow they will play a double header with the Indians. Thomas and Jones are the Chicago pitching prospects.

The Sox lost all four games previously played in Cleveland, blowing leads in three of them. But they certainly had the Clevelanders on the run in the last two games played in Chicago.

It was about 15 degrees warmer at the ball park today than on Saturday, but still pretty chilly. Quite a few of the 11,000 customers wore overcoats.

The Detroit season series to date has produced nine victories for the Tigers to four by the Sox.

U. S., AUSTRALIA END DAVIS CUP SERIES TODAY

Philadelphia, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—Two anti climax singles matches tomorrow will bring to a close the Australian-American Davis cup series with the United States already assured of the North American zone victory by reason of three triumphs in Friday and Saturday encounters.

In tomorrow's opening match Frank X. Shields of New York, who defeated Harry Hopman on Friday, will oppose Jack Crawford, ace of the Australian team. This encounter will be followed by one between Ellsworth Vines and Hopman.

These two matches will have no bearing on the outcome of the match inasmuch as the United States by winning the singles on Friday and the doubles on Saturday qualified to meet the Brazil team in the inter zone final at Forest Hills, L. I., during the second week in June. The winner of the United States-Brazil match will meet the winner of the European zone final for the right to challenge France for the cup.

BROKERS SEE WHEAT LEADING TRADE REVIVAL

Base Their Belief on Crop Shortage.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

It is the belief of a large number of speculators and cash grain handlers here and in the east that the wheat market is to lead the trade out of the depression that has prevailed for many months. It is a common impression in the trade that were the buying to increase to normalcy wheat prices would be 10c to possibly 20c a bu higher than at present. They base those ideas on crop shortages in the United States, possibly also in Russia, and in other parts of Europe. It is said that many large speculators are watching the market closely and are anxious to take hold as wheat is the only commodity that is in a position to attract greatly enlarged speculative buying and hold advances.

Winter wheat production in many countries gives evidence of being materially short of recent years. Private reports on the winter wheat crop of the United States are due on Wednesday, and are estimated to show 425,000,000 to 455,000,000 bu, with a few as low as 400,000,000 bu. Losses have been from drought, winter killing, the latter being more of a factor than most in the trade are aware of, in the southwest and middle west.

Takes Heavy Toll.

Hessian fly has taken heavy toll of soft winter wheat east of the Missouri river, as well as of the hard winter wheat in the southwest. It is estimated that the five southwestern states may not have over 175,000,000 bu and some believe it will be much less. The government report estimated 186,507,000 bu early in May against 444,000,000 bu last year.

There is expected to be a reduction in the soft winter wheat states from 126,000,000 bu in the May against 205,000,000 bu last year. It is said that the par basis used in figuring the crop will be raised materially over that used in the May figures, which would, in a measure, offset part of the losses, and it is well for the trade to remember that crop conditions in the Pacific northwest have improved in the last month and are a good average, which may help to modify losses east of the Rockies.

Short Interest Small.

In the face of all the bullish conditions in the wheat market and the disposition of large traders to buy on breaks, attention is being called by close observers to the fact that economic conditions are against a big bull market, and it is not wise to expect too much of the wheat market until there is a general improvement. Another factor is that the trade is not following the advances with continuous support and the short interest is too small, so that the market frequently gets top heavy and reacts sharply after bulges. In other words the market is not big enough to assume the old time activity induced by big crop scares.

Export business was not heavy. Foreigners are expected to make liberal purchases in the next few months but they know that there are plenty of supplies and that stocks on ocean passages are ample. We are within three to six weeks of a new harvest in this country and Europe, and cutting is already under way in parts of the southwest.

Speculative business during the week was larger than the previous week, but the open interest is not heavy. At the close wheat futures were ⅝@1⅜c lower for the week after a range of around 3c bu. May closed at 58@57⅞c, July 59¼@59c, September 60⅝@60⅜c, and December 63@62⅝c. Prices for the week follow:

Corn Planting Finished.

A good part of the corn planting has been finished and the balance will be, provided there is favorable weather this week. Early planted is up to a fairly good stand. It is too early to estimate the acreage and it is not expected that the private reports will attempt to give exact details. Some sections will have larger and others smaller acreages than a year ago. The crop in all is getting a good start, with plenty of moisture over most sections.

In the cash trade there is a moderate business, with industries taking hold fairly, and primary receipts and shipments are in excess of last year's. Speculative interest is light and the price range was only 2c for the week. The close was ⅜@1¼c net lower, May being 30c, July, 31⅞@32c; September, 34⅝@34½c, and December, 35c. Prices follow:

Oat Market Stubborn.

Responding to an increase in the buying, oat futures advanced early in the week only to weaken later with other grains, and closed unchanged to ⅛c higher. Cash interests furnished buying support on the breaks. Crop news generally was favorable. Movement from the country which has been the largest of the season of late, tapered off at the end of the week, yet supplies are ample for all requirements. No. 3 white oats in Chicago and Buenos Aires are at practically the same price, around 21½c. May oats in Chicago closed at 22⅝c, July 23⅛c, September 23⅛@23⅜c, and December 24⅝c.

French Writer Is Optimistic About Dollar

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 29.—"The position of the dollar remains strong. Withdrawal of all the European gold in America could not seriously weaken it. Danger can only come from within if a panic occurs producing a flight from the dollar, and there seems no reason to fear that this will happen."

This declaration of faith in the dollar was made today by Frederick Jenny, financial editor of Le Temps, in his weekly column. At the same time Jenny revealed that frequently voiced suspicions of European bear raids on American currency are not without foundation since the speculators were increasingly active during the latest slump of the dollar.

It was also revealed that the withdrawals of gold, which between April 28 and May 26—not including the $36,000,000 shipped Friday—drained $158,000,000 from the United States, were made by principal European banks of issue, including the Bank of France.

Offers Exceed Demand.

A correlation between the persistent sales of the dollar which depress the exchange rate and the gold movement is clearly established by Jenny. In addition to the fact that the dollar sales, by bringing the exchange rate below the gold point, are making shipments of the metal profitable, he points out that European banks are unable to convert their holdings in America directly into foreign currency rather than metal because "for several weeks offers of dollars on the exchange market have exceeded the demand."

The spot rate of the dollar is only maintained at its present level, says Jenny, by supporting purchases in Paris by American banks and for English account. No attempt is being made to peg the rates and tension on one month and three months dollars is increasing. According to Jenny, this increased tension indicates a growing bear speculation. Thus, says Jenny, "the dollar is undergoing at this moment a crisis less violent than last October but comparable with it."

A big cause for the heavy sales of the dollar, Jenny states, is the expansion of credit practiced by the federal reserve system.

Reasons for Confidence.

In giving reasons why he does not think the dollar is seriously menaced Jenny states, first, that the bulk of European holdings are already withdrawn so that the gold raids must end soon. He thinks the remaining metallic reserves will be sufficient to protect the dollar.

Second, he thinks that private bankers are opposed to the federal reserve policy and will act as a brake on possible excesses. But the biggest single reason in his mind is the confidence of the American people in their own currency.

The bear speculation is not a serious menace, according to Jenny.

"Previous experience has shown that there are effective means of combating short sales," he declares.

MUTUAL SAVINGS BANKS LAUDED FOR THEIR WORK

"The mutual savings system in the United States has been a tower of strength during the difficult times since 1929," the Index, publication of the New York Trust company, states.

"It is significant that, at a time when public confidence is at a minimum and when individual investors are losing faith in their own judgment, the amount of deposits in mutual savings banks and the number of their depositors have continued to increase."

"Out of a total amount of $28,259,205,000 represented by savings deposited in all banks in the country no less than $10,050,866,000 are credited to the mutual savings banks.

"Similarly, total resources of the mutual banks have increased year by year since 1880, the first year for which such records are available," the Index states. "In that year the total resources amounted to $881,700,000. On Jan. 1, 1931 and 1932, they amounted to $10,585,056,321 and $11,206,875,727 respectively. At the beginning of this year, the mutual savings banks were in the highly satisfactory position of having $1.11 of resources for each $1 of deposits.

"In the face of the tests imposed since 1929, the mutual savings banks have expanded their operations, enhanced their influence and prestige, and, at the same time, have demonstrated that the coöperative spirit of mutual helpfulness to which they owe their origin remains vigorously alive."

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PANAMA CITY, Panama, May 29.—Debts of $2,201,874 left by the administration overthrown by revolution in January, 1931, have been paid in the first fiscal year of the Alfaro administration, according to a report of the comptroller general's office. The public debt, which was $20,278,580 on March 1, 1931, was reduced to $18,076,706 on April 30, 1932.

The sum of $1,000,000 in interest and principal was paid on the foreign debt. This obligation, all of which was contracted with the United States, consists of two loans, one for $4,500,000 and the other for $12,000,000.

These payments were made despite the fact that the year was one of unusual expenses because of the elections.

New York Stocks of Coca Twice Those of Last Year

New York warehouse stocks of coca total 567,850 bags compared with 221,472 bags a year ago. It is contended by some brokers that the large stocks are an unfavorable factor marketwise, though others declare that the stocks are almost entirely "hedged" on the coca exchange, and that any business in the spot market will immediately be reflected by hedge covering.

ORDER POOLING NEWEST PLAN TO REVIVE TRADE

Big Concerns May Adopt Method.

New York, May 29.—(AP)—Having met with indifferent success in several past efforts to reverse the present business trend, several national leaders of industry are now said to be ready for a new line of attack.

Strong support, it is reported here, is being mustered for a concerted group movement among important manufacturers to pool their orders for new equipment and materials on or around July 1.

Officials of the United States Steel corporation are said to have given informal approval to the proposal, although no statement has yet been issued to that effect at the company's headquarters.

For Early Vacations.

Several large manufacturers, including leading factors in the steel, rubber, oil, and automobile industries, also are reported to have passed the word down to their mill workers to take their summer vacations early so as to be ready for an attempted resumption of activity this summer.

Seasonal influences have been so completely thrown out of their usual order in recent months that many executives believe the summer months would serve just as well as the fall—when normally there is a seasonal upturn—for a business revival effort of this type.

Another Slow Month.

With the approach of June, business bids good-by to another slow month. There were some bright spots in May, but these were the exception, although importance was attached to these manifestations of improvement. A notable case was the betterment of prices in the petroleum industry. This, officials of oil companies were quick to point out, has strengthened courage in other industrial fields. The oil companies have held their gains sufficiently well to justify hope that they may begin placing long deferred orders for new equipment within a few months.

The latest report of operations in the steel industry, showing production at 24 per cent of capacity against 25 the week before, was due partly to a slight fading of new automobile business. Electric power production, carloadings, cotton cloth production, wholesale and retail sales ebbed slightly, but against these was a modest upturn in the award of construction contracts. For the first 18 days of May the daily average was $5,319,000 in the 37 states east of the Rockies, which compared with daily averages of $4,680,000 in April and $4,156,000 in March.

Railway Earnings Drop.

Railway earnings continued to decline. Net operating income of 52 roads in April aggregated $17,310,000, against $26,239,000 in March and $31,054,000 in April, 1931. The roads showed further curtailment in operating expenses, but, like manufacturing plants, any real improvement in their earning power obviously waits for a pickup in general business.

STEEL TRADE DETAILS

Favorable factors in iron and steel are sufficiently numerous and vigorous to neutralize a decline of 2½ points in the steel operating rate to 23 per cent, lowest since the third week of April, states the magazine Steel.

Structural steel bookings last week, at 31,886 tons, were the largest in 1932. Ford, attempting to assemble 90,000 cars in June—a 50 per cent increase over May—is distributing more parts and material business. Miscellaneous orders from users long out of the market have appeared in some districts. A little more railroad demand has developed.

Despite last week's recession May output of steel probably has recouped the loss in April and rebounded to the March rate of 52,000 tons daily, or 24 per cent. On the basis of a trend line for production since 1896 the deficiency in steel since 1929 is estimated at 59 million tons, requiring 13 months at the 1929 average to make up, not counting new demands. Pig iron output in May has approximated the April rate—a little lower, if anything.

More Federal Building.

Two-thirds of last week's structural awards represent federal projects—10,000 tons for a department of agriculture building in Washington and 13,500 tons for a postoffice in New York. In the New York district work requiring 50,000 tons is in the general contractor stage. Inquiry is broad, likely to be greatly accelerated if a relief program by congress includes federal assistance for quasi-public projects.

Fifty gondolas of a special type, requiring 1,200 tons of plates and shapes, have been placed by the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad with the Canton Car company. This road also is asking repairs to an unstated number of cars, the steel probably duplicating the 50 car order. Western Maryland is taking bids on repairs to 150 cars. New York board of transportation has ordered 3,935 tons of rails from the Sweet's Steel company. Newark, N. J., is buying 1,500 tons of rails from the Bethlehem Steel company.

American Public Service Co. Will Pass Its Dividend

Directors of American Public Service company did not declare the dividend payable July 1 on the 7 per cent preferred stock of the company. Insufficient earnings to cover the dividend the first quarter of 1932 and continuance of adverse business conditions were factors governing directors' decision to conserve the company's cash resources. The dividend is cumulative.

Assails Plan for U.S. to Back Public Works

New York, May 29.—[Special.]—Use of the credit of the federal government to reinforce the securities of states, counties, and municipalities for the purpose of financing public works is opposed by William S. Lee, president of the American Engineering council.

"I cannot think of any more ruinous policy for this country to adopt," Mr. Lee declares in a statement issued by the council. "Not only the credit of the government, but the value of its securities would be destroyed.

"The inability of the state, county, and municipality to sell their securities is due solely to the fact that they have overdeveloped or have issued so many securities that their credit is destroyed or curtailed. If they have not destroyed their credit they can finance themselves; if they have destroyed their credit it would be financial folly for the federal government to indorse or purchase their securities.

Warns of Holding Bonds.

"Neither should a federal credit corporation purchase the necessary bonds or other approved obligations of the state, county, or municipality at reasonable interest rates and hold them until such time as they could be sold in the public market.

"If such a law were put into effect, many of our state, county and municipal units would rush to the government to secure money on their bonds. The question as to whether these bonds were issued for proper, necessary or sound expenditures would be decided by politics rather than by facts. The net result would be that we would have so many of these securities issued and owned by the federal government that politics would again come into the question, and it would be impossible to collect them.

"The collection of our foreign postwar debts would be an easy matter compared to the collection of bonds or loans made to state, county, and municipality, especially after they had been issued to some extent throughout the whole country. Each local political representative would be urged to join with the others in canceling this debt and placing the burden on the federal government.

Would Destroy Credit.

"But the worst feature is that the credit of the federal government would be destroyed. Government bonds, less than six months ago, sold as low as 82 per cent, and I can well imagine that our government securities would sell as low as 50 per cent if this policy were put into effect to any reasonably large extent. With government securities as such low prices no private industry could possibly sell its securities except at an unwarranted sacrifice. Industrial development would be further checked.

"This country will come back when private initiatve and private business begin to improve, and not until then. So long as the country continues even to consider political operation of business on an unsound financial basis, so long this terrific depression will last. We must stop borrowing unless absolutely unavoidable; balance all federal, state, county and municipal budgets, and live within our income."

ELECTRIC LINE CLAIMS FASTER SPEED OF TRAINS

Faster train service under electric operation than under steam has been made possible for the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad in handling its commuter traffic out of Hoboken terminal, where electrification has been in effect for more than a year. An electric local completes the run between Hoboken and Dover in about the same time as a steam express formerly required, and the local making all stops.

Because of these conditions Passenger Traffic Manager W. F. Griffitts has just issued a circular announcing the inauguration of additional trains and the reduction of running time from outlying points, as well as new schedules and special inducements to the traveling public during nonrush hours. These additional trains can be operated at lower cost than would be possible under steam operation. The circular says:

"In order to accomplish this, it has been necessary to not only place more trains in service, but certain semi-express trains will make all stops. This would not have been satisfactory under steam operation, but the electric trains make such short work of station stops that an electric local will run from Hoboken to Dover in about the same time as a steam express and in a very few more minutes of time than the present electric semi-express."

BANK TELLS FAILURE OF EASY MONEY RATE TO PROMOTE CREDITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 29.—The inferior ability of an easy money policy to bring credit into use when confidence is lacking was demonstrated by the outcome of the 1931 credit program of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, according to the annual report of that institution made public today.

The report, transmitted to the federal reserve board by J. Herbert Case, chairman and federal reserve agent in New York, states that the credit policy of the local bank of issue in 1931 kept funds freely available to its members at rates which were never above 3½ per cent and which, during most of the year, were under that figure.

"That, despite this liberal program, a severe contraction of bank credit should have taken place bears witness to the inferior ability of a low rate schedule to bring credit into use when confidence is lacking," the report says.

The most striking feature of the year's economic history, the report says, was the progress of the effects of depression through agriculture, industry and transport to banking. The long continued and drastic decline in money values of all types of assets and the consequent reductions in business profits made doubtful the prompt repayment of many bank loans; foreign credits at short terms became in effect long term obligations; declining security prices brought equivalent depreciation in the market value of bank investments. A recognition of these facts, the review says, awakened apprehension concerning the soundness of the banking position.

ASK SLUM AID BILL CHANGE TO MEET LAW HERE

A change in the wording of the proposed federal statute providing federal loans of 2 billion dollars for public and private construction projects is necessary if any of the funds are to be obtained for rehabilitation of Chicago's tenement areas.

This was pointed out yesterday by Henry K. Holsman, chairman of the blighted area housing committee of the Architects' Club of Chicago, in a letter to Congressman Morton D. Hull. The bill he referred to is one introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York, which, among other things, provides that the government may lend money to limited dividend corporations undertaking housing and slum clearance projects.

Holsman pointed out that there is no form of corporation legal in Illinois which is suitable to such undertakings, and that as a result housing projects have been undertaken largely by trusts in this state. He suggested that the Wagner bill be amended to allow loans to trust estates.

PROF. FISHER'S PRICE AVERAGE SHOWS DECLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Haven, Conn., May 29.—Prof. Irving Fisher's index number of commodity prices, based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 60.2, which compares with 61.1 a week ago, 61.4 two weeks ago, 61.6 three weeks ago, and 61.8 four weeks ago. The present year's highest average to date was 66.3, in the first week of January; this week's average is the lowest. The highest average of 1931 was 78.5 in the week ended Jan. 3; the 66.7 of Dec. 26 was the lowest.

Crump's index number of British commodity prices, as cabled for last week and also based on 100 as the average of 1926, is 60.8, which compared with 61.1 the week before; 61.1 two weeks before; 62 three weeks before, and 62.6 four weeks before. The average of the first week of January, at 66.1, was the highest of the year to date; this week's average is the lowest. The highest average of 1931 was 69.2, on Jan. 10; the lowest was 60.5 on Sept. 19.

CHILE GETS BILL AIMED TO LOWER GOLD BACKING

LIMA, May 29.—(AP)—Bills to lower the gold backing of the sol, establish a national budget commission and reduce the capital of the Central Reserve bank have been introduced in congress by the finance minister, Ignacio Brandariz, to ease the financial situation. The budget commission, composed of five congressmen and two financial experts, would control the national income and expenditures.

The gold backing of the sol would be reduced from about 98 per cent to 50 per cent, with a corresponding increase in the silver and marketable paper backing. This would permit the Central bank to increase the national currency from 38,000,000 sols to 76,000,000 [the par value of the sol is 28 cents. The current quotation on foreign exchange is 25 cents.]

The Reserve bank's capital would be reduced in an effort to aid industry and farming.

Bankers Await Tax Action Before Starting Bond Aid

New York, May 29.—(AP)—The ailing bond market failed to respond to constructive remedies during the last week and the declining averages again suffered daily relapses into new low territory for the year.

The continued, though somewhat smaller, purchases of government obligations by the federal reserve system in an effort to extend its easy money campaign; the formation of the Young committee of industrialists and bankers for the purpose of aiding the reserve's credit expansion policy, and the somewhat improved prospects for a balanced budget and a national tax program, failed to revive the apathetic loans list.

Banking Pool Reported.

There were various reports that a banking pool was being considered to support high grade corporate issues. Up to the present, however, it is understood no decision has been reached regarding any pooling scheme. Some bankers point out that until the situation at Washington clears to such an extent that trade and industry may be reasonably certain as to what it can expect in the way of increased taxes little can be accomplished in the way of concerted bond support.

The Young committee, while having a number of plans for unlocking credit doors, is also said to be hesitating to inaugurate any major operations until Washington uncertainties have been eliminated. It is argued that, although many bonds are selling at unusually attractive prices, any exceptional support under existing conditions would be of little benefit.

The railroads, as usual, were the weakest of listed securities. The average for 60 of the principal carriers dropped more than three points during the week. The income of 52 roads was off 44.2 per cent in April compared with the preceding month. While there were no immediate receiverships in prospect, poor earnings reports resulted in heavy liquidation in even the highest class carrier bonds. Selling was attributed partly to the unloading of holdings by various banks and insurance companies.

The utilities and industrials exhibited much more resistance than the railroads, but even they showed substantial losses on the week. Power and light company loans were especially under pressure, along with those of communications corporations. Some bonds of American Telephone and Consolidated Gas, long listed in the "gilt edge" class, sank to new 1932 lows. The oil companies were the steadiest of the lot, hope for a favorable outcome of the international conference, now proceeding in New York, holding up this category.

British Fives Higher.

British 5½s were easily the feature of the foreign department. They sold above the year's high mark of 106 at one time, but reacted moderately later under profit taking. Both English and German loans were in a declining mood, and Japanese bonds were relatively heavy losers. The Argentines rallied sharply near the end of the week.

The United States government list was comparatively steady.

BANKER OFFERS WAYS TO GUARD CASH OF PUBLIC

Reports to Session in Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., May 29.—A comprehensive plan of action "to eliminate the weaknesses and add to the strength of modern American banking" was presented here by R. S. Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust company of New Orleans and chairman of the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' association, in an address before the tri-state convention of bankers from Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee.

"No bank, state or national, should be allowed to begin operations with capital less than $50,000," he said. "If a community cannot support this amount of capital, it would be preferable to accept a branch from a bank in the nearest large business center in the state rather than to open a smaller bank. Consolidations of banks should be carried out to reduce banking facilities wherever necessary to coördinate them with local economic needs and to eliminate weak banks and strengthen the retained institutions.

Branch Bank Proposal.

"Branch banking within the states should be extended by the states to allow strong local financial center banks to extend facilities to communities lacking adequate banking facilities. National banks should be given all such branch powers within the states of their domicile as are granted to state banks there.

"Investment affiliates of all banks, both state and national, should report to and be supervised by the bank supervisory authorities. Corporate group bank organizations should be fully subject as an operating entity to the bank supervisory authorities, but the operations of those well conceived and administered organizations of this type which are rendering inestimable services in certain localities should not be interfered with.

"The federal reserve authorities should be given and should exercise reasonable power against improper use of federal reserve credit for speculative purposes, but not to an autocratic extent or in interference with normal banking operations.

For Depositors' Needs.

"A federal liquidating corporation to hasten relief to depositors of closed banks is desirable during the period of clearing up the present emergency and its results, but the capital funds should not be forced from the banks, nor should this plan be considered or become established in any sense as a public guarantee of bank deposits.

"Lastly, within banking itself must be developed an increasing sense of responsibility toward its depositors and the public at large, who have a right to demand that no matter under what form or charter the bank may be operating its first thought must ever be the continued safety of the institution. To that end bankers, individually and collectively, must assume the leadership in guiding banking laws towards higher standards and greater protection of the public, never forgetting, however, that fundamentally our American system of banking, as contrasted with banking systems of other countries, is peculiarly well adapted to the highly diversified community life of the United States."

SEASONAL GOODS DISPLAYING BEST SIGNS OF TRADE

A resumption of the former irregularity in trade conditions coincident with the sudden change in weather characterized the last week in Chicago, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. During the earlier half of the week wholesale and retail merchandising activities continued to improve under the influence of the warmer weather, and the number of shoppers in the stores gained steadily. Seasonal goods experienced the greatest pickup, with house furnishings, summer apparel, and garden implements selling actively.

Towards the end of the week the number of buyers decreased with the disappearance of the warm weather. Sales dropped to former levels, with a letup in the demand for even the seasonal goods.

Comparatively excellent business with actual sales of radio products aggregating several millions of dollars were reported by radio manufacturing companies exhibiting in the annual local trade show. Attendance towards the closing of the show was very good, and the volume of orders showed a definite increase over that of last year.

Building contracts in the Chicago territory for the last two weeks in May showed a definite improvement over the same period in April.

Steel activity continued light, although the 1933 World Fair buildings are furnishing a fair tonnage for the structural mills, and two of the leading manufacturers are to put up buildings requiring about 1,000 tons.

BROWN SHOE CO. RETIRES MORE OF PREFERRED

St. Louis, Mo., May 29.—[Special.]—Retirement of 1,375 shares of preferred capital stock on May 26 places the Brown Shoe company of St. Louis more than 19 months ahead of the requirements for the retirement of that stock by the end of 1933, John A. Bush, president, announces. Since July 31, 1931, the company has retired preferred stock in the amount of 4,125 shares.

The company is required to retire 1,000 shares of preferred each year. Last July 31 the quota for 1931 was retired, and on Sept. 11 the company retired its requirement for 1932, both times in the amount of 1,375 shares.

15 Per Cent of Locomotives Reported to Need Repairs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 29.—A large proportion of locomotives continued to be in disrepair, according to the American Railway association, which announced that locomotives in need of classified repairs numbered 7,851 on May 1, or 15 per cent of the number on line, compared with 7,642, or 14.5 per cent on April 1. The highest percentage reached last year was 13 per cent. There were 110,731 serviceable locomotives in storage on May 11, compared with 10,193 on April 1. There were 218,303 freight cars in need of repair, or 10.1 per cent of the number on line on May 1, against 209,272, or 9.7 per cent on April 1.

Porcelain Enamel Institute Elects Staud President

Rudolf W. Staud, sales promotion manager of the Benjamin Electric Mfg. Co. of Des Plaines, was elected president of the Porcelain Enamel Institute, trade association of the porcelain enameling industry, at the annual meeting of that organization in Cleveland last week. The headquarters of the institute are in Chicago. William Hogenson, president of the Chicago Vitreous Enamel Products Co., was reelected treasure, and George P. McKnight, publicity director of the institute, was made secretary.

WALL ST. LOOKS FOR MAGIC WORD TO TURN EVENTS

Sees Three Possible Items of Relief.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 29. — Wall street lives in hope — and on little else — these troubled days. It is the fashion of the district to turn the leaves of its calendar and prophesy that this or that approaching event may somehow bring a change for the better—on the eternal theory, perhaps, that come what may, things cannot possibly get any worse.

Right now there are three important items on the list of speculative potentialities and accepted opinion is that any one of them may prove the magic presto that will turn the trick and jar the stock market out of its long trading rut. Foremost, of course, is congressional action towards some kind of a tax program that will clear the budget. True, the lawmakers have not been showing much promise here of late, but they have spent so much fruitless time in political jockeying and wire pulling that the average trader feels they cannot much longer resist the pressure of popular impatience.

Would Clear Air.

Of course there is no guarantee that a new tax law would usher in a market boom, but with the air cleared of some of the uncertainties constantly arising from the political messes they brew down there it is felt that the list would at least have a chance to show its stuff. Commentators have been almost unanimous in laying the current movement largely to discouragement over the course of affairs at the nation's capital.

The big national political conventions will be held within the next few weeks and if the past can be accepted as a criterion they will combine to break the spell under which the market is currently laboring—if only temporarily. Many look for the inauguration of the campaign, with the stir which it will bring about in the nation's thought, to prove something of a tonic to speculative sentiment.

Reparations Conference.

Next in importance on Wall street's schedule of approaching events in the Lausanne reparations conference, which is counted on to bring some degree of certainty to the European picture now growing more confused with every turn of the clock hands. Recent comment has indicated that little hope is entertained of anything more definite from the parley than an extension of the Hoover moratorium at this time, but that will be something and the financial community will count it as one more hurdle taken to the market's credit.

Meanwhile the list itself goes steadily on from bad to worse. This last decline saw the industrial averages carried down to the low levels of 1904, a new bear bottom which made case-hardened veterans of the exchange gasp with astonishment. At their lows of Saturday THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's average of fifty representative stocks showed a decline since March 8 of more than 48 per cent, the sharpest percentage dip of any of the seven major liquidating movements of the 2½ year depression. The largest previous slump was the first one starting with the beginning of the big break on Sept. 19, 1929, and running to Nov. 13 following. It amounted to 47.3 per cent.

See Turnabout Ahead.

Each of the six previous declines of the long bear movement has been followed by a recovery known to the chart reader as a technical correction—precedents which convince the trading community now that the present downsweep is thoroughly due for a turnabout and that nothing more nor less than a "break" of some kind in the news is needed to bring it about. In the upturn which followed the initial break the list recovered approximately 48 per cent of its lost values. In the second "comeback" it recovered 40 per cent, and in the third, which came in the early part of last year, it made up something like 46 per cent of what it had lost. A good 49 per cent of the ground given up in the fourth reaction was regained and on the fifth and sixth downswings the list recoiled some 46 and 40 per cent respectively.

Outside of congress, Lausanne and party powwows observers see little in sight to influence the market's course in the immediate future. Dividend meetings for the coming week are mostly unimportant, and the trade reviews offer little hope. Oil men of the world foregathered here say they think the corner may be turned in their industry, but gasoline prices continue to drop and production to go on unchecked. Railroad earnings get a little worse each month and commodity prices still trend downward. Gold flows on unchecked to Europe, last week's loss to the country amounting to $90,757,900. This brought the exports for the year so far up to something like $506,000,000.

Fox Film Has $1,372,941 Loss for 13 Week Period

New York, May 29.—(AP)—The Fox Film corporation, for 13 weeks ending March 26 last, reports a net loss of $1,372,941, compared with a net profit in the same period last year of $974,704. The company's gross income totaled $19,231,567, against $25,458,223 in the same 13 months of the previous year.

Standard Cash Dividends Estimated at $46,308,873

Cash dividend payments by the Standard oil group of companies for the second quarter will total $46,308,873, says a compilation by Pforzheimer & Co., specialist in oil shares. This total compares with $46,801,053 in the first quarter and $57,843,467 in the second quarter of last year.

SALE OF ELLIS-ELEANOR FLATS SET FOR JUNE 10

Property to Be Bid In for Bondholders.

BY AL CHASE.

Bondholders of the Ellis-Eleanor apartments at 4823-29 Ellis avenue, have been notified by Avery Brundage, chairman of the H. O. Stone & Co. protective committee, that a decree of foreclosure has been entered and the sale of the property set for June 10 at the judicial salesroom of the Chicago Real Estate board. Mr. Brundage states that the property will be bid in for the depositing bondholders. Reorganization plans will be announced later.

AVERY BRUNDAGE.

The members of the committee, of which Mr. Brundage is chairman, are: Charles M. Moderwell, J. L. Kraft, Francis R. Blossom, and Horatio B. Hackst, secretary. The Ellis-Eleanor building contains twenty-four suites of two and a half, four, and five rooms. No receiver has been appointed for the property. Through an agreement with the owner, the net rentals are being deposited with the Chicago Title and Trust company each month for the benefit of the bondholders.

1430 North Dearborn.

The Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver for the 1430 North Dearborn apartments, reports $553 cash on hand on April 30, 1932. The statement of receipts and disbursements for the period from July 24, 1930, to April 30, 1932, shows:

Receipts:

Gross income	$65,279
Disbursements:
Operating expenses	$43,409
1929 General taxes	5,529
1931 General taxes [redemption]	6,000
Special assessments	479
Receivers fees	1,450
Solicitors fees	850
Furniture and equipment	6,222
Insurance	787
	64,726
Cash balance, April 30, 1932	$ 553

The 1430 North Dearborn apartments were financed by an Equitable Bond and Mortgage company 7 per cent bond issue of $275,000, which has been reduced to $231,600. The property was appraised at $450,000 at the time of issue and the net income estimated by the underwriter at that time was $76,400.

222 East Chestnut.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the regular H. O. Stone & Co. bondholders' protective committee for the 222 East Chestnut street apartments, states that it has filed a bill to foreclose the first mortgage and following this act an agreement was made whereby the owner will set aside the net income from the property for the benefit of the first mortgage bondholders.

"Thus it hasn't been necessary so far to ask for the appointment of a receiver," said Mr. Brundage, "and, since the owner has assured us that every effort will be made to work out in conjunction with the committee a reorganization plan satisfactory to the first mortgage bondholders, it's probable that the expense of a receivership can be saved."

Meanwhile an independent bondholders' committee composed only of actual owners of securities and headed by H. A. Ambler, an attorney of Burlington, Ia., and with Joseph E. O'Connell as attorney, is actively in the field securing the deposit of bonds and planning a reorganization in which economy will be stressed. The nineteen story "222" is owned by the Chestnut Street Building corporation, headed by Maurice B. Rissman, architect.

MEAT TRADE LIMITED

Packers and distributors report a good average business in dry salted meats and in green and cured hams. Prices are exceptionally low, with hogs averaging the lowest since 1898, being close to $3. Speculative business in lard was very small and the range on futures fair sized. At the close prices were 15@25c lower on lard, and 7¼@15c higher on bellies, as compared with the previous week. Good supplies of hogs are expected the coming month. Prices follow:

BRITISH SHIPPING INDUSTRY HAS GLOOMY REPORT

Attacks Public Waste Among Britons.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 29.—The gloomy position of Great Britain's shipping industry is contained in the annual report of the chamber of shipping of the United Kingdom.

After a scathing denunciation of public extravagance of the last few years, which the report alleges has destroyed foreign confidence in Britain and its power to maintain its credit, the report prints figures showing that the British shipping industry is passing through the worst period in its history and which continues without abatement.

Comparison of Notes.

Tramp freights, measured in the depreciated sterling, were in 1931 on an average 4 per cent higher than gold freights of 1930, and 15 per cent below pre-war freights. For December, 1931, freights in the depreciated sterling were only 8 per cent above those of December, 1930, when the country was on the gold standard.

Time and charter rates were on an average 20 per cent below pre-war. Liner trade, estimated in the volume of outward cargo from the United Kingdom, fell a further 25 per cent and lines as a whole found it impossible to compensate for the low earnings outward from the increasing homeward freights.

Passenger traffic also declined heavily in spite of reduction of fares and passenger lines have been driven to engage in short cruise voyages in order to find employment for the ships which could not be employed on the regular routes.

Tanker Rates Drop, Too.

Tanker freight rates declined during the year and the ruling rates were quite unremunerative, being the worst in the history of bulk oil shipping dating back for 45 years.

During 1931 the gross tonnage laid up in United Kingdom ports was on an average of 3,250,000 tons, compared to 1,500,000 tons in 1930, and at present the figure is over three million tons.

U. S. Imports of Colombian Coffee Increase, It's Said

Imports of Columbia coffee into the United States during the first three months of 1932 totaled 99,020,059 pounds, as compared with 80,474,771 pounds in the same period last year, or an increase of 23 per cent, according to figures just released by the United States department of commerce.
